SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Feb. 25.—Three American armies advanced today along a 90 mile front toward the Rhine against enemy resistance described as varying from "moderate to disorganized."

While the United States 9th and 1st armies extended their bridgeheads all along a 25 mile front from a point northeast of Linnich to southeast of Dueren, units of the 3d army farther south continued to push eastward. Dueren, keystone of the Rhineland defenses, had fallen earlier in the day to 1st army troops, whose maximum gain was seven miles. Lt. Gen. Patton's divisions crossed the Pruem river, west of which all enemy resistance collapsed, and drove on toward Bitburg, important communications center north of Trier and west of Coblenz.

The 9th and 1st armies' attack beyond the Roer was progressing satisfactorily. On the second day of the attack all 21 bridgeheads across the Roer were linked up from a point five miles northeast of Linnich to a point south of Dueren. The Yanks were within 15 miles of Cologne at the farthest point of the advance. U. S. tanks entered the drive for the first time and spearheaded the advance to seven miles east of the Roer river.

15 MILES TO COLOGNE

BY JOHN THOMPSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE UNITED STATES 1ST ARMY ON THE ROER RIVER LINE, Germany, Feb. 25.—Still without meeting a major German counter-attack, Lt. Gen. Hodges' 1st army spearheads attacked for the third successive night and today had pushed to within six miles of the Erft river and canal. The towers and chimneys of Cologne, 15 miles away, now lie within full view of the attacking Yanks.

Gathering momentum once the Roer line had been breached Hodges' army drove against tough German resistance, so far unsupported by any large masses of armor. As the Yanks moved on to the outskirts of the Cologne plain after capturing Dueren, there were indications that German strength might crumble soon under pressure toward the Rhine.

Bridgehead Deepened.

With the 104th and 8th divisions still out in front, the 1st army deepened its bridgehead an average of three miles while prongs pushed forth to seize ridges and hills east of Dueren. The line now runs from Kreuzau, three miles south of Dueren, which was taken this morning by fresh troops who drove on southeast, up thru Stock-

Mob Battles Canada Police in Draft Riot

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que., Feb. 25.—Scores of persons were injured here early today when resentment on the part of the predominantly French-Canadian population against Canadian selective service regulations flamed into open rioting.

A mob of between 500 and 1,500 persons charged 100 Royal Canadian Mounted police and Canadian army provost corps special constables who were checking the military status of men in drinking places, bowling alleys, pool rooms, restaurants, and theaters.

The police and constables were pelted with chunks of ice, three police cars were overturned, the windows of the police office were smashed, and dozens of fist fights occurred. One mounted policeman and one constable required hospital treatment. Three newspaper men were beaten and kicked by the mob.

Keep Their Prisoners.

The police retained all their prisoners, numbering 12, but were compelled to abandon their cars. The last eight prisoners were whisked to Montreal, where five later were held. One was a deserter, three were delinquent in their army call-up, and one had failed to comply with the national registration act of 1940.

The prisoners had been assembled in the mounted police headquarters preparatory to removal to Montreal, when the crowd gathered with the obvious intent of freeing them. Mounted police formed a line in front of the building and the shower of ice chunks began.

Police removed eight of the prisoners from the town, while the other four were held in the station. A mounted police inspector, after the crowd had been dispersed, released these four prisoners.

Army Center Alerted.

So serious was the situation at one time that the army training center at near-by Sherbrooke was asked to stand ready to lend assistance.

Authorities said there was no shooting. Deputy Chief of Police Maurice Vincent of the Drummondville police, ordered his men to remove the bullets from their guns. The mounted police at all times were armed with .45 caliber revolvers and their crops, but the provost constables were unarmed except for blackjacks.

After smashing the police headquarters window, the rioters drove thru the streets in automobiles until local police induced them to return to their homes.

Deserters Hunted.

Canada has been plagued in recent months by the issue of drafting troops for overseas service, which is generally opposed by the French population.

Canada fought the first five years of the war with overseas service on a voluntary basis.

Thousands of home army soldiers are now being hunted as deserters.

White House Says F. D. R. Is in Excellent Health

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25 (AP).—The White House said tonight "all the information we have and every indication is that President Roosevelt is in excellent health." The assurance was given after foreign speculation on the state of the President's health following the Yalta conference.

[The unofficial Vatican news service said the President was hurrying home from Yalta due to poor health. Yesterday a Vatican City dispatch quoted Msgr. Walter Carroll, attache of the Vatican, as saying Mr. Roosevelt is "resting," but he had heard nothing about any illness.]

Officer Calls a Cop When Robbed at Police Meeting

Denver, Colo., Feb. 25 (AP).—R. George Woods, executive secretary of the Colorado Sheriffs and Peace Officers' association, was presiding at a meeting of the Police Protective association. He laid his watch on the table to time speakers. When he returned from a recess, the watch was gone. Woods complained to the police.

ARISTOCRATIC SOUTHERN GENTLEMAN GETS JOB AS CHAUFFEUR

TIRED G. I. MAKES FOUR NAZIS CARRY HIM TO REAR ON A STRETCHER

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY IN GERMANY, Feb. 25 (AP).—Lt. Col. George Robinson of Austin, Tex., related today how one doughboy solved the problem of getting some rest.

"I saw about 100 prisoners coming down the road," Robinson said. "Four of them were carrying a stretcher on which a G. I. sat cross-legged like a sultan, with a tommy-gun on his lap. He was in complete command of the situation. I asked him of he was hurt and he replied:

"'No, colonel, I am just so tired I couldn't walk another step, so I thought that as long as I had to take these prisoners back they might as well furnish the transportation.'"

E. L. CORD'S SON KILLED IN FALL FROM BALCONY

Beverly Hills, Cal., Feb. 25 (AP).—William James Cord, 28, son of Errett L. Cord, former automobile manufacturer, died early today after a fall from a penthouse balcony.

Detective J. D. Alcorn said he was informed the man grasped the balcony railing, jestingly called to friends to "see how strong I am," attempted a hand stand, and fell 28 feet to the entry way's marble floor. The mishap occurred as young Cord, his wife, and others were leaving a friend's apartment.

He was an associate in his father's investment business here.

Young Cord and a brother were centers of a kidnaping scare in 1934. At that time the boys were guarded by a police escort when they returned to their California home from Culver [Ind.] military academy.

"Never trust a woman!"

That was the advice a member of the French underground gave a Chicago boy shot down over France and rescued by patriots. What this advice was worth and all the intrigue and miraculous escapes from the Nazis experienced in his death-defying journey to freedom are yours to read in a fiction-beating story held until now as one of the war's most strictly guarded secrets. Wildcat Strike Threatens to Shut Carnegie

A wildcat strike by 450 employes of the coke plant of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company's Gary works last night threatened to close down virtually the entire works and throw 39,200 others out of work, if it continues for 24 hours.

Of the 15 coke oven batteries in the plant, the second largest in the world, only six were left operating last night, manned by foremen, to keep the town of Gary supplied with domestic gas.

The coke plant also supplies gas to the tubular alloy mill, the sheet and tin mill, the Gary works with gas for making steel, and the South works with coke.

Transfer of Three Blamed.

The strike is alleged to have resulted from the transfer of three men from the coke plant to other departments.

Last July 19, the grievance committee of the United Steel Workers [CIO], told the management that an extra employe was needed on each shift for batteries 2 and 4 because they were in disrepair.

Each battery normally has a four man crew. On Aug. 3, the company agreed to put an extra man on the two batteries, with the provision, the company said, that they would be taken off when the batteries were repaired. Last week the batteries were repaired, and the three extra men were transferred elsewhere in the plant.

Four Walk Off Job.

Joe Goin, union subdistrict director, denied last night that the agreement provided the extra men should be taken off when the batteries were repaired, and also asserted that the repairs had not been completed. He accused the company of failure to "coöperate." Goin said the strikers will attend a meeting at 10 a. m. today at which he will join with army and navy officers in urging them to return to work.

Yesterday's strike began when four men, J. T. Hopkins, 1600 Monroe st., Frank Scott, 1612 Carolina st., Nat Davis, 1769 Jackson st., and Sam L. Gates, 2608 Pennsylvania st., all of Gary, walked off the job. By 6:30 p. m. they had been joined by 300 others and at 11 p. m. the total reached 450.

The company charged that the strike is a violation of the union's contract because no grievance was presented, and that it is an abrogation of the union's no-strike pledge.

Threatens Ingot Output.

At 11 p. m. last night, when eight merchant mills were scheduled to resume operation after the weekend, lack of gas made it necessary to send home 300 merchant mill employes who reported for work, bringing the total number of persons made idle by the strike to 750.

Company officials said if the strike continued for 12 hours, it would be necessary to start banking the open hearth furnaces, cutting off ingot production, and that if it continued 24 hours, the following operations would be affected:

The South works, employing 13,000 men; the Gary works, 15,000 men; the tubular alloy mill, 4,000 men, and the sheet and tin mill, 6,900 men.

Company officials said that because of the current man power shortage, it is doubtful whether resultant lost production can be made up.

ILLINOIS YANK AND A JAP ON IWO PLAY BALL WITH A GRENADE

WITH THE 4TH MARINE DIVISION, Iwo Island, Feb. 25 (AP).—Using a hand grenade instead of a ball, Sgt. Everett J. Hedrick, Fisher, Ill., played a weird game of catch with a Japanese on a hillside, but tired of the game and dropped the enemy with his carbine.

Hedrick spotted the Japanese in a dugout preparing to toss a grenade. Hedrick threw a grenade himself, but forgot to pull the pin. The missile hit the Nipponese on the forehead but didn't knock him out, so he tossed it back at Hedrick, also without pulling the pin.

Then Hedrick's carbine jammed, but he picked up another one and shot his opponent dead.

6 MEN SLIDE 11 STORIES TO ESCAPE CELLS

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 25 (AP).—Six male prisoners slid 11 stories down greased elevator shaft rails to effect a successful break from the King county jail today.

After the daring slide the six forced the elevator shaft doors into the main lobby and escaped before the jailer whom they had bound in their cell block could summon aid.

The prisoners first had pried the casing from their cell locks with an 18-inch length of steel mop handle and then lured the jailer, Ed St. Pierre, 58, into their control on the pretext they wanted him to shut some windows.

SHIPS' GUNS AND CARRIER PILOTS AID YANK DRIVE

Marines Fight Thru Strong Defenses.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, Feb. 26 [Monday]—(AP).—Three divisions of United States marines, launching an attack northward on Iwo under cover of naval shelling and carrier planes, captured the east-west airstrip of the central airdrome yesterday and had possession of two-thirds of the north-south runway.

Adm. Nimitz announced the intensified push in a bulletin which disclosed that 2,827 enemy dead had been counted on the island. This is only 28 more than the last previous count.

A small force of Japanese planes raided American positions on Iwo shortly before midnight yesterday but caused no damage. Some of their bombs fell on their own troops.

Hold One Runway.

Nimitz reported fighting was bitter thru Sunday as the Yanks drove against some of the strongest enemy entrenchments of the Pacific war.

The admiral announced that the 3d, 4th, and 5th marine divisions launched their attack "after preliminary bombardment by marine artillery and heavy units of the Pacific fleet." Carrier planes from the 5th fleet and army Liberators gave the ground troops close support.

Raid Chichi Isle.

American bombers raided Chichi, in the Bonin Islands immediately adjacent to the north, on Friday and Saturday. Marcus island was hit Saturday. Targets in the Marshalls were attacked the same day by navy planes.

Morrie Landsberg, war correspondent reporting from the flagship at Iwo, said the Japanese soldiers there appeared to be larger men than those encountered at Guam and in the Marshalls. Some of the 2,827 bodies already counted were 6 footers.

Yanks Fight Uphill.

So far, said Landsberg, the Japanese have been able to look down on the Americans all the way from the beachheads. The Yanks have been fighting uphill since they hit the southeast and southwest coasts.

The marine cleanup on Mount Suribachi, Iwo's southern volcanic peak, is likened to hunting prairie dogs, reported Landsberg. With the American flag flying over the crater, the marines are using flamethrowers and explosives to liquidate cave and other strong positions. Flames directed into some of the interlocking caves flushed Japanese from the others to be shot down. The crater of the volcano is lined with caves and gun positions.

One section of the American casualty list—missing in action—was reduced today as many leathernecks who had become detached from their units turned up safely or wounded in the sick bays of ships. The exact number of such cases was not announced. On Feb. 21, 500 were listed as missing.

'JAPS HOLD IWO'—TOKYO.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Radio Tokyo said yesterday that Japanese forces on Iwo still held their main positions, including Mount Suribachi, and that Jap air units are attacking American marine lines and supporting warships "day after day." Tokyo said the American controled sector on Iwo is "not more than the size of the forehead of a cat."

Tokyo claimed the Japanese were taking a heavy toll in dead and wounded and that Yank hospital ships off the beachheads were "crowded to the beams."

Japs Blow Up Hill; 200 Die as They Flee

MANILA, Feb. 26 [Monday]—(AP).—Underground blasts rocking Corregidor fortress, indicating new self-destruction on the part of the sealed-off Japanese defenders, were reported today.

Five heavy explosions occurred Friday night deep under Corregidor's Malinta hill, on which the 503d parachutroopers and the 34th regiment's 3d battalion are established. A spokesman said 200 Japanese fled from the portals of Malinta tunnel after the blasts, which jarred the island for the second straight night. All were killed.

Last Wednesday the Japanese, touching off an underground ammunition dump, blew great chunks out of Malinta tunnel in their initial effort at mass suicide. Several Americans were buried alive and others were injured.

Capture Two Towns.

Gen. MacArthur, making no mention of Manila or Corregidor in his bulletin today for the first time in many weeks, reported steady pressure on the enemy on all fronts.

Fourteenth corps infantry men, clearing the Japanese from positions east of captured Manila, captured the towns of San Isidro and Montalban.

First cavalry division Yanks were operating near Antipolo, 18 miles due east of Manila, while 11th air borne troops crossed the San Juan river on the southwest shore of Laguna de Bay, 15 miles south of captured Muntinlupa.

12,201 Dead in Manila.

Japanese counted dead in the downtown Manila fighting totaled 12,201. This does not cover the toll taken by artillery fire and among Japanese holed up underground and buried alive by mobile gun hits and bulldozers.

It is now apparent the Japanese did not mean to leave any such large force in Manila, but had intended withdrawing all but the demolitionists to the northeast behind the Marikina defense line.

There is ample evidence that 1st cavalry and 11th air borne divisions by throwing a quick line around the northeast and southern outskirts of Manila prevented much of this planned withdrawal. As a result the Japanese returned to Manila and made the last stand.

Hold Out in 5 Places.

The enemy still is holding out in five places in and near the walled city. These groups are isolated with no chance of escape. In the agriculture and legislative buildings just outside the walls they are fortified and may hold out for a day or two.

There is hardly a large building left undamaged in the downtown section. Metropolitan Manila—its huge modern stores, theaters, clubs, and restaurants, its picturesque Chinese section, its historic walled city, its palatial south shore resorts and homes—are gone with the winds of war.

Bombers Rake Positions.

"We learned a lot," said Lt. Col. John D. Frederick of Springfield, Ill., whose 119th regiment slugged it out from the Pasig to the waterfront. "I hate to think of another fight like this one, but we know how to do it now, altho I can't say there is any easy way. At least I hope when we fight in Japan's cities we won't have the double worry of sparing civilians while killing Jap forces."

NAVY BOMBERS AND B-29s SET CAPITAL AFIRE

Japs Admit Damage to Industries.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, Feb. 26 [Monday]—(AP).—American aerial might landed a powerful blow against Tokyo and other targets on the Island of Honshu Sunday as carrier based planes roared over and more than 200 Super Fortresses followed, bombing thru a cloud cover.

Tokyo acknowledged damage to air fields, military installations, and transportation facilities. The Tokyo radio also said bombs fell on metropolitan Tokyo and near one of the royal palaces.

This broadcast said 600 carrier planes and approximately 130 B-29s participated. It claimed that 35 American planes were shot down and five more damaged.

None of the big planes was lost to enemy action, 20th air force headquarters announced. In fact, no fighter opposition was encountered. Bombing was with instruments and results were not observed, the bulletin said.

"Heart of Tokyo Ablaze."

Absie, the American broadcasting station in Europe, reported that 25,000 square yards of the heart of Tokyo was ablaze. Tokyo radio said mostly incendiaries were dropped. Following the daylight attack, an air raid alarm warned that night bombers had penetrated the skies over Shizuoka prefecture and were heading toward the capital.

Greatest B-29 Raid.

The world's mightiest carrier task force, skippered by Vice Adm. Mitscher, first threw its naval flyers against the center of Japan's war making machinery Sunday morning. Then came more than 200 B-29s—the largest force ever sent out on a single mission—to blast Tokyo area industrial targets.

[Part of the barracks of the imperial guard was demolished "when a bomb fell inside the precincts of the Japanese royal palace," said a BBC broadcast heard in the United States by the Blue network.]

A 20th air force bulletin said the Super Fortress "has reached the end of its development stage, has been thoroly battle tested and is entering a new phase of the aerial battle against Japan."

Bomb by Instrument.

The B-29 strike came three months almost to the day from the time the Super Fortresses first attacked Japan from Marianas Island bases last fall. It marked the first B-29 daylight hit against the industrial center of the city.

Crewmen returning to their Marianas base said they had to unload bombs by precision instruments thru heavy clouds.

One B-29 unit leader, Col. Carl Storey, of Denton, Tex., said, "Tokyo really must be burning tonight. We could not see thru that soup but I'm sure we must have laid some bombs in the main street."

The Super Fort flyers could not observe any results of the carrier plane attacks. But the Super Fort crews generally recounted that they met no Japanese fighters and that anti-aircraft fire was light above the cloud layer. Col. Storey said one implication of this lack of opposition was that the carrier striking force had kept the Japanese well occupied.

Other Targets Bombed.

Lt. Robert T. Cummins of Oak Grove, La., navigator aboard another B-29, said many bombs hit Tokyo industrial targets but some Super Forts were forced by heavy clouds and high winds to strike alternate targets as the Nagoya plane producing center.

Capt. George Simeral of Pixley, Cal., claimed his Super Fort dropped the first American bombs on the city of Shingu, southeast of Osaka. He picked Shingu as a target because clouds were so thick the wingtips were obscured.

"There must have been some others who had to do the same as we did," he said. "Most of Japan must be burning from one end to the other."

Maj. Harry Mailly, 20, Sacramento, Cal., piloting a plane named "Heavenly Body," flew 600 miles with the bomb bay open because its doors iced up.

Fishing Boat Attacks Fleet.

ABOARD ADM. MITSCHER'S FLAGSHIP IN JAPANESE WATERS, Feb. 18 [Delayed]—(AP).—The only shot fired at this huge task force as it steamed toward Tokyo bay to send its carrier planes against the capital came from a little fishing boat 100 miles offshore.

Naval pilots, who witnessed the action, said an American destroyer hailed the fishing boat. Its skipper responded with a burst from three inch guns. The American ship opened fire and the fighting boat disintegrated in a ball of flame. The skipper was picked up from the wreckage injured and burned, but still alive.

KOISO APOLOGIZES AGAIN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Imperial property was bombed during heavy American carrier plane and Super Fortress raids on the area Sunday, the Japanese radio said, and Premier Kuniaki Koiso was chagrined.

Tokyo said approximately 600 carrier planes from an American task force in Japanese waters raided the Kanto district [Tokyo-Yokohama] Sunday morning, and that about 130 Superforts attacked Tokyo for two hours during the afternoon "blind bombing from above the clouds" during heavy snowfall.

The B-29s came in 12 or 13 waves, Tokyo said. It added that bomb-started fires were "quelled almost entirely" by nightfall and that other damage was "very slight."

Tokyo said imperial property hit included an area adjacent to the guardhouse at the gates of Omiya palace, residence of the empress dowager Sadako, and the bureau of the imperial stables.

Japs See 15 Carriers.

The Japanese agency Domei said more than 150 B-29s in about 15 formations were in the afternoon strike. It reported the carrier planes struck air fields and other military installations. The task force, it added, was off southeast Japan and appeared to include 15 or 16 carriers.

Domei quoted Premier Koiso as being angered "at the enemy's arrogance and lawlessness" in bombing imperial property. He said "damages, of course, are very slight but nevertheless, as his majesty's humble servant, I am filled with trepidation.

"I shall proceed immediately to his majesty and report on the crisis and the approach of danger to his person and, on tomorrow morning, I shall again request an audience from his majesty and in behalf of the cabinet ministers offer our profound apologies for the unforgivable negligence."

JAPS CAPTURE TOWN 100 MILES FROM HENGYANG

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 25 (AP).—Japanese troops striking westward from the Canton-Hankow railway town of Chenhsien in Hunan province have captured Schang, 100 miles south of Hengyang, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

Chinese units killed more than 100 of the enemy in 24 hours during the fighting in the suburbs of Schang.

Other Japanese forces have advanced 35 miles northeast of Chenhsien but were repelled when they tried to push farther.

PRESS WIRELESS BEGINS SERVICE FROM MANILA

13 to Man Station, Silent Since 1941.

BY WALTER SIMMONS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 25.—This is the first story to be filed from Manila thru the facilities of Press Wireless, high speed news transmission agency which henceforth will give American newspaper readers faster coverage on fighting in the orient.

Silent since 1941, Press Wireless began sending out news stories at a rate of from 300 to 400 words a minute only a few seconds ago. Its 10 kilowatt transmitter is located several miles from Manila.

Available to All.

Now that this station, beamed on Los Angeles, Cal., is in operation, a small 400 watt station on Leyte will be closed and all personnel removed to Luzon. Eight men are operating the Leyte station.

All Tribune stories from the Philippines will be transmitted thru the facilities of Press Wireless, an enterprise launched by THE TRIBUNE and several other large American newspapers in defiance of world communications combines. Its facilities are available to all newspapers.

Japs Forced Move.

Press Wireless began operation from Leyte Nov. 14. Opening of the Manila station has been delayed. When Manager H. E. Stovall of Gardena, Cal., arrived, he found the building selected by the army for the transmitter had been demolished by the Japs. The site was moved two miles farther from the city, and equipment was unloaded. But the Japs infiltrated, causing another move. The present location will be permanent.

Stovall will head a 13 man crew at Manila. The station has equipment to receive incoming press copy for Manila newspapers.

U. OF I. ENROLLMENT INCREASES.

Urbana, Ill., Feb. 25 [Special].—Enrollment at the end of the second week of registration for the second semester at the University of Illinois topped 5,815, an increase of 29.19 per cent over a year ago, and enrollment for the Chicago colleges of the university is 1,027, an increase of 20.12 per cent.

CHICAGO DOCTOR ONE OF BUSIEST MARINES ON IWO

BY THOMAS MORROW.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. MARINES ON IWO ISLAND, Feb. 25. — The marines were throwing everything they had at the Japanese today in an attempt to seize high ground overlooking Moto air field No. 2. Capture of this area will give assaulting troops command of all high points on the island for observation and gunfire purposes.

Lt. [j. g.] Marvin Courtney.

Edward F. Moore.

"We expect nightly attacks by the Japs," said Lt. George B. Hinde of Huron, O., as he surveyed the battle. "We believe they may be getting short of ammunition and will throw everything into one desperate attempt. If we break that one, we're in."

Other marines reported the Japs who attempted infiltration into marine lines seemed to be in search of water. This led to the belief the enemy is desperate for water and possibly food.

Chicago Doctor Busy.

One of the busiest Chicagoans in the battle lines is Dr. Marvin Courtney of 8103 Marquette av., who is directing care of the wounded. He expressed pleasure at the results gained by blood plasma in saving the wounded, but said shell shock and battle fatigue cases were on the increase because of the continued heavy explosions.

"They should call that guy a Commando," said Jack Ente of Bridgeport, Conn., naval hospital corpsman attached to the marine corps. "He's everywhere, taking care of those disabled."

Wisconsinites Fighting.

Edward F. Moore of 4218 Washington blvd., Chicago, a hospital aid, returned from bringing wounded and fatigue cases out of the front lines under fire and sank down on the sand to rest.

The Rev. James A. Quinn, navy chaplain and former faculty member at Fenwick High school in Oak Park, Ill., strolled up. "I've never seen anything like this," he said, "either for bravery of our troops or rugged opposition."

Pvt. Leroy Eglehoff of Thiensville, Wis., pronounced the operation tougher than he had expected, and was seconded by Pvt. Edmund Strach of 826 N. Maplewood av., Chicago.

Helps to Take Air Field.

Chicagoland marines of varied peace time occupations are aiding in the battle. There is Lt. Robert G. Jones of Kohler, Wis., a Seabee officer engaged in moving supplies to the front. He has aided in keeping them moving despite heavy seas which have wrecked boats.

Second Lt. John M. Dahl of Chippewa Falls, Wis., aided in directing the fight which took air field No. 1. Banker E. T. Juday of Rhinelander, Wis., is with the artillery.

Atty. Eugene A. Williams of Delavan, Wis., is concerned with the amphibious tractors. Robert B. Gooden of 5705 N. Kenneth av., Chicago, who was or his way to being a practicing physician, is now engaged in gunfire spotting, which calls for the spotter to be ashore early on D-day. Present also is 1st Lt. John S. Coleman, an attorney of La Crosse, Wis., now an artillery man.

TEXAN KILLS 15 JAPS, WIPES OUT SIX PILLBOXES

Leading his cavalry troops in a six hour battle, Lt. Jack Knight of Mineral Wells, Tex., killed 15 Japanese, threw grenades into six enemy pillboxes and, tho wounded twice, led his men forward and gained the objective before he died.

Serving with the Mars task force, Knight commanded a troop of the 124th cavalry regiment, formerly a Texas national guard unit. Knight's commanding officer, Col. William F. Osborne, said "Knight was the finest example of American officer I have ever commanded. He killed more Japanese than any other person in the Mars task force."

Grenades Two Pillboxes.

With the objective of establishing a road block on the old Burma road to help secure the new Stilwell road to China, Knight and his men attacked on Feb. 5. In the first 1,500 yards they met only two Japanese and Knight shot them both. Approaching the crest of a hill Knight found pillboxes and grenaded two of them.

Despite growing casualties Knight's men followed him up the hill. Knight threw grenades into another pillbox and fired his carbine into the opening. An enemy grenade wounded him. Knight walked back a few feet to Lt. Leo Tynan of San Antonio, Tex., who later took command.

A Japanese charged out of a pillbox and tried to bayonet Knight. Tynan killed that one. Knight then took half of Tynan's ammunition and started forward again.

Brother Also Wounded.

The rest of Knight's men caught up with him. While his men were falling around him, Knight paused only long enough to regroup his squads.

"Come on, we have them," Knight shouted as he ran ahead. He grenaded another pillbox and fell wounded for a second time. Knight's brother, Sgt. Curtis Knight, saw him fall and ran forward to lead the troops. He was hit by a bullet under the heart.

Jack Knight, unable to move, saw his brother drop and asked one of the men to help the latter to a first aid station. Then on his hands and knees he crawled toward another pillbox and hurled a grenade. It was his sixth and last, as an enemy bullet hit and killed him. Curtis Knight is recovering in a rear hospital.

BOY WHO FLED LOS BANOS CAMP REJOINS FATHER

16 Year Old Hides with Guerrillas.

BY WALTER SIMMONS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 24 [Delayed].—William Taylor, 75 year old Spanish-American war veteran from Chicago and Peoria, Ill., was reunited today with his 16 year old son, who had escaped from Los Banos internment camp Jan. 13 and spent more than a month wandering with the guerrillas.

"I decided it was better to take the chance of dying quickly than to die slowly of hunger," said the boy, William L. Jr.

With another prisoner whose fate is not yet known he slipped thru the barbed wire fence in the morning while guards weren't looking. A day later 11 other men escaped. They are believed still with the guerrillas.

Ninety Per Cent Have Beri-Beri.

Imprisoned in the compound of the agricultural college at Los Banos, Taylor experienced rude treatment. At first the prisoners raised vegetables in a garden, and they were allowed to keep the profits. But six months ago a new Japanese commander named Kanichi, formerly at Santo Tomas internment camp, took over Los Banos. He immediately banned fruits and vegetables, cutting the prisoners to 85 grams of rice [about 3 ounces] and a similar amount of cornmeal daily.

"Things were so bad that 90 per cent of the prisoners had beri-beri when I left," Taylor said.

At Santo Tomas camp today the youth was reunited with his father, brother, and three sisters. After hearing his son's story, the elder Taylor said, "It was America that opened Japan to the world. When this war is over, let America close Japan to the world."

Served with Dewey.

Taylor came to Manila in 1894. He saw naval service under Adm. Dewey in 1898, and later saw service in Japan and China. He was employed at Cavite when he retired in 1932. In 1942 he and his family were interned at Santo Tomas, where his weight dropped from 208 pounds to 132.

Members of two religious orders who had been interned at Los Banos asked THE TRIBUNE today to tell their superiors in the United States that they are safe and well.

The Rev. Jerome Lawyer, C. S. C., asked that word be sent to the Rev. Thomas Steiner of Notre Dame, Ind., that the following brothers were rescued by American troops:

The Rev. Robert McKee, Brother Theodore [David Kapes], the Rev. William Murphy, the Rev. Albert Bleau, the Rev. Jarry, Brother Constant, and Brother Nivard. One brother was reported dead.

Message for Techny.

The Rev. Eugene Stoll, Canton, O., asked that the Society of the Divine Word, Techny, Ill., be notified that the following are safe:

The Reverends Arthur F. Dingman, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Lawrence Leisring, Fort Thomas, Ky.; Joseph Smith, Chicago; Alphonse Lesage, Moline, Ill.; Leo Groce of North Dakota; Charles Gries, Chicago; Lawrence Bunzel, Milwaukee, Wis.; John Vogelsang, St. Paul, Minn.; John Healy, Alameda, Cal.; Ernest Keilen, Westphalia, Mich.; Jerome Wagner, Decatur, Ill.; Raphael Felix, Cincinnati, O.; Boniferi Carlucci, Yonkers, N. Y.; Antonio Koleoiziej, Bowlus, Minn., and Filipe Van Engelen, Utrecht, Holland.

"All other members," said the Rev. Stoll, "are presumably alive."

Ida E. Wheeler to George Care, uncle, 807 Juneau av., Milwaukee, Wis.: "The four Wheelers are fine. Carl is in Manila. No news from him as yet. See you soon."

Where's Ginny?

GINNY.

This is "Ginny," who has been chosen as the pin-up girl of an anti-tank company, somewhere on the western front. The members of the company have asked THE TRIBUNE to help identify the girl because they do not know her name or address.

"The picture of this very lovely Chicago girl fell into our hands," Sgt. Leo Solomon wrote. "The name 'Ginny' is the only writing on the back of the snapshot, and we would like you to print the picture in the hope that she will see it and communicate with us."

So if Ginny sees this and wants the address of the company, THE TRIBUNE will make it available.

FORRESTAL GOES ASHORE ON IWO; LAUDS MARINES

ABOARD ADM. TURNER'S FLAGSHIP, Iwo Island, Feb. 23 [Delayed]—(AP).—Navy Secretary Forrestal, who from the bridge of this ship watched American marines land on Iwo Island four days ago, visited the beach today. He came back to the flagship with "a feeling of tremendous admiration and reverence" for the Yanks in battle there.

Forrestal was in a Higgins boat with Lt. Gen. Holland Smith, commander of the marines, and two admirals, when the Leathernecks planted the American flag atop Mount Suribachi. The secretary and his party of navy, marine, and army personnel, stayed ashore on Iwo for more than an hour.

In interview later the secretary said the amphibious campaign, employing 800 ships, hundreds of planes, and three marine divisions, showed the need for tremendous amounts of war materials.

U. S. INVESTORS READY IF LATINS PLEDGE SAFETY

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 25.—Eric A. Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said today that American private capital will invest heavily in Latin America if there is a guarantee of reasonable security.

Johnston is chairman of the United States inter-American development committee and an advisor, with representatives of United States labor and agriculture, to Assistant Secretary of State Will Clayton, who tomorrow will present economic proposals to the inter-American conference here.

Johnston said the security of these investments is dependent upon political stability, which is dependent upon economic stability, which in turn needs foreign capital.

Like Hen or Egg Question.

"It's like the question of which came first, the hen or the egg," he said. "The conference is trying to evolve a program for concerted western hemisphere efforts toward both political and economic stability.

"The Latins will welcome American dollars, repealing laws discriminatory against foreign capital. Most of these dollars should be private rather than government funds because private investments are usually administered more efficiently. It will be advisable to share investments with the nationals to give them an interest in the success of the projects, but in most instances American investors should remain in control because of their superior technology."

[The United States plans to offer Latin American countries a concrete plan to industrialize themselves with American assistance, modernize their agriculture, and increase the productivity of workers, the Associated Press said. The proposals are aimed at developing the power of the western hemisphere to resist aggression.]

Post-war Apprehensions.

Johnston declined to comment on whether the present outlook for political stability in Latin America is encouraging to American capital. Some of the governments are apprehensive of internal disturbances when the United States cancels huge war contracts, their delegates here said.

"Economic stability in the United States, with its great purchasing power, is the number one factor in the stability of Latin America," Johnston said. "In the United States private industry and private organizations representing business and labor are developing reconversion and post-war programs. Such planning is essential, and it is a stimulant rather than a deterrent to arms production."

JAP USES YANK DEAD AS SHIELD FOR HIS MORTAR

IWO ISLAND, Feb. 25 (AP).—Several nights ago Japanese mortar shells dropped on the Yank beach for hours. Nobody could find where they were coming from. Enemy mortar crews supposedly had been cleared from the area.

A lone Japanese finally was discovered to be firing the mortar. In darkness he had crawled in among the American dead and set up his weapon.

After firing at the congested area on the beach he would cover up with a tarpaulin thrown over the bodies awaiting burial. He was liquidated.

4 A. M. CURFEW AND 6-DAY WEEK ASKED BY CAFES

Leaders Go to Hand Byrnes Plea.

Representatives of the Chicago Cafe Owners' association left yesterday for Washington to protest to War Mobilization Director Byrnes that midnight closing, effective tonight, would put 60 per cent of night club owners outside the downtown area out of business. They said they would propose to Byrnes that they stay open until 4 a. m. six days a week and close entirely the seventh day.

John W. Comise, president of the association, and Milton T. Raynor, its attorney, said as much electricity could be saved by their plan. As for man power, the other saving objective of the curfew, they said their waiters were mostly elderly men and their woman entertainers not of the war plant type. They said they spoke for cafe operators in Michigan and Ohio as well as in Chicago.

Tells Brown-out Losses.

Night club patrons do not overload transportation systems because most of them use their own cars, said Comise. He also asserted that the "brown-out" on electric lighting has caused a 50 per cent loss of business and that any further decrease might cripple many places.

"One of our greatest problems is going to be with the fulfilment of entertainers' contracts," he said. "These are drawn on a weekly basis, and the entertainers can insist on full pay even if their hours are reduced."

The night life of the swing shift worker continued to be a factor in discussion of the curfew among operators of taverns and sport places. One observer of the war plant labor field said it undoubtedly would be more difficult than ever to recruit men and women for the shift that ends at 11 p. m. He said that they would miss a chance to bowl especially.

Spencer Plans Meeting.

Meanwhile WMC Regional Director William H. Spencer returned from Washington and said he would call a staff meeting this morning and explain procedure agreed on Saturday at a conference of the 12 WMC regional directors with Byrnes. Area directors, of whom there are 25 in the region embracing Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin, were given the task of determining whether violations of the curfew were willful. The Chicago area director is Lester Brown.

Brown will be directed to call on Mayor Kelly and Sheriff Mulcahy for assistance in detecting violations in Chicago and Cook county.

FORMER TRIBUNE EMPLOYE CITED AS PACIFIC HERO

Lt. A. J. Goossens.

Lt. Albert J. Goossens, 26, a Tribune employe on military leave, has been awarded the air medal for heroic service as pilot of a B-24 bomber in the South Pacific, his wife, Lorraine, was notified yesterday.

In an accompanying citation from Lt. Gen. George C. Kenny, Lt. Goossens was commended for his participation in several dangerous missions over Japanese held territory from July 15 to Sept. 28, 1944. Lt. Goossens, who formerly worked in the Tribune composing room, joined the army four years ago, and was assigned to the coast artillery. He later was transferred to the air forces.

His father, John Goossens also is an employe of the Tribune composing room. The family lives at 1624 North Shore av. Lt. Goossens attended St. George High school in Evanston.

THEFT OF $500 COAT REPORTED.

Joseph Cunningham, 3243 N. Natchez av., reported to police yesterday that thieves stole his wife's muskrat coat, valued at $500, her $33 pay check, and $41, in a burglary of their home Saturday night.

DUEREN FALLS; YANKS 15 MILES FROM COLOGNE

U. S. Tanks Enter Roer Battle First Time.

heim, Binsfeld, Merzenich, Ellen, and Oberzier. American troops are also half way thru the Vambach forest.

Battling around the old Rhenish castle between Ellen and Merzenich, the Americans captured an entire battalion of the 250th panzer grenadiers, complete with commanding major and five other staff officers. Their castle, a round walled affair which from a distance resembled a factory, gave them a commanding field of fire across the flat lands but the Germans surrendered under a white flag when the Yanks plastered their stronghold with artillery and then came looping in with infantry under an Iowa boy, Maj. Samuel W. Koster of the 104th division, from West Liberty.

Pour Across Roer.

As 1st army engineers threw more heavy bridges over the Roer, masses of men, guns, and material poured eastward in endless streams.

Knowing the importance of these bridges the Germans last night sent 50 airplanes to attack them. But 1st army anti-aircraft gunners knocked down 20 and claimed two probables.

In clearing the southern section of Dueren American troops swept so suddenly into two barracks that 10 prisoners were taken in the underwear in which they had been sleeping.

One 8th division battalion, it was learned today, had lost many of its weapons in crossing the turbulent Roer. Those without guns were told that they would have to get weapons from the Germans they killed. So the boys went to work with their long knives and grenades. And when tank destroyers came up yesterday morning carrying extra rifles, they found many of these Yanks fighting with German guns.

9TH ARMY ADVANCES

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, Germany, Feb. 25.—Punching forward along the entire army front, Lt. Gen. Simpson's 9th today advanced to a line about seven miles east of the Roer river, seizing 11 more towns and capturing 1,500 additional prisoners.

It became evident today that the fierce American bombardment and widespread bombing had seriously disrupted enemy operations and communications, and that in many cases German staffs and headquarters were isolated from field units in action.

The nippy weather and overcast skies seemed to portend another cold snap coming to freeze the ground and dry up roads, and give armor ideal winter weather conditions in which to operate. Some American tanks are now across the Roer on treadway bridges, and with the infantry holding high ground west of the river, we are ready for any counter-attacks which may develop.

Seize Road Junctions.

The 84th, 102d, 29th and some other unidentifiable units in the 9th army moved forward from two to four miles, capturing or entering several road junctions. These included Lovenich, Katzen, Rodingen, Pattern, and Mersch. Steinstrass, east of Juelich, was entered.

In one unit cellar I found Sergeants Norbert Weber, 528 N. Claremont av., and Robert Drevikovsky, 5409 S. Homan av., both Chicagoans, spinning dials, picking up the most advanced elements, and relaying requests for artillery support or airplane protection back to the batteries and flight strips.

"Litter bearers wanted by Company C," they yelled, and Medic Simon Spinberg of 1217 N. Leavitt st., Chicago, leaped into a jeep and started forward.

Capture Red Cross Girl.

The 84th division captured a woman today among its bag of 250 prisoners—a comely Red Cross fraulein in filthy, muddy uniform, her hands and face dirty and grimy from three days without ablutions.

Sgt. Charles Isley of 372 Harrison st., Gary, Ind., found what his buddies believe is a real one carat diamond in a shell shattered house in Linnich. He picked up a china stamp moistener and removed the sponge to find the diamond lying hidden beneath.

The company adjutant grabbed the gem for safekeeping, explaining it would revert to Isley a year and a day after the war ends if no claimant appears.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY, ACROSS THE PRUEM RIVER, Feb. 25.—Units of the 5th and 76th infantry divisions pushed across the Pruem river early today against weak and disorganized enemy resistance, taking several hundred prisoners.

Altho the Germans had elaborate trenches dug in along a high hill beyond the Pruem, between the towns and Holsthum and Peffinger [about six miles north of Echternach], they failed to man them either due to the complete surprise or lack of sufficient troops. Both towns were captured—Holsthum by the 76th and Peffinger by the 5th—and found to have many civilians.

Third army units also advanced in other areas, with the 80th infantry division rolling up a gain of several miles and taking five towns in a sector which cannot be disclosed.

More than 1,200 prisoners were taken by Lt. Gen. Patton's men during the day's operations.

Heavy Shelling by Yanks.

The Pruem crossing was aided by last night's heavy American shelling during which some 1,600 rounds were sent into a road center, the town of Bettingen. Prisoners said American artillery disrupted their communications.

We crossed the Pruem today on a little footbridge guided by 76th division medics, who included Pvt. Jack Henneman of River Falls, Wis., who said he and his fellows, without sleep for 48 hours, had evacuated about 10 Americans and seven Jerries today. His uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Henneman, live in Oak Park, Ill.

We went into Holsthum with Capt. Jib Collins of Boston, Mass., and Don Williams of Lake City, Ia., a battalion sergeant major, following a communications wire as a guide. We passed, on the way, Sgt. Hank Olenski, 5524 S. Throop st., Chicago, Ill., in a hillside foxhole.

In the town practically the first man we met saw our war correspondent insignia and said: "The things you see when you haven't got a gun." He was 2d Lt. Don E. Young of Lake Zurich, Ill., a communications officer.

OTHER AREAS OF FRONT

PARIS, Feb. 25 (AP).—Reports from the Canadian army front today said the Germans were withdrawing crack armored units to meet the peril from the Americans, and were pulling troops back from northern Holland and the Dutch islands at the mouth of the Rhine.

The main activity on the Canadian front between the Maas and Rhine was in the central sector, where British troops captured the village of Hoest and pushed on south into Rottum, a mile from the enemy base at Weeze.

On the United States 7th army front there was bitter fighting in the French town of Forbach, south of Saarbruecken, and Lt. Gen. Patch's troops beat off three armor supported counter-attacks.

While the 70th division battled to clear Forbach of the last die-hard defenders, the 63d division cleared the Hinterwald, a small forest east of Bubingen, four miles southeast of Saarbruecken.

Heavy German guns with a range of 25 miles were shelling the Saverne supply area back of the front. On the French 1st army front, two German attempts to raid Strasbourg port, on an island in the Rhine, were repulsed.

NAZIS BLASTED BY 5,000 PLANES; ATTACK MUNICH

LONDON, Feb. 26 [Monday] (AP).—Seven allied air commands hurled more than 5,000 planes at rail, aviation, tank, and industrial targets in Germany yesterday, and at midnight the British announced that R. A. F. Mosquitos had rained two-ton block busters on Berlin for the sixth successive night.

Approximately 1,150 United States 8th air force Flying Fortresses and Liberators spearheaded the daylight blows. Five hundred of these hit the Nazi shrine city of Munich, where Hitler's old guard gathered for a week-end celebration. Aschaffenburg and Ulm were other rail objectives and another target was tank plants at Friedrichshafen.

More than 40 German aircraft, including 22 jet planes, were downed for a loss of 20 of the allied tactical air units sweeping the areas behind the front, and ground gunners bagged 20 of 50 German planes thrown against United States 1st army positions Saturday night.

Erfurt Attacked.

Erfurt, important communications center on the main lines between Berlin and western Germany, also was attacked by the R. A. F. Mosquitos in their new night assault.

Planes from Italy struck into Austria and just south of Munich—nearly meeting the United States ships from Britain—while the R. A. F. ripped a synthetic oil plant near Dortmund and tactical air force planes supported the western ground offensive.

It was the 13th straight day of aerial assaults, in which Germany has been hit by about 19,000 heavy bombers unloading 57,000 tons of explosives, principally on the German rail system.

Aid Russian Drive.

U. S. 15TH AIR FORCE HDQ., Feb. 25 (AP).—United States 15th air force heavy bombers hammered German rail lifelines to the eastern and southern fronts today in direct—and requested—support of the Russian armies. The smash at enemy lines leading into Vienna from the west and out of the Austrian capital to Germans fighting in Hungary and Yugoslavia was mapped out in conferences with Russian ground commanders.

10 IN ARMORED DIVISION GIVEN HEROES' AWARDS

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE AMERICAN 3D ARMY, Feb. 25.—Bronze star awards have been given 10 members of the 4th armored division by order of Maj. Gen. Hugh J. Gaffey, commander. Among them were:

Warrant Officer Albert E. Fisher, 3252 N. Drake av., Chicago, Ill., assistant supply officer of the 489th anti-aircraft battalion, for voluntarily acting as platoon leader to replace a wounded officer and also "for traveling hazardous and unknown roads with truckloads of ammunition."

Pvt. Melvin C. Larson, whose mother, Mrs. Lavina Larson, lives at Hayward, Wis., a driver with the 46th armored medical battalion, for delivering important messages over roads subjected to enemy artillery and small arms fire and past hostile road blocks.

Lt. William Colleran, 22, a former CHICAGO TRIBUNE newsboy who has flown more than 25 missions in the South Pacific, is spending a leave at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Colleran, 643 Belmont av. Since he became a navy pilot, Lt. Colleran has won the distinguished flying cross, a gold star in lieu of a second air medal, and four battle stars. In an engagement as the pilot of a fighter bomber last Nov. 5 in the Philippines he shot down one Jap plane and was credited with another probable. Overseas since last July, he was a student at Wright Junior college when he entered the navy in July, 1942. After a 30 day leave he will report for duty at a Florida base.

CHICAGO SCOUT BEHIND JAPS ON LUZON 4 MONTHS

WITH THE 25TH DIVISION, Luzon, Feb. 24 [delayed]—(AP).—Two American army officers and two Filipino enlisted men from the United States, who came to Luzon by submarine four months before the Yank invasion of Jan. 9, have been brought from the mountains hundreds of miles north of Manila by a 25th division patrol.

They are Capt. Frank J. Skundale, Atlanta, Ga., Lt. John E. Bove, 3242 N. Kenneth av., Chicago, Sgt. Secondo Bucol, Hayward, Cal., and Pvt. Jaime Bernal, Boston.

The four reported numerous narrow escapes from the Japanese while blasting enemy supply roads and gathering information on troop dispositions. They said the Japanese offered 50,000 pesos for their capture but Filipino guerrillas aided them.

Spring Weather at End; Cold Wave Due Today

A two day spell of spring weather ended yesterday with a high temperature of 53 degrees at 4 p. m. This surpassed by one degree Saturday's high of 52 degrees and was the warmest day since last Nov. 15. A cold wave moving thru Iowa and Minnesota will send the mercury down to a low of 5 degrees tonight, Weatherman Howard Kenny predicted.

ALLIES RESTORE PARTIAL SELF RULE TO ITALY

Regains Right to Deal with Other Nations.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 25.—New privileges were granted Italy today under a program announced by Harold MacMillan, acting president of the allied commission. Altho falling far short of what Italian leaders have been asking, and in some instances angrily demanding, they are nevertheless a long step forward. Observers believe Italy's enlarged responsibilities should do much to bolster the position of her governmen t and generally lessen widespread discontent which has so long been in evidence.

Changes Listed.

Under thte MacMillan announcement, the following changes have been made:

1. In Italian government territory [Sicily, Sardinia, and the mainland south of the northern boundaries of the provinces of Viterbo, Rieti, and Teramo] regional offices of the allied commission will be closed by April 1, and the allied commission will advise rather than control the Italian government in this territory.

2. The Italian government is permitted to conduct relations with other allied and neutral governments directly. It regains the right to appoint and receive diplomatic and consular agents, and also the right to its own secret channels of diplomatic communication. The allies have asked, however, that they be informed of any important negotiations between Italy and other governments.

3. The Bonomi government regains full authority to issue decrees and laws. Previously all such legislation had to be approved by the allied commission.

4. Appointments, from members of the government down to minor functionaries became the sole responsibility of the government. Excepted positions are ministers of army, navy, and air, and top military positions, in each of which the appointee still must be approved by the supreme allied commander.

Renewed Cultural Ties.

Minor changes include a plan to reestablish cultural relations between Italy and the allied nations. Britain and the United States are arranging for the flow between their countries and Italy of books and other publications of scientific, political, philosophical, and artistic nature. They also hope to arrange the exchange of professional men, scholars, and artists.

The new program does nothing to change Italy's position from that of an undefined co-belligerent to ally. MacMillan carefully explained that the armistice still remains in effect. Observers pointed out full military law can be reinstated at any time, should the Italian government show signs of drifting in the wrong direction.

Little Economic Hope.

Moreover, MacMillan's announcement contained little assurance the United States and Britain are ready to grant shipping and supplies for reconstruction of Italy's internal economy.

Hundreds of thousands of Italian soldiers are still held prisoner by the allied nations. MacMillan said he hoped the question of Italian prisoners of war "held in Italy" can be rapidly liquidated, but made no reference to the half million or so outside the country.

It would take many ships to return these prisoners to Italy, and shipping is at a premium now. Once here they would have to be fed and housed in a nation where food and housing are extremely hard to find. Tens of thousands of them are from north Italy, still German held.

The territory which now comes under direct control of the Italian government includes about half of Italy's population of 45 million people.

Reds Aim at Baltic Coast

NEW RED DRIVE IN POMERANIA GAINS 7 MILES

LONDON, Feb. 25 (AP).—The Red army captured the Pomeranian stronghold of Preussich-Friedland today and drove to within 60 miles of the Baltic coast in a powerful new offensive aimed at splitting the German province and sealing off thousands of enemy troops in Danzig territory.

Advancing up to seven miles near the Polish frontier southwest of Chojnice, the Russians hurled the enemy from a 10 mile stretch of the Berlin-Danzig highway and drove three miles beyond to seize Bischofswalde, cutting the Chojnice-Neustettin section of the Berlin-Stettin-Danzig railway.

Berlin said the Pomeranian drive, aimed at destroying the German northern flank and lessening the danger of a Nazi counter-attack on Marshal Zhukov's salient pointed at the reich capital, was launched by five soviet infantry divisions and several tank brigades. The enemy acknowledged Red army advances across the Berlin-Danzig highway.

Attack on 27 Mile Front.

Attacking on a 27 mile front between Russian held Chojnice and outflanked Landeck to the southwest, the Russians captured eight localities in addition to Preussich-Friedland, a seven way junction town on the Dobrinka river 17 miles southwest of Chojnice.

Soviet troops driving directly on Danzig thru the Polish corridor between Pomerania and the Vistula river were batttling the Germans in the forest less than 33 miles south of the former free city.

Other soviet forces were poised along the Nogat river boundary between East Prussia and Danzig territory 25 miles southeast of the Baltic city. Danzig and its neighboring port of Gdynia are important Nazi naval bases.

Gain in East Prussia.

In East Prussia the 3d White Russian army gained up to two and a half miles on a 15 mile front on both sides of fallen Zinten, pinning the battered remnants of perhaps 20 German divisions into an area of less than 340 square miles. At the top end of the front they seized Amallenwalde, 14 miles southwest of Koenigsberg.

Several more blocks of buildings fell to Russian shock troops in Breslau, besieged lower Silesian capital, the only other sector mentioned in the brief Russian war bulletin. The Russians now hold nearly 40 blocks in the southern part of Breslau.

In Latvia, where the remnants of 30 German divisions are isolated, a German broadcast said the Russians captured Priekule, 20 miles southeast of the Baltic port of Liepaja after a fierce houes to house fight.

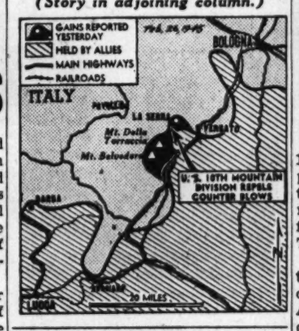
Nazis Claim a Success.

At the southern end of the long eastern front Berlin claimed that the battle of the Bratislava plain had ended with the Germans hurling the Russians back across the Hron river in the sector lying along the north bank of the Danube east of Komarom [Komarno], 84 miles east of Vienna.

In Silesia and Brandenburg provinces heavy fighting still raged along the 60 mile section of the Neisse river between besieged Guben, 51 miles southeast of Berlin, and Goerlitz, 48 miles east of Dresden, Saxon capital. Berlin said "all Russian bridgeheads over the Neisse were crushed yesterday."

Mountain Action

(Story in adjoining column.)



U. S. MOUNTAIN TROOPS GO INTO ACTION IN ITALY

ROME, Feb. 25 (AP).—United States 10th mountain division troops repulsed German counter-attacks today near Mount Belvedere, 29 miles southwest of Bologna, and flanks of neighboring Mount Della Torraccia.

The presence of this division on the Italian front was disclosed officially for the first time. Trained in America's Rocky Mountains, its soldiers scaled some of Mount Belvedere's perpendicular surfaces with ropes, seized a German stronghold, and then consolidated positions east and west of the forbidding peak. They captured the villages of Polla, Valpiana, Mazzancana, and a number of hills all over 3,000 feet high.

In support of allied strategy aimed at pinning down and destroying as many of Marshal Kesselring's troops as possible to prevent them from joining the main battle for Germany, a combined force of United States, British, and French warships has been heavily bombarding targets on the French-Italian frontier.

Direct Hits Reported.

It was reported that the United States destroyer Boyle had scored a number of direct hits on enemy held buildings and a command post, while the French cruiser Georges Leygues hit the Excelsior hotel at San Remo. Ammunition dumps, shore batteries, and port installations at Ventimiglia also were shelled.

Italian patriot forces behind the enemy lines recently attacked five military trains heading north from Genoa, forcing many of the Germans to continue their journey on foot, a bulletin on patriot activities broadcast from Lt. Gen. Clark's headquarters said.

Two enemy anti-aircraft sites were destroyed by the patriots in this operation.

Brazilian troops on the 10th mountain division's right captured the villages of Bellavista and La Serra and took two hills, the higher 3,100 feet.

Germans Make Gains.

German troops struck back with three counter-attacks in the La Serra area, attempting to infiltrate, and on their final try got close enough to use hand grenades. This third enemy attack was partly successful and heavy fighting, some of it hand to hand, was reported in progress there.

The 5th army's local successes in the Mount Belvedere area also were bitterly contested by the Germans, and forward elements of the 10th mountain division were being subjected to heavy artillery fire.

On the Adriatic sector, 8th army troops cleared out a stretch of the east bank of the Senio river southwest of Bagnacavallo between the Russi-Lugo railway and San Severo and took up improved positions.

BURGLARS TAKE WHISKY.

Burglars who entered Philip Lazsar's tavern at 826 Barry av., Saturday night took 21 bottles of whisky, 40 cartons of cigarets, and four boxes of cigars and currency, all valued at $527, Lazsar reported to the police yesterday.

TAFT PROTESTS USE IN BATTLE OF 18-YEAR-OLDS

Questions Policy on Untrained Men.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25 (AP).—Sen. Taft [R., Ohio] today demanded that the war department clarify and state its policy on using 18 year old draftees with less than a year's training in overseas combat.

Taft told a reporter he will cite in the senate tomorrow the case of Pvt. Robert R. Pogue of Cincinnati, 18, who was reported killed in action in France Feb. 3, a little more than seven months after induction.

Taft, who knew young Pogue intimately, said he was informed that the youth received 17 weeks of training before he was shipped overseas as a replacement.

"I don't think it's fair to put these young boys into the front line with only basic training or a little more," the Ohio senator said.

Urges More Training.

"I know that war makes sudden demands, but it seems to me that some of the divisions in this country could be combed for men who are a little older and have had more training to make up these replacements."

Taft said his own son had been given 14 months of training before being sent overseas, adding that the final few months had taught him most of the "know how" to minimize the dangers of battle.

Senators Ferguson [R., Mich.] and Mc Carran [D., Nev.] also said they had received protests from parents of reputedly green troops being pressed into combat service.

Policy Change Hinted.

Last June 7 the war department set up a general policy that the infantry and armored forces would use no men under 19 in combat and would attempt to give all of these a year's training.

On Dec. 7, however, Robert Patterson, undersecretary of war, said that urgent military requirements had necessitated a revision of this policy, but that in general a minimum of approximately eight months would elapse between induction and combat service.

Taft said he thought the war department should explain now whether those standards have been changed and indicate the military necessity for any changes.

DIES BEFORE HE IS 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Nelsen, 1811 New England av., yesterday were notified their son, Pvt. Fred P. Nelsen, had been killed in battle three weeks before his 18th birthday. He had gone into combat, the father said, three weeks after leaving home for a port of embarkation.

Young Nelsen, who would have been 18 last Friday, entered the army last Aug. 14 by falsifying his age, his father said. Army officers learned his true age in December, but agreed to let him stay in if he should gain the father's approval.

"Fred called from Camp Robinson, Ark., and told me it was understood, practically a promise, that if his outfit was taken overseas it would have at least three months' training behind the lines," said Nelsen. "We heard the commander in chief before election promise that these boys would have at least a year's training before going into battle.

"As it was, Fred had 17 weeks of basic infantry training. Just three weeks after his Christmas furlough he was in battle. When I told him it would be all right for him to stay in the army, I believed what we all had been told by the President."

$695 IN LOOT TAKEN FROM HOME.

Theft from his home of two watches, two rings, a radio, silverware, and a .22 caliber target pistol, all valued at $695, was reported to police yesterday by Reinhold Leib, 4046 Adams st.

DEAL WITH NAZIS TO RELEASE KING LEOPOLD SOUGHT

BY P. E. BRIQUET.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, Feb. 25.—Attempts to gain the freedom of King Leopold of Belgium and his family, Edouard Daladier, Paul Reynaud, Leon Blum, and Edouard Herriot, French politicians spirited by the Nazis into Germany when France fell, were confirmed here today. The man behind these attempts is Jean Marie Musy, former Swiss federal councillor, who already has been instrumental in getting the Germans to free some 2,000 civilians, mostly Jews and some Americans.

Musy is working as a private citizen. The Nazis are said to be unwilling to free the Belgian king and the French politicians without getting an equal number or more Nazis in exchange, it was said.

Musy is reported to have contacted allied governments, which reportedly made no objection to the deal providing the Germans to be exchanged are not on the allied war criminals list.

Nazi 'Potato Masher' Puts Chicagoan in Hospital

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 25.—A Nazi "potato masher," which scored a near miss on Pvt. Edward P. Meingasner, 20, of 10313 Avenue L, Chicago, landed the Chicagoan in an army hospital in England recently. Flown back to England in an ambulance plane, he was attended by another Chicagoan, Capt. A. W. Feldman, 3514 Pine Grove av., ward surgeon at the hospital where he is rapidly recovering. Meingasner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Meingasner of the Avenue L address where his sister, Doris, and brothers, Robert and John, also live.

VICHYITES PLOT IN COMIC OPERA NAZI RETREAT

Petain Protests; Laval Goes on Strike.

BY JERJE GRANBERG.

[Swedish newspaper correspondent.]

[Copyright: 1945: By the Associated Press.]

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Feb. 25 (AP).—The "little Vichy" of Sigmaringen, Swabian city of the Hohenzollerns in southern Germany, 30 miles from the Switzerland border, has degenerated into a first rate comic opera.

Arrow points to Sigmaringen.

Descriptions of life among the French refugees who have settled there are absolutely grotesque.

The area around the state castle of the Prince of Hohenzollern, where Marshal Petain now resides, has been granted a form of "French sovereignty" by the Nazis on the theory that this gives stronger authority to the decrees and proclamations which pour out from Sigmaringen.

Laval Goes on Strike.

The white-haired old marshal living in the cold, impractical palace stubbornly regards himself as a prisoner of the Germans and stresses this standpoint by incessant protests.

Pierre Laval, immediately after his arrival at Sigmaringen, was said to have gone on strike because Hitler refused his offer to have his son-in-law attempt to negotiate a peace between Germany and the United States.

Marcel Deat, Jacques Doriot, now reported dead, and other French collaborationists were reported to have quarreled violently among themselves immediately after their arrival from Vichy. It seems they just could not agree on a just distribution of power and splendor in this comic opera state.

Endless Intrigue.

There has been endless sulking, plotting, and hating. All the French leaders brought their own staffs with them, mostly youngsters who in turn drove elegant automobiles and brought along their beautiful fiancees and mistresses from Paris.

These "staff boys" with their girls, day in and day out, raced along the roads around Sigmaringen to the great annoyance of the German populace. The gasoline they had brought with them finally gave out. No additional rations were granted and now you can buy as many fine French-made cars as you want at moderate prices.

After the invasion several waves of political refugees arrived from France, Belgium and Holland.

Other collaborationists swarmed into Berlin. Among them were many newspaper men. The German propaganda ministry's press club soon became known as the "club of doom" because many of the Frenchmen were on Gen. De Gaulle's black list and will face death tribunals after the war.

While traveling from Berlin toward the Baltic recently I passed mile after mile of refugee columns. Every village was thronged. I recall a Berlin housewife who returned empty handed after an early morning shopping tour but who was overwhelmed by the sight of a two mile caravan of refugees plodding thru the capital from the east.

Dreamless Trance.

Stories of thousands of refugees freezing to death on the roads circulated in Berlin. In the capital, railway stations, waiting rooms, staircases and train sheds were jammed with homeless people. They were people without hope or future and with fixed expressions of desperation on their cold and worn faces. They huddled there with small bundles in a dreamless trance—waiting.

The feeling generally in Berlin is one of hopelessness and resignation. And yet you cannot actually speak of apathy but rather fatalism. Despite it all the Germans obviously still are prepared in general to defend themselves and the few poor possessions they have saved.

RETIRED FIREMAN'S HOME LOOTED.

John Stahl, 5400 Greenwood av., retired city fireman, reported to the police that burglars stole two radios, two watches, three rings and currency, all valued at $250, from his home.

How to make a WAR GARDEN

[This is the first of a series of articles on vegetable gardening. This series will be published each Monday, Wednesday, and Friday until March 12 when garden information will be printed in the daily feature "Day by Day on the Farm."]

BY BEN MARKLAND.

THE American home gardener, whose diligence with hoe and cultivator has resulted in the production of almost half of the vegetables raised in this country for the last three years, will be called upon again this season to produce vital foods for his family.

Grover Hill, undersecretary of agriculture, recently told a Chicago audience that "the only way Americans can be certain of having all the vegetables they need in 1945 is to grow those vegetables in their own yards."

Based on Experience.

This year, as in the past, THE TRIBUNE will publish gardening information based on work done in the test gardens on the Wheaton farm. These plots, covering more than 30,000 square feet, are cultivated by professional gardeners. Recommendations of vegetable varieties, planting periods and cultivating methods will be based on experiments made in the farm gardens during the last 15 years.

Most of the material to be published will deal with vegetable culture, with occasional articles on lawn care, cultivation of small fruits, and care of fruit trees.

Weather authorities and horticulturists believe that gardeners may be able to plant earlier than usual this season because of weather conditions last fall and this winter. There were deficiencies of rain and snow every month from June thru December last year, the total precipitation for the seven months being more than 10 inches below normal. As a result, the topsoil was dry when covered with the eight inch snow of Dec. 10.

Little Frost in Ground.

Because of the dryness of the topsoil and the insulating effect of the heavy snow, there has been little frost in the ground all winter and none now. Consequently the spring drying period should be short, allowing gardeners to plant hardy vegetables in late March or early April.

Commercial truck gardeners in Cook county commonly plant peas, onions, spinach, lettuce, and radishes between March 25 and April 10, with little possibility of weather damage. Information on such early plantings, as well as on the selection of a garden site, selection of garden tools, and soil preparation, will be contained in later articles in this series.

Thru a CHICAGO TRIBUNE photograph published last Thursday, relatives have learned that Pvt. Richard K. Anderson, 20, of Joliet, is probably a prisoner of war in Germany. Previously he had been reported missing in action Dec. 16 on the western front. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Anderson, 405 N. Center st., Joliet. Mrs. Anderson said she feels sure that her son is among the soldiers in the picture of Americans captured in the German counter-offensive. He went overseas in November and had been at the front five days when he was reported missing.

3 CHICAGOLAND SOLDIERS WIN BATTLE HONORS

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. FORCES ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Feb. 25.—Two Chicagoans and an Illinois soldier recently received citations and bronze stars for meritorious action in combat. They are:

With the 83d division: Theodore Maheras, 14 E. Walton st., Chicago, was with the 329th regiment at Bovigny, Belgium. Maheras' company was attacked and an accompanying tank received a direct hit wounding six riflemen in the vicinity. Maheras volunteered to aid a chaplain move the wounded to safety. The Germans held fire on an 88 millimeter gun until they rendered first aid and evacuated the wounded men.

Leo Mileski of 5332 Wrightwood av., Chicago, with the 329th regiment near Rolsdorf, Germany, volunteered to lay telephone wire across 1,500 yards of flat, unprotected terrain after his company was held up by German mortar, machine gun, and artillery fire. After Mileski had strung his wire enemy observers detected him and concentrated mortar fire, but he crawled to safety. John Good of Curran, Ill., with the 329th regiment, volunteered for a patrol across the Roer river seeking to determine enemy strength. The patrol reached observation points in enemy territory and held off the Germans for six hours with rifle fire, then returned to the American lines after losing five men.

MORE THAN 50 HELD AFTER ASSASSINATION OF EGYPT'S PREMIER

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 25 (AP).—More than 50 persons were arrested in Cairo today following the assassination of Premier Ahmed Maher Pasha in the chamber of deputies last night. Police said the majority of the arrests were precautionary. Two of those arrested had been near the spot where the alleged assassin, Mahmoud el Issawi, fired the fatal shots at the premier.

Ahmed Maher was given a state funeral today. The procession, one of the longest ever seen in Egypt, included detachments of the Egyptian army and contingents of British, South African, Indian, and American troops.

The assassin, police said, is a 26 year old lawyer who was interned during the first year of the war for pro-German activities. King Farouk appointed Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrashy Pasha, former foreign minister, to succeed Ahmed Maher.

Greek Demonstrations Banned After Violence

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The Greek government has placed a ban on all public demonstrations following "serious disturbances" Saturday at the trial of 22 former cabinet ministers charged with collaboration, the British radio reported last night in a broadcast recorded by the FCC. At the trial Saturday, the broadcast continued, "some very violent incidents" occurred and the president of the court was forced to suspend proceedings when defense attorneys raised objections to its legality.

Argentina and Germany Arrange Repatriation

LONDON, Feb. 25 (AP).—The German radio said tonight that negotiations have been completed for repatriation of Argentine and German diplomats and that "the group of Argentine diplomats who have been in Sweden for some time will leave soon aboard the Swedish liner Drottningholm."

AMERICA WANTS COMPETITION

Only American Initiative Can Preserve it in World Trade

AMERICANS generally agree upon what constitutes a desirable pattern of international economic relationships. We want an expanding world trade, with minimum recourse to government-imposed trade barriers and discriminatory trading arrangements, and offering ample scope for competitive private enterprise. Because they are necessary to such trade, we want also stability of exchange rates, and national currencies that are mutually convertible at least for the settlement of current accounts. We want, too, arrangements to facilitate long-term capital loans with security to the lender and advantage to the borrower.

Few other nations subscribe to these aims with conviction. Some reject them flatly as impractical under the conditions likely to prevail during the postwar period, or achievable only at prohibitive cost to their domestic economies.

Unless, therefore, we can formulate a practical and comprehensive program to carry out our aims, and convince other nations that we will take a sustained and responsible part in making it effective, the international trade of the world surely will be conducted under a system of exchange controls, bilateral agreements, cartel bargains, import quotas, and direct government purchasing arrangements.

Why are we opposed to managed world trade, and for competitive world trade?

First, we are against rigged and managed international markets because we know that successful participation necessitates a comparable degree of control over the domestic economy as well.

Second, we believe that the United States will be able to compete successfully in world markets, even though we have, and intend to maintain, wage scales far higher than those of the nations whose competition we must meet.

There is impressive evidence to substantiate the soundness of this conviction:

1. Wage scales, of themselves, do not determine the competitive position. They are meaningful only when translated into labor costs, by dividing wage rates by units produced. A recent War Production Board study shows that in manufacturing industries generally, during the period immediately before the present war, production per man hour in the United States exceeded that in the United Kingdom, Germany and Soviet Russia by a ratio of more than 2½ to 1, and that of Japan by more than 4 to 1. When comparison is made with available wage data, it appears that our labor costs are generally on a competitive plane.

2. Perhaps the best evidence of our ability to compete in export markets is the record of our demonstrated capacity to do so in the past. During the entire period between World Wars I and II, the United States consistently commanded a greater share of the world's export trade than any other nation, although the United Kingdom took a larger percentage of world imports.

3. We have been particularly successful in world trade competition in the export of machinery, vehicles, a variety of manufactured specialties, and certain agricultural products. Except in the last-named field, there is every evidence that we enjoy genuine competitive advantage over other nations, and this advantage will have been increased rather than diminished by developments during the Second World War.

☆ ☆ ☆

It is clear that, on a price basis, we shall be able to compete successfully in postwar markets in numerous lines. It is equally clear that such an opportunity is by no means of negligible importance to our own economy as a whole. During the years in which the censuses were taken between 1909 and 1939, our exports amounted to from 7 to 16 percent of our entire production of movable goods. In the year 1938 our exports in each of the following lines accounted for more than 10 per cent of total domestic production of the particular product.

Crude Materials: Phosphate rock (51.5), cotton (30.5), tobacco (29.4).

Foodstuffs and Beverages: Linseed (49.4), dried fruits (36.2), canned sardines (29.4), rice (21.0), fresh pears (15.9), canned salmon (13.8), canned asparagus (13.2), canned fruits (13.0), wheat (12.2), lard (11.7).

Semi-Manufactures and Finished Manufactures: Refined copper (53.1), paraffin wax (46.3), gum turpentine (42.6), carbon black (40.8), gum rosin (38.0), borax (35.9), crude sulphur (35.6), aircraft and parts (26.8), office appliances (22.3), carbons and electrodes (21.8), printing and bookbinding machinery (18.2), agricultural implements and machinery (17.0), biologic pharmaceuticals (15.3), industrial machinery (14.4), dental instruments and supplies (14.3), automobiles (14.1), benzol (13.3), goat and kid upper leather (12.8), refined lead (12.0), radio apparatus (11.8), caustic soda (11.4), refined mineral oils (10.6).

How are we to explain the skepticism of other nations toward an order which to us seems so clearly to represent not only our interest but the long-range interest of the world as well?

Soviet Russia, of course, is committed to conducting its external trade through its central government. But what of the United Kingdom? Why are there so many British voices that counsel the abandonment of what has been Britain's traditional position for more than a century? If we can understand that, we shall understand the dissent from our position of most nations whose economic positions have weakened and whose fiscal problems have multiplied during the two World Wars and the ill-starred period between them.

Essentially, their case is this:

Partly, they were forced into managed external trade policies by Axis self-sufficiency programs, adopted for aggressive war. That can be corrected only by crushing the Axis, and by establishing a world security system that will make self-sufficiency a less compelling need.

But primarily, the reluctance of peaceably inclined nations to forego restrictive controls over postwar foreign trade stems from a deep-seated fear that their efforts to meet payment balances arising from normal foreign trade would force a deflation of their internal economies, affecting prices, credit, wages, and finally employment. Faced with the choice, as they see it, between making adjustments in foreign trade or in their domestic economies, they lean toward the former as, at worst, the lesser of two evils.

Since the kind of world trade system we seek is dependent upon international arrangements to assure reasonable stability of exchange rates between national currencies, we are challenged to find a formula that both will provide this and allay other nations' legitimate fears with respect to their domestic economies.

But at least two major steps toward resolving such doubts can be taken upon our own initiative without recourse to the intricate process of international negotiation.

One is the rational overhauling of our tariff system, to provide other nations with increased opportunity to export to us. We can, and should, do this in a way that avoids undue cost to any segment of our economy.

The other, and probably the greatest contribution we can make toward winning a reluctant world to our point of view, will be to offer convincing evidence that we are ready and able to provide a high level of employment in the United States. If we can do that, the rest of the world will wish to expose itself to our influence rather than to insulate against it, since prosperity here is the greatest single contributing factor to world-wide prosperity.

Balance of payment problems are minimized in a world of thriving trade. Britain would have little reason to resort to exchange controls if the total of postwar world imports and exports reaches an 80 billion dollar level. She may well be in a desperate plight if it should revert to the 1935 level of 40 billions.

The United States wants a world in which private enterprise and competition play a major role. To obtain such a world will require a wiser, more understanding and firmer world leadership than this nation, or perhaps any nation, ever has exerted heretofore.

FOREIGNERS GET EDGE IN PLANS FOR SHIP SALES

House Fight Expected on WSA Proposals.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—The house merchant marine and fisheries committee this week will open hearings on the war shipping administration's bill for the post-war sale of the mightiest merchant marine fleet ever assembled.

The bill will set the pattern for approximately 5,000 merchant ships built by the maritime commission to operate on world shipping lanes to keep allied armies in action in the theaters of war thruout the world.

A battle is expected to develop over provisions of the bill which discriminate between classes of citizens and give foreigners benefits denied some classes of American citizens.

Tax Controversy Expected.

A controversy also is expected to develop over the tax exemption given some classes of American shipping operators, which is denied to nonsubsidized competitors.

The bill provides that ship owners who received peace time subsidies shall be able to purchase merchant ships at 50 per cent of the pre-war domestic construction cost. The war construction cost is approximately 35 per cent higher than the peace time cost. Nonsubsidized lines, of which there are 13, must pay the full pre-war domestic cost, or twice as much as subsidized lines.

Twelve subsidized lines are operating on specified routes thruout the world. In the 1937-'38 fiscal year these lines made 792 voyages and received a total subsidy of $8,753,769, or approximately $11,000 a voyage.

Subsidy Total Rises.

In the 1940-'41 fiscal year the subsidy increased to $13,061,301, or more than $17,000 a voyage for 751 voyages. Since 1941 all subsidies have stopped because all vessels of subsidized or nonsubsidized lines are on a charter basis.

Subsidies are to be resumed after the war, when the subsidy act of 1936 returns to operation. The theory of the subsidy is to reimburse certain American ship owners for the difference in cost of operating American vessels and the operating costs of foreign vessels which are cheaper because foreign building costs and labor is cheaper.

Subsidized lines are restricted to certain routes. They must operate between North Atlantic ports and north European ports or between North Atlantic ports and Mediterranean ports or between west coast ports and the orient and the like.

Allowance Held Too Great.

Unsubsidized lines can go wherever they please. Owners of unsubsidized lines hold that the subsidy difference between foreign and American lines is too great and contend that if the owners of subsidized lines would spend the time they devote to securing subsidies to obtaining cargoes, the whole subsidy program could be scrapped.

The maritime commission theory in giving the 50 per cent benefit to subsidized lines is that they need this differential because they are restricted to defined routes.

The commission has offered no explanation for its differentiation between potential foreign buyers and non-subsidized American buyers. The bill provides for the sale to foreigners, whose routes are not restricted, of any ships found not to be necessary to the foreign or domestic commerce of the United States for 50 per cent of pre-war domestic cost, which is equal to 100 per cent of the pre-war cost of builders ships at half the cost to nonyards.

This provision of the bill, which would give foreign shipping interests ships at half the cost to nonsubsidized American lines, is expected to draw heavy criticism from a number of Republican and Democratic members of the committee.

During the hearing, these members also plan to attack the tax exemption provision of the 1936 subsidy act. Under this act subsidized lines were enabled to place profits in tax exempt reserve funds which were created for the purpose of buying new ships and making improvements.

Profits were small and taxes were low at the time the act was passed. Since, however, profits have grown tremendously.

The Inquiring Camera Girl
BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Mrs. J. L. Williams, Marshalltown, Ia.]

THE QUESTION.

Do you think men are as brave patients as women or do they require more sympathy and waiting on?

WHERE ASKED.

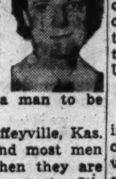
THE ANSWERS.

Jo Sana, 5130 S. Rockwell st.—The men require more sympathy and waiting on. It's usually the big, strapping, hefty fellow who is the biggest baby. It's probably because most of the time he is the center of attention and craves it when he's ill. Men ask more questions than women and like to know what will happen.

Lois Dunbar, Wilmington, Ill.—I find men very independent. They don't like to admit they're ill tho they are flat on their backs and have a fever. Women expect more service because they are usually more particular. Many of them expect the kind of care they give at home when members of their family are ill.

Syme Vaataja, Houghton, Mich.—It seems the public thinks men are bigger sissies when they are ill than women. I find it to the contrary. Men accept their illness in a matter of fact way. Maybe it's because they're sympathetic toward the nurses—or maybe it's the current man power shortage.

Mrs. E. A. McFarland, 1900 Polk st.—This is a matter of controversy among us nurses. We don't agree at all. I believe it depends entirely upon the individuals. Some men are brave and so are some women. When you find a man who isn't brave he seems such a sissy because it isn't like a man to be afraid.



Mary Ellen Hall, Coffeyville, Kas.—Many women cry and most men swear when they are afraid or upset. It's a way of expelling their pent up emotions. When a woman starts to cry we naturally try to make her feel better and perhaps we baby her a little. The men seem to get over their troubles by themselves.

Shirley Graffam, 811 Pine av.—I can't say men are braver than women but they do require less sympathy and waiting on. I think that's because most men read more than women. They're interested in news and read more newspapers. Women spend many hours thinking, perhaps about their family, and their illnesses.

PARIS, Feb. 25 (AP). — A mass meeting called today by the Parisian liberation committee to protest food rationing drew great crowds, mostly women, who shouted angrily at mention of the food ministry. Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—Thomas Jefferson, neglected saint of the Democratic party, has been restored to his pedestal by the party leaders with the confident expectation of increasing the take in the gate receipts. And Andy Jackson has been unhorsed.

Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic national committee, announced today that "Jefferson day banquets will be held thruout the country on April 13, the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, founder of the Democratic party, to supplant Jackson day dinners held annually for the last several years."

Various versions of the reasons for deserting Jackson and taking up with Jefferson again are afloat. One of them is that the bigwigs of the party never were reconciled to the displacement of Jefferson by Jackson as the party hero, which was engineered by President Roosevelt, and that they took advantage of Mr. Roosevelt's absence from the country to unhorse the warrior of the Hermitage and restore the sage of Monticello.

Neglected Jefferson.

There was reason for Mr. Roosevelt's partiality for Jackson. No sooner had Mr. Roosevelt's New Deal begun to unfold than Jefferson became neglected in the house he had founded and was adopted by the Republicans. Soon the Republicans were assailing the Democrats with quotations from Jefferson condemning virtually all the tenets of the New Deal. They twitted the Democrats with Jefferson on every stump and it wasn't long before Mr Roosevelt and his fellow New Dealers couldn't bear to hear the name of the great apostle of democracy mentioned. His birthday went unnoticed by the President and by the party year after year.

But Mr. Roosevelt, bereft of Jefferson, was able to fall back on Jackson. He has fancied himself in his speeches as Washington, as Lincoln, never as Jefferson, but most frequently as Jackson, who is his favorite patron saint. Coming into power as the New Dealer self-consecrated to driving the money changers from the temple he liked to think of himself as a reincarnation of the man who overthrew the United States bank.

Old Hickory Rises.

So, it fell out that the Democrats in the reign of Franklin Delano celebrated Jackson day, Jan. 8, anniversary of Old Hickory's victory over the British at New Orleans. They celebrated it with dinners in every state, for tickets to which the government job holders and other party faithful were shaken down for all the traffic would bear. One hundred dollars a plate was the price in Washington, with a personal appearance by the President as the drawing card, and lesser amounts in other cities where his words of cheer for New Dealers and anathema for all others could be heard only by radio. The take was impressive—$300,000 or more for the party coffers when the shaking down was particularly good.

A few years ago the Democrats did desert Jackson temporarily in order to grab George Washington but that was purely political tactics, said to have emanated from the fertile political mind of Mr. Roosevelt. The Republicans announced a national program of speeches for Washington's birthday whereupon the Democrats held their dinners on that day for the purpose of stealing the limelight from their political rivals. But either because their hearts were not in the veneration of Washington or because the take was not so good they abandoned the father of his country.

Seek Record Sum.

In re-adopting Jefferson the Democrats are going to strive for record breaking gate receipts to be devoted exclusively to the fight to retain control of congress in the 1946 elections.

"Ordinarily," said Hannegan, "funds that have been contributed to the party by those attending the dinners are simply added to the general fund of the national committee, to be expended later as needed. This year, however, we are specifically earmarking every dollar of the contributions made in connection with the Jefferson day dinner for one purpose only—the election campaign of 1946.

"The importance of the 1946 elections stresses the necessity for this change in policy. The administration program embracing the goals of permanent peace and full employment is a program calling for the greatest possible national unity. We feel that this election is crucial in determining the success of that entire program, for a national government that must straddle a congress dominated by one major party and an executive administration of the other party has never been capable of such unity. That is why we are placing so much emphasis on the elections of 1946."

In order to comply with the office of defense transportation ruling against unnecessary travel Hannegan said that instead of state dinners there will be a multiplicity of city and other local dinners requiring only local transportation for those who attend.

CHICAGOAN RESCUED FROM CAMP ON LUZON COMES BACK TO U. S.

Louis C. Zelis, 31, of 3137 W. 42d pl., a member of Company B of the 192d tank battalion, who was rescued Jan. 30 from Camp Cabanatuan on Luzon, where he had been held prisoner by the Japanese since the fall of Bataan, arrived at Hamilton field near San Francisco last night, he wired his mother, Mrs. Mary Zelis.

Louis C. Zelis.

The telegram said that he is being taken to an army hospital in the San Francisco area.

Company B of the 192d tank battalion was composed almost entirely of men from Maywood. Few were found in Philippine prison camps. Most of the survivors of the company are believed to have been transferred to camps on the Japanese mainland.

To Span Oceans

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25 (AP).—Pan American World Airways today announced it had ordered a half dozen six engined land planes each capable of carrying 204 passengers and 15,300 pounds of cargo nonstop to Europe.

The planes will be built by the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft corporation.

The contract calls for up to 15 of the huge planes, each weighing 320,000 pounds, or two and a half times that of a B-29 Super Fortress.

With a wing span of 230 feet, the plane is 182 feet long and has a tail that rises 57 feet from the ground. Its estimated cruising speed will be between 310 and 342 miles an hour, its range will be 4,200 miles [New York to London is 3,500 miles], and its payload 50,000 pounds. Elapsed time to London is figured at less than 10 hours.

Consolidated Vultee said one pilot can handle the new giant.

Pan American said it proposes to use the planes on international routes where the severest foreign flag competition will be met.

STRIKING SHIP WORKERS FACE DRAFT THREAT

Pascagoula, Miss., Feb. 25 (AP).—State selective service officials intimated today that a considerable number of the 10,000 workers who struck yesterday at the Ingalls ship building yards here face military induction.

Col. Lawrence W. Long, state director of selective service, in a statement from his Jackson office, outlined the procedure under which any man in class II-A or II-B who voluntarily leaves the employment for which he is deferred, can be inducted.

"In my opinion, it is not in the best interest of the war effort for registrants to voluntarily leave the Ingalls ship yards," Col. Long said. "Local boards under selective service rules and regulations have been authorized to proceed with such types of cases."

E. L. Mancil, president of the local metal trades council [AFL] at Pascagoula, said yesterday that the strike was voted because of "delays in action on grievances."

CAPT. RETTINGER KILLED IN BURMA; EX-U. I. GRID STAR

Rettinger played full back on the Illinois teams in 1938, 1939, and 1940. He entered the air transport command in July, 1941, after graduating. He was lost on a flight from India to China.

OPA AID QUITS; CHARGES UNION RUNS THE OFFICE

BY DOUGLAS McINTOSH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 25.—Edwin G. Wise, accounting executive in the Milwaukee district office of the price administration, said today he has resigned his job because he is "sick and tired" of union politics within the Milwaukee OPA organization.

Wise said the union he referred to was the AFL American Association of Government Employes and asserted union members dominate the administration of the office, control promotions, and dictate the discharges of nonunion employes.

Majority Are Members.

Wise, who is 75 and a former Chicago real estate dealer, said he sent his resignation yesterday to his immediate superior, Harold B. Eversole, regional accounting executive in Chicago, and was subsequently notified by Harold T. Smith, district OPA administrator here, that the resignation had been accepted.

All except two or three of the administrative officers in the Milwaukee office are members of the government employes union, Wise said. He named Smith as a member of the union but the district administrator, in a telephone conversation, denied that he was or ever had been a member.

Rips "Incompetents."

Of eight staff officers under Smith, Wise said, four are union members, including directors of the rent control, administrative and information operations. He said "incompetent persons" had been placed in top positions in the Milwaukee office because of union influence, and that union members had been jumped over the heads of nonmembers to supervisory positions.

"I still believe in the principles of the OPA but the way the office in Milwaukee is conducted disgusts me, and the only thing for me to do was resign," Wise said. "I couldn't conscientiously continue as district accounting executive under the conditions."

Wise said he intends to reenter the real estate business in Chicago. Before joining the OPA in March, 1944, he lived in Chicago at 7300 S. Shore drive.

Diversification!

What a diversification of extracurricular interests is found under this one Schenley "roof!" These interests are just as broad and just as numerous as the diversification of the business itself, and what a lot of pleasure the men and women who are employed here get out of these plus values!

About a generation ago there was a rather popular paraphrasing of an old saying, "If business interferes with your pleasure—quit your business." Our people here at Schenley don't have to quit business to get the pleasure they find in doing many worthwhile things after business hours.

Today it is this recorder's privilege to say something about one group of Schenley folk which goes along quietly and unobtrusively doing an extra job with a wartime flavor. We have reference to the members of Schenley Post No. 1190, American Legion. We really had to dig out with a spade, figuratively speaking, some of the good things they have done. Through several benefit entertainments they have raised money, first, for the purchase of a rolling kitchen which was donated for the use of civilians in bombed areas in England; then came nine "iron lungs"; next we find three thousand books for the boys in service; then, cash contributions to wartime drives. And last but not least they have organized a rehabilitation committee to assist discharged servicemen to literally get back on their feet.

Of course, Schenley people aren't alone in doing things like these. Men and women in many other American business enterprises are doing the same.

But we do believe that when mechanics are found combined with "humanics" in proper proportions in any business, you have a formula that inevitably reflects itself in the manufactured product. It must be so.

RADICAL EDITOR LET IN ON OSS SUPER SECRETS

Loyalty Will Be Probed by House Group.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—The communistic affiliations of a key official in the super-secret office of strategic services were disclosed tonight on the eve of a congressional inquiry into the army's commissioning of Communists.

The OSS, headed by Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan, functions under the joint chiefs of staff, Generals Marshall and Arnold and Admirals Leahy and King. It enlists the services of army and navy personnel and has access to the most closely guarded security operations.

A member of the special house military affairs subcommittee, which will probe the war department's new policy opening highly secret duties to Communists, expressed amazement that one David Zablodowsky had been installed in the OSS with the title of "senior economic editor."

His Record Recalled.

Zablodowsky's record with communist organizations is a lengthy one. He was a contributor to the Daily Worker, official communist daily; member of the editorial board of "Fight," official organ of the American League Against War and Fascism, cited as subversive by Atty. Gen. Biddle; endorser of the Memorial day youth peace parade in 1938, a communist movement; and president of the communist controled Book and Magazine guild.

"I shall insist that the subcommittee investigate this appointment," the subcommittee member said. "The OSS, as coördinator of our intelligence infomation, should be the most scrupulous of all agencies in barring employes about whose loyalty there may be doubt. I can hardly believe that the chiefs of staff are aware of the record of this man."

The Dec. 30 war department directive, which the subcommittee will investigate, provides that no prejudicial action shall be taken against any person in the army "on the basis of membership in the Communist party or allegiance to the Communist party unless it can be proved such loyalty supersedes loyalty to the United States."

Red Group Assailed.

The American League Against War and Fascism, with which Zablodowsky was highly connected, was thus characterized by Atty. Gen. Biddle:

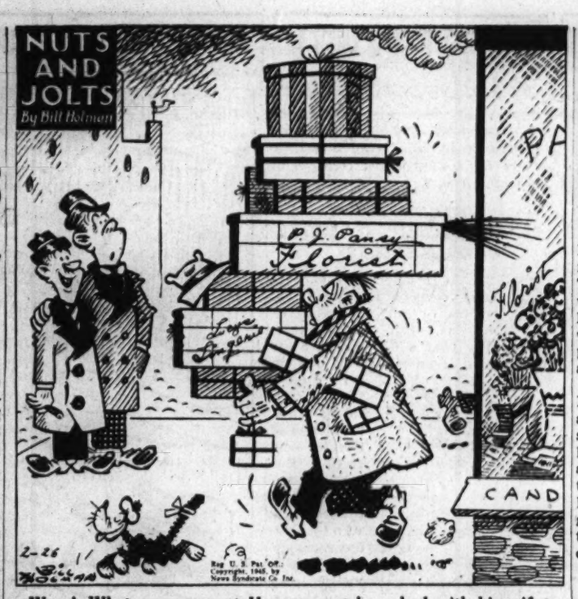
"It is the first of three organizations established in the United States in an effort to create public sentiment on behalf of a foreign policy adapted to the interests of the soviet union. It called attention to the 'black cloud of imperialist war' hanging over the world and pointed to the national recovery administration, the civilian conservation corps and the other policies of the Roosevelt administration as indications of America's preparedness for war and fascism.

"Only in the soviet union, it declared, had the basic cause of war monopolistic capitalism been removed. . . . Only by arousing the masses within each country for active struggle against the war policies of their own imperialist governments can war be combatted."

Hailed by Browder.

Earl Browder, general secretary and leader of the Communist party and president of its successor, the Communist Political association, called the league a transmission belt of the Communist party, the attorney general noted.

At its ninth annual convention, the Communist party resolved that it would work untiringly to help widen the basis of the league . . . to make it the main instrument "for the defense of the soviet union, according to the justice department's official findings. Browder was vice president of the league and many communist leaders were on its executive board.



Wow! What an argument Harvey must have had with his wife.

ASSERTS F. D. R. OUTSMARTED IN GRAB OF POLAND

Russia's grab of one-third of Poland was approved by the Crimean conference of the "Big Three" because President Roosevelt was "outsmarted by unscrupulous statesmen of Europe," the widely read Roman Catholic weekly paper, Our Sunday Visitor, said in an editorial yesterday.

The paper, edited by Bishop John Francis Noll of Fort Wayne, Ind., assailed Mr. Roosevelt for ignoring sympathies and aspirations of millions of Poles who voted for him, and Stalin for delaying his march toward Berlin until he could play his offensive as a trump card in the game he engineered to take Polish territory, including the nation's second city of Lwow.

Points to Stalin's Action.

"Invited to this tripartite conference, Stalin first kept his armies idle, so that Germany would have plenty of troops to exhaust our forces in the west," the editorial said. "Then, having saved his armies and allowing us to be played out, he organized his offensive and smashed thru almost to Berlin, thus being able to arrive at the conference in the strongest possible position."

"This was the saddest day of the war," was how the editorial referred to the conference decision on Poland, which it said "committed ourselves to a program which goes against principle and integrity."

U. S. Outplayed, Editor Says.

The paper said it was clear that Russia has outplayed the United States. The editorial recalled that the issue of Polish independence started the war, and that while England and France jumped to Poland's defense, Russia helped Hitler from behind. Then Hitler and Stalin split the country, a division Mr. Roosevelt now justifies in his ignorance of European power politics, it was charged.

"We were 'sold' this war on the basis of the Atlantic charter and the four freedoms," the editorial continued. "Think of how many bond ads these have illustrated. Our bond money has helped to provide her [Russia] with military equipment and funds for propagandizing non-communist areas."

The editorial agreed with the view that any government set up in Poland will be subject to the "veto power" of Foreign Commissar Molotov of Russia.

UNIONIST URGES U. S. SEIZURE OF TIRE CORD MILLS

New Bedford, Mass., Feb. 25 [Special].—George L. Baldanzi, executive vice president of the CIO Textile Workers union, said today that if the government will take over the Fisk and Firestone tire cord mills here the union will man them "in no time."

Shortage of workers at the Fisk and Firestone mills, which produce 34 per cent of the tire cord fabric for the allied nations, has caused a bottleneck in tire production which the war man power commission is seeking to solve by a labor draft. Hearings will begin Tuesday on appeals by 75 workers in local fine goods mills ordered to go to work for the tire cord plants.

Baldanzi told 3,000 workers at an installation of union officers that "Fisk and Firestone have been the most anti-union mills in this city."

If Your Advertising Gets Across To Him

There's enough of it to finance a war. Better still—enough to finance a prosperous lasting peace. The summed up billions of today's Wage Earner millions are four times that of 1918 America. That fact alone explains the difference between the last war's depression and tomorrow's opportunity.

America's Wage Earner millions can buy tomorrow—and will—if they can be sold.

Advertising alone—your advertising—is the only power big enough, cheap enough—to turn this vast buying power into earning power and jobs. But your advertising must reach these millions where they best respond.

For that job, you need the kind of medium that gets across to Wage Earners.

There is one such medium that gets across to them better than all others. That medium took their life stories, their problems, their aspirations and made magazines of them. Those magazines were the first to talk their language—to meet them face to face—man to man. And your advertisements in these magazines can share this position of "family friend."

Yes, Macfadden Publications have become spokesman in the magazine world of Wage Earner America . . . and Macfadden homes have become the directing centers of opinion in every Wage Earner neighborhood in the nation.

When your advertising sells this audience the rest of Wage Earner America goes to market with them. When that happens—postwar prosperity is assured.

THE SHOTGUN WEDDING.

Turkey is the 37th nation to declare war on Germany. For five and one-half years the Turks kept out of the struggle, but they were informed by Mr. Roosevelt, Marshal Stalin, and Prime Minister Churchill that if they didn't sign a declaration by March 1 they wouldn't qualify as an "associated nation" entitled to attend the San Francisco conference April 25 to put the Dumbarton Oaks program into permanent form.

The Turks are not going to change the military situation in any important particular. The declaration of war is a piece of pantomime. The same generalization applies to the declarations of such Latin American countries as Venezuela, Ecuador, and Peru, which also have been bludgeoned into line by the author of the "good neighbor" policy. All of these nations realize that they are going to have to live in a world dominated by the big powers. They have to put on a smiling countenance when confronted with blackmail. The admission of a state of war means nothing. It is simply the price of admission to Mr. Roosevelt's new world order.

The Turks, especially, hardly needed to be reminded of the facts of life. The Russian bear has been growling at them and they easily recall the age-old aspirations of the Russians for access to warm water ports. The Dardanelles are the main consideration. The Turks hope that they can maintain a precarious title by joining the gentlemen's club. They may be disabused of the notion, for the example of Poland, a belligerent since the first day of the war, is before them. Normally brothers in the same lodge do not rob one another, but nobody can take that for granted.

The era of peace and brotherhood thus gets off to a fine start. The comity of nations is based upon mutual distrust and the dread of the weaker for the stronger. When Little Red Riding Hood paid her call, she called the wolf "grandmother," but the facts were rather more unpleasant. The Turks and the Peruvians have been sufficiently intelligent to notice the fangs bared by the smile.

The new order conceived by Mr. Roosevelt can be unhesitatingly branded as a fraud upon trusting humanity. The same coercion practiced upon the small nations is also exercised against any American citizen who has the courage to protest. At the best, he is called a "Fascist"; at the worst, he is dubbed the author of the third World war.

The seeds of that undefined conflict are already planted. When it will come, and where it will come, and against whom it will come are not now known, but the gift of prophecy is not required to predict that come it will. Clemenceau heard a child crying in 1919. The child's child is crying now.

"WHERE WILL YOU GET THE MONEY?"

Rep. Robert F. Rich of Pennsylvania returned to congress last month and started asking the same old question. He got tired of asking it a couple of years ago and didn't run for reelection. But in his absence the national debt had bounded up to an unprecedented height, so that the New Deal is now asking an increase on the limit to 300 billion dollars. Mr. Rich thought he had better come back to congress and start asking his question again. He did. Every day the New Dealers hear him inquire, "Where will you get the money?"

Nobody ever answered to Mr. Rich's satisfaction. The other day he was demanding where congress would get 15 million dollars for the farm census. Another Republican, Rep. John Taber of New York, undertook to answer him. It may have been that Mr. Taber was a trifle impatient, but he seems to have hit the nail on the head.

"O, I would not ask them that question," said Mr. Taber. "They print it."

A FIT TOOL.

In the hulking Rep. Hook of Michigan, whose profane language caused a brawl the other day on the floor of the house, the Communists have a fitting instrument for their drive to prevent the congressional committee on un-American activities from exposing their treasonable plots. Hook is not only devoid of public morals but suspect as to his private morals as well.

In the early days of the New Deal it was disclosed that while he was drawing $10,000 a year and perquisites as a congressman, he was having his father and two of his brothers supported out of public relief funds. The state of Michigan at that time apparently lacked in its statutes the salutary provision that children capable of doing so should be responsible for the support of their parents, and what the law could not compel him to do Hook did not have the decency to do of his own volition.

This ornament of congress moved on to a new low in legislative behavior by introducing into the Congressional Record a forged letter, the purpose of which was to smear Congressman Dies, then the chairman of the committee on un-American activities. Hook first sought to brazen out this fraud, but when the forger was found and confessed, and the original of the letter was found and proved to be the crudest kind of fake, he abjectly pleaded that he be allowed to withdraw the matter from the Record in order to avoid the ignominy of having it stricken by the vote of his colleagues. Hook's tool in procuring the forgery was a former government employe who had been fired for disclosing confidential information to communist newspapers.

The voters of Michigan repudiated Hook after his part in the forgery plot was disclosed, but he managed to crawl back last fall with the aid of the PAC. Now he is trying to restrict the activities of the committee. In support of his bill he is soliciting opinions from people whose connections with Communists were exposed by the committee when it was under the chairmanship of Rep. Dies. Hook's plea is that the committee was "irresponsible" in unearthing evidence of the fellow-traveler activities of some of the complainants whose beefs he is gathering.

Any irresponsibility that could have been charged to the Dies committee arose from the fact that it was constantly impeded in its efforts by the Roosevelt administration, which sheltered and still shelters many of the plotters. Investigating committees pursuing ends favorable to the administration have carte blanche in getting investigators and clerks from executive departments. The Dies committee not only was refused assistance from time to time but was sabotaged at every step by Mr. Roosevelt's appointees.

His department of justice refused to do anything about the criminals who forged the letter in the attempt to smear Chairman Dies. His selective service organization, however, railroaded the committee's chief investigator into the army and only the prompt action of the house in reconstituting the committee as the first act of the present session prevented the dissipation and destruction of the committee files, which contain evidence damning to so many New Dealers.

The committee on un-American activities has a tremendous and essential job to do. It should be given funds and employes commensurate with the task. Hook and his subversive allies have an easily recognized motive in their efforts to sabotage the committee. They are afraid of what it will turn up.

THE STATE CONSTITUTION.

Dispatches from Springfield have said that the legislature is showing little enthusiasm for the proposal to call a constitutional convention. It would be astonishing if the feeling in the legislature were other than that. The legislators, knowing their people, know that only the fewest of them are clamoring for a wholesale revision of the state's fundamental law.

Moreover, the groups which have been shouting for a convention have been unwilling or unable to give satisfactory reasons to justify the course they recommend. Knowing that the imposition of an income tax would be thoroly unpopular, they talk in large terms of "amending the revenue clause" as if that euphemism could conceal their real purpose from any one in or out of the legislature.

For the rest they rely on the argument that the constitution has undergone few changes since it was adopted 75 years ago, tho in the intervening years the state has grown enormously in population and wealth and its social organization has been profoundly altered. The argument, of course, defeats itself. If all this has been accomplished under the existing constitution, it is difficult to believe that the fundamental law of the state is in any significant sense a check on its progress.

Certainly, if the contrary were true, the people of the state would be aware of it and the clamor for a constitutional convention would not come from the few but from the many. The people would be saying that this or that provision of the constitution had placed them at a disadvantage in comparison with the people of Indiana or Iowa or Pennsylvania. No such case is being made. There are many things in the government of Illinois and its subdivisions that can, and we have no doubt will, be improved, but the serious obstacles to improvement do not lie in the constitution.

These are general considerations, and to them must be added the special ones regarding the calling of a convention at this moment in the state's history. The attention of the people is now concentrated on the war. Our people today have no time to devote to constitutional problems. If the war ends soon and the convention is called together in the midst of the excitements and unrest of a period of demobilization, little good can be expected to come from its deliberations.

Today all the sound young men of the state and many of the more capable and energetic men in middle life are serving in the army and navy. They are not being consulted on the question of calling the convention and they may not be home in time to participate in the selection of delegates or to serve as delegates. The soldiers and sailors are scattered all over the world and on that account, among others, radical labor is disproportionately strong today. It is difficult to believe that the people of Illinois wish to trust their future liberties and prosperity to a convention called under such circumstances.

Editorial of the Day

"YOU-ALL" AGAIN.
[New York Times.]

Is the southerner's "you-all" good English? The question is discussed again in "The Virginia Pilot," by R. K. Hughes Jr. He thinks that the language is richer for the expression because of the poverty of pronouns. There certainly was no use for "you-all" when "thou" distinguished the singular and "you" the plural, as "tu" and "vous" do in French. "You" must now serve as both singular and plural, so there is a good case for "you-all" as a plural.

In their stout and perhaps justified defense of "you-all," southerners hold it to be bad grammar for a woman to ask "Have you-all any oranges?" when only a lone storekeeper is addressed. And what of "you-uns," "we-uns," and even "you-alls," heard in southern mountain regions? Broadway gets over the difficulty presented by the double meaning of "you" by "youse" and "youse guys," which H. L. Mencken, stanch champion of the American language, regards as "well supported by logic and analogy."

In these days of screen plays that talk to millions "you-all" may eventually be considered good English even in the north. After all, it is not the philologists or pedantic essayists but men in the street who make any language.

RED SPOTS ON WAR MAPS.

Iwo Island can be called Iwo Jima, but not Iwo Jima Island. We mention this small point because a radio announcer stubbed his toe over it a few days ago. Jima is a Japanese word for island. The tricky soul of Nippon is revealed by the fact that there is another Japanese word for island—shima. The difference, perhaps, is that between Tweedledee and Tweedledum.

* * *

To illustrate this vexatious problem we will glance at the Bonin [Ogasawara] Islands, a larger group close to Iwo. They include five jimas and four shimas. Grammatical gender, which covers a multitude of linguistic sins, may be the explanation, but we note that Haha, or Mother Island, is a jima, while Yome, or Bride Island, is a shima.

* * *

Fürstenberg, a town on the Russian road to Berlin, bears a name that has figured for centuries in European history. The Fürstenbergs were two noble families, apparently not related, which contributed many statesmen, churchmen, and soldiers to the complicated annals of the German principalities from the middle ages into modern times. Many members of this clan chose the military career, and there used to be a saying in Germany, "The emperor fights no great battle but a Fürstenberg dies."

* * *

Their influence spread into France. One of them, Wilhelm Egon, served in the French army and was appointed bishop of Strasbourg by Louis XIV. There is a small street in the Latin Quarter of Paris which may have been named after him. Herman A. Webster, an etcher of Chicago origin, established his first studio on the Rue Furstenberg, and Burton Holmes' camera has recorded its interior for the travel lecture public.

Dime Novels for the Judge.

With the advantage of free reading of the Beadle novels on our news counter, I became an authority and advisor to other readers. This talent was practically thrust upon the Beadle fans. On occasion it won an eminent client.

He appeared one evening—a tall, elderly man dressed in black frock coat, starched collar, string tie, and a high stovepipe hat covering abundant white hair. Hesitating near the door, he looked enough like the picture of Henry Clay on our cigar boxes to be Henry himself. Apparently pleased with the absence of customers, he moved slowly down the news counter to where I was idly thumbing the Beadles.

In some diffidence he waved a bloodless hand at the novels, saying his nephew was so addicted to them that he had become concerned—the stories were said to prompt young boys to run away to fight Indians and his nephew was not at all the outdoor type. Hoping to avert disaster, he'd come in to select some of the least violent for Orrie's reading.

Of course, I recognized old Judge Bennett from the county courthouse and knew this Orrie as a lad still frequenting Sunday schools, where he found ample excitement in reading "Pilgrim's Progress" and "Sandford and Merton." A severe dose of Beadle, I opined, would burden the hereafter with an unripe Orrie. But the judge's transparent ruse was a treat and his taste in literature sound.

After a prolonged search the judge stuffed four rather violent numbers into his hat. With courtly bow and stately words of gratitude, as tho I was Squire Reeves of the Farmers' National bank, he went back to his office for a pleasant evening, free from bickerings over stray cattle.

[Advice and assistance on draft and military questions and problems of dependents of service men and veterans are given here or by mail if a stamped envelope is sent. Personal advice and assistance are given to veterans by appointment.]

D. D. writes: "Does the beneficiary of a government insurance policy hold any notice or policy, while the man is in service, to prove she is the beneficiary or is this done only after the insurance has been converted? Also my husband informs me that when he took out the insurance he was asked to designate a method of payment which, as I understand it, will operate to my disadvantage. Can I have this changed?"

The designated beneficiary receives a "certificate of insurance" about six months after the original application for insurance is made. The insured may give notice of change of beneficiary afterward and this certificate would not be called in nor would another be issued to the new beneficiary. If your husband, at the time of application, made a choice of methods of payment which would operate to your disadvantage, you, as beneficiary, may not have it changed. However, your husband may send appropriate notice to the insurance division, Veterans' administration, Washington 25, D. C., to change the method of payment. He should do this promptly.

A. M. H. asks: "A group of employed girls joined the cadet nurse corps, and now our employer won't give us a release. What can we do? We were to leave March 3."

Women are under the war man power commission regulations the same as men, and since they are they cannot join any of the services without a release unless they leave their employment for 60 days.

HOW TO KEEP WELL by Dr. Irving S. Cutter

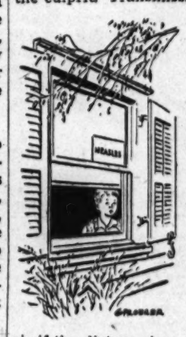
[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune.]

REDUCING THE SEVERITY OF MEASLES.

RESEARCH laboratory experts have worked long and patiently to find the cause of measles. But, as yet, they know only that a filtrable virus is the culprit. Transmission is usually direct—from person to person, by means of droplet infection. But handkerchiefs, towels, bedclothing, etc., recently used by a victim, may carry the organism. Unfortunately, these "bugs" will be spread thru the air if the distance is not too great.



Babies are usually safe for the first six months of life. By the time they are a year old, however, most tots will have lost their natural protection. As a rule, the disease is mild in children over three. With younger age groups, as well as with adults, complications may arise. These include involvement of the ears, the mastoids, the lungs, etc. Poor nutrition, overcrowding, and lack of skilled nursing predispose to after-effects of this sort.

Because of its high virulence, we are obliged to seek health-building measures against this ailment. It is almost impossible, however, to avert infection in a susceptible individual unless the fact of exposure is known. Except for infants and tots under four, complete prevention is undesirable. We, therefore, attempt modification.

Available plans consist of convalescent serum, normal adult serum, parental whole blood, and placental extract. If we hope to ward off the disorder completely, convalescent serum, for example, may be administered from the second to the fourth day following exposure. On the other hand, if modification only is attempted—with a milder attack—the dose may be given between the fourth and sixth days. After the sixth day, however, the substance will exert little or no power.

If we can only reduce the severity of a seizure, we will accomplish much. The ensuing malady may not behave like measles at all. For the most part, the bouts will be light, and the patients will rarely appear to be seriously ill. Any lessening of symptoms may be looked upon as a distinct gain. As we would expect, one of the most annoying manifestations is the accompanying catarrh. This may be relieved markedly. The effect upon fever, however, may be slight. The rash coincides most closely with the degree of modification. One hundred per cent protection cannot be anticipated but many studies of the influence of convalescent serum show a high degree of success.

Vaccination is recommended for all youngsters under two years of age, in an attempt to postpone the attack until they are older. The procedure of modification is indicated for healthy children over two, because this stage of the malady is rarely associated with later difficulties and brings about a strong, lasting immunity.

While experiments along this line are yet in their infancy, the findings so far have proved promising. Measles may yet become as readily preventable as diphtheria.

SULFA REACTIONS.

S. T. writes: You have mentioned from time to time that the sulfa drugs may cause trouble. What treatment is usually given in these cases?

REPLY.

These compounds should not be taken except under the supervision of a skilled physician, who will watch for untoward after-effects. Ordinarily, reactions disappear when the drug is discontinued. Alkalis, fluids, and occasionally transfusions are necessary to combat more serious toxic manifestations.

CAN'T MAKE IT.

H. A. writes: I have been shaving for two years but am unable to raise a mustache. How can I make one grow?

REPLY.

Our Creator endowed each of us with a definite hair pattern. There is no magic medicine to make this adornment flourish where it is not supposed to be.

PARCHED.

L. S. writes: I am awakened several times during the night with a dry mouth. I'm not bothered during the day. What causes this?

REPLY.

The chances are that you sleep with your mouth open.

SENSITIVE.

Mrs. T. writes: What is meant by physical allergy?

REPLY.

Allergic reactions to physical agents. The most common are cold, heat, and light.

Test Your Facts

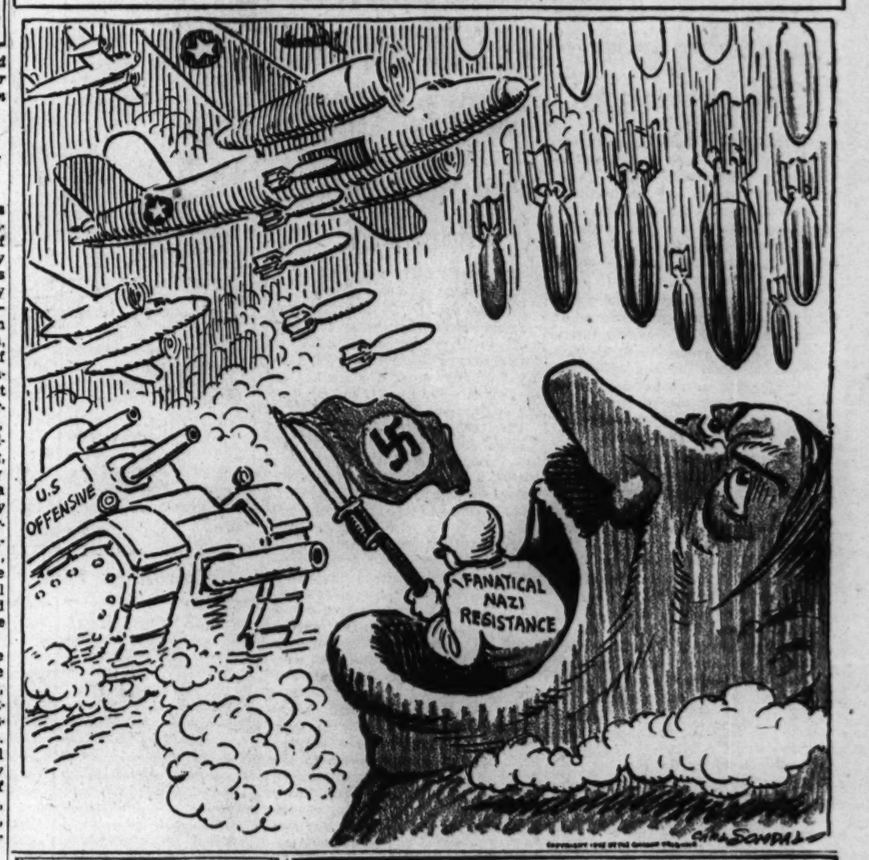
1. [a] Sgt. Heath. 2. [a] Virginia [Lexington]. 3. [b] A baby carriage. 4. [a] The 21st.

ANOTHER EXTINCT VOLCANO



Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

The Lop-Sided Heart.

"I love the moon. The moon loves me." That once, years ago, was in a primer. It became rote. Chicago loves the service man. The service man loves Chicago. That, too, is rote. Anywhere you wander, any man in uniform you meet, any Chicagoan you meet, this is the jubilant couplet. We of Chicago do everything we can for the lonely service man. We give him free rides on the buses, free food at the canteens, free books, music, beds, pin-up girls, and poems . . . and wholly ignore his family.

Contradict this flat statement if you will, but not in the presence of any one connected with the room registry service of the Y. W. C. A. This service exists to find rooms for girls, women, or the wives of service men with their husbands. The first two categories are successful. The third, if there are children, as is customary in married life, is a wretched failure. Chicago loves the single service man, the lonely boy in uniform that it can mother or help. It retreats in panic from the possible cry of a child. Of all the homes and rooms listed with this service, fewer than 10 out of 100 will take children. "And I'll not knock my child on the head for anybody," was the bitter retort of one young soldier.

The chronicles of disappointment are legion, but one or two suffice here. A soldier, separated from his family for a year, was ordered to Chicago for eight months. His wife and 6 months old baby came from Maryland. The lists were combed, but no place would take them. "A baby?" came the shocked reply prefacing the negation. The wife stayed only one night, but she was nice about it. She said the trip was worth it, for it was the first time her husband had seen his child.

Then there was the soldier, separated from his family for three years, whose orders gave him a year in Chicago. His child, a boy, was almost three years old. When the father picked him up, he cried in fright. The father also cried. "To think," he said, "it is my child, crying because he is afraid of his daddy." This was their first meeting, and, apparently, their last for some time. The answer for them, too, was no.

Those are two. Interested in any more? A dull subject, isn't it? It is much more warming to describe the face of a soldier as he looks at a picture of the child he has never seen, of the wife he longs for. Perhaps it is a truism to say that it usually is the needy who help the needy, but when a young navy couple with a 6 months old baby, again a baby the father had never seen, could find nothing, who helped them? Not any one listed with the registry. Not any one wishing to rent a room or apartment. A housekeeper at the Y. W. C. A. took them into her crowded home. She also took their Scottie.

Unfortunately, this is not singular with Chicago. It is true any place in the United States, but in contrast to the tremendous generosity here for the lone service man, it stands out like a battered nose.

Getting the News.

From the siege of Bastogne comes a tale of the doughty reporter who entered the town right after the siege was raised, jumped out of his car, and began racing around to find G. I.'s and get their stories of the ordeal. After 10 minutes he got one G. I., pinned him against the wall, got his name and address, and then asked what he did:

G. I.—"I'm a driver."

C.—"Good, I suppose you drove on dangerous missions thru Bastogne during the siege?"

G. I.—"No, I didn't."

C.—"O, then, you acted as an infantryman and handled a gun?"

G. I.—"Nope."

C.—"Well, what did you do?"

G. I.—"I'm a driver, I tell you."

C.—"Well, you've been in Bastogne all this time, haven't you?"

G. I.—"No."

C.—"Where have you been?"

G. I.—"In Luxemburg."

C.—"Luxemburg? That's where I've been."

G. I.—"I know. I drove you here."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Address Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

FIVE MONTHS FROM INDUCTEE TO CASUALTY.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—In this morning's TRIBUNE I read a piece about 1944 draftees being wounded. This hit my wife and me very hard as we received a telegram from the government that our son was wounded in France Feb. 6. The telegram was the only thing we heard from the boy since he left for overseas.

Here are the facts: Donald Zillmann was inducted the latter part of August when he was just 18 years of age. He came home on furlough after 17 weeks of basic training and arrived at Fort Meade Jan. 6. Then he was sent overseas and was wounded Feb. 6, after five months in service.

As we know, our commander in chief promised the mothers and fathers [before election] that their 18 year old sons would receive one year's training. Must all these words of his be forgotten! Isn't there something that can be done about holding the New Dealers to their promises?

ARTHUR J. ZILLMANN.

WHAT MADE US GREAT.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 18.—Our United States has progressed so far beyond the rest of the world that every other country is asking or demanding land-lease and lend-dole.

How did we achieve this lead over the rest of the world? We have not had to support a large standing army. We have had a liberal education and a wide choice of books at free libraries, a free choice of worship in liberal churches, and free workmen.

Now, instead of helping the rest of the world to our high standard by offering them a similar program, tremendous force is being exerted to reduce us to a low world level thru a labor draft, peace time conscription, and a super spy system.

How long do you suppose the United States can maintain its present position with slave labor, a large standing army, and a Gestapo? A. W. BENSON.

WHEN THE WELCOME MAT WAS OUT.

Flossmoor, Ill., Feb. 21.—Gen. De Gaulle snubs the American President. French spokesmen declare that Mr. Roosevelt had no right to request the general to meet him in French Algiers.

Millions of Americans wish the French government had felt that way, and so declared itself, a few years back, so that millions of American men would not have had to go to French Normandy to die. G. B. B.

OFF TO THE WARS.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—Well, I see by the papers, that part of the intrepid army of occupation at Ward's has finally been relieved of its tough assignment. Perhaps the time has come when its members can be of more use to the army as soldiers than as retail merchants. The "Charge of the Light Brigade" has been revised to read: "Theirs not to reason why, theirs but to sell and buy! Hooray for Democracy!" FRANKLIN W. BLYE.

MINK COATS VS. JUNIOR'S UNDERWEAR.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—It's funny that one can purchase an expensive mink coat, a diamond bracelet, and many other such luxuries without any difficulty, but have you tried to buy any children's pajamas or underwear? It just doesn't make sense to me.

MRS. JEAN HADDON.

THE TRUTH ABOUT MacARTHUR.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Tuesday I had the good fortune to attend the luncheon at the Union League club when THE TRIBUNE'S war correspondent, Arthur Veysey, told us how MacArthur won in the Pacific and gave a very clear picture of that outstanding general's characteristics and accomplishments.

I only wish the talk could have been broadcast, because it would have reached many people and remove doubt and misunderstanding that seems to be seeping thru various channels that is manifestly unfair to Gen. MacArthur. It may or may not be that Reporter Veysey will address other gatherings thruout the country as time and conditions permit. I have heard many talks, but it takes a courageous individual with first hand information to give an unbiased report.

R. S. WATERBURY.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—May I thank you for printing that very fine talk by Arthur Veysey. It opened our eyes to the truth concerning MacArthur, and we are grateful that so many malicious rumors have been debunked.

A. K. STONE.

PACKAGES FOR SERVICE MEN.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—It's very heartening to know that some of the boys overseas receive packages. My husband in the Philippines isn't so fortunate. Out of 10 request packages, mailed during August and September, he, as of Jan. 28, had received two. One out of 12 Christmas packages was received. These boxes were reinforced with corrugated paper, wrapped in water-proof paper, securely tied, and plainly addressed on the inside and outside.

He now refuses to write another request letter. To use his words, "What's the use of requesting things I need and have you bother with wrapping and mailing them when they are never received?"

Is the Sept. 15 to Oct. 15 Christmas mailing season for home front morale? It's such a pleasure making up boxes for our loved ones. MRS. I. C. MOORE.

PAYING FOR THE THIRD WAR.

Houston, Tex., Feb. 14.—President Roosevelt, having persuaded this country to foot the major part of the bills—life, money, and natural resources—of the second World war, has now, in the Yalta compact, pledged us to underwrite similarly the inevitable third World war.

However, the United States senate may reject that pledge. Texas has one senator, O'Daniel, who can be counted on to vote for its rejection.

COUSINS.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—We are two cousins, children of brothers. We are both married. If my cousin's children are my second cousins, what are my cousin's children to my children? J. N.

A.

B 1	B 2
C 1	C 2
D 1	D 2

If A is the nearest common ancestor and B, C, and D are successive generations, then C 1 and C 2 are first cousins; C 1 and D 2 are first cousins once removed and D 1 and D 2 are second cousins. The term second cousin is, however, sometimes used to include cousins once removed.

These expressions do not appear in the Illinois statutes and have ordinarily no legal importance. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

When COLDS Cause

Fits of Coughing, Phlegm, Congestion

In Upper Bronchial Tubes

Here's quick action for wonderful relief right where you need it most: Just put a good spoonful of time-tested Vicks VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Then breathe in the steaming medicated vapors...and feel the grand relief that comes with every breath you take, as VapoRub's wonderfully soothing medication penetrates right into cold-tormented upper breathing passages. So helpful in loosening phlegm, congestion! It quiets the coughing spasms, soothes sore throat, clears the head and makes breathing much easier. Try it!

FOR CONTINUING RELIEF, rub VapoRub on throat, chest and back at bedtime ...the comforting action invites restful sleep and keeps on working for hours.

SAMPLE SHOWS HOW TO FILE TAX RETURN FOR 1944

3 Filled in Form 1040 Pages Reproduced.

THE TRIBUNE today reproduces three pages of federal income tax form 1040 as filed by a hypothetical taxpayer.

This form must be used by persons whose income was $5,000 or more. Its use is also required by persons with incomes of less than $5,000 who received more than $100 from sources such as dividends, interest, rents, annuities, capital gains, and wages from which no tax was withheld.

Use of this form is optional for persons who earned less than $5,000 in wages and drew less than $100 from other revenue sources. Individuals in the less than $5,000 bracket may use the simplified form W-2, provided by employers, which requires only a few entries to convert it into a tax return. The collector figures the tax and sends a bill or a refund, as the case may be.

Owns His Home.

The taxpayer whose return is reproduced is Joseph U. Smith, a steel company employe with a wife and a dependent son. He owns his home and a small apartment he rents to others.

The rent item is a net figure, or the balance remaining after deductions for depreciation, repairs, and other costs such as decorating, mortgage interest, coal, real estate tax, water tax, and fire insurance. These are itemized on page three, and are the only entries he needs to make on this page.

What to Remember.

It must be remembered, however, that repairs, decorating, fuel, water tax and fire insurance expenditures can be deducted by Smith only as a part of his expenses in the business of renting his apartment, but cannot be deducted by him or any other taxpayer if such costs relate to his personal residence.

Below adjusted gross income is a figure of $684.36 found in line six, page one, and brought forward from the tax computation column in the lower portion of page four. This is Smith's tax liability, reflecting personal deductions for contributions, interest, taxes, losses, medical and dental expenses and miscellaneous outlays itemized in the upper part of page four. The regular surtax and normal exemptions are added to these in the computation column.

By itemizing his personal deductions and figuring the tax computation himself, Smith saved himself $16.64 because the deductions exceeded the blanket 10 per cent exemption provided in the tax table [page two, not shown]. For many, if not most persons with incomes of less than $5,000, the 10 per cent deduction, however, is adequate.

Subtracts What He Owes.

Smith then adds up the amount he already has paid on his 1944 taxes, either thru withholding or quarterly payments on estimated taxes. The sum of these, $674, he subtracts from the $684.36 tax liability above, leaving him $10.36 to pay the collector. This is due by March 15.

This also is the date Smith and other taxpayers must file declarations of estimated tax for 1945 and pay the initial instalment. In this group are those who expect to receive this year wages subject to withholding in excess of $5,000, plus $500 for each surtax exemption except his own, or income from all other sources in excess of $100, provided total income is expected to amount to $500 or more.

Also payable on this date is the unpaid part of the unforgiven tax of 1942 or 1943, but this is to be paid separately. Bills have been mailed by the tax collector to all persons who still owe this tax.

Fireman Cut on Hand as Flat Fire Routs 20

Fireman William Dunne, 51, of engine company 24, was cut on the right hand yesterday while fighting a fire in the brick flat building at 216 N. Campbell av. Twenty Negro residents were driven out by smoke. Damage was estimated at $100.

'Private Investigator Maclain'.... By Baynard Kendrick

(Copyright: 1945: By Baynard Kendrick.)

CONCLUSION.

"I don't want to hear all the records," Duncan Maclain said. "Did you get any statement out of Brown as to what he did yesterday?"

Davis selected a record. "I've boiled the gist of it down into one. He clamped the earphones about the captain's head. Maclain listened, his face expressionless as Brown's voice sounded in his ears.

"Yesterday morning I went down to talk to Paul. Martin Gallagher came out of the Jordan's apartment as I got out of the elevator. I was scared to death for I didn't even know he was in town. He always hated me and would have killed me without question if he'd found out I'd been living with Troy.

"Gallagher must have seen me in the hall, altho I ducked into a stairway and ran down. I waited until he came out on Fifth av. I followed him to his hotel and later downtown. He tried to get in to talk to Larmar, but Maclain and his lawyer were there. I was in back of them as they came out, but I lost Gallagher. He was slick at shaking shadows.

"Later in the afternoon, I realized that he'd started following me. I knew then I'd have to kill him. I went to my shop and got a duplicate of the Osaki dagger.

"Gallagher followed me to Maclain's apartment house. I thought if I could get him alone in the stair well, I could wait for him and kill him before he got me. I got him on the 24th floor.

"When I got back to the shop, Maclain telephoned and said he'd discovered how the Buchel pistol was fired on the terrace. He was causing me all my trouble, throwing off the police who had a perfect case against Jordan. Gallagher had made things tough enough. Now I had to dispose of Maclain and Sybella Ford before I could call it a day.

"I followed Maclain downtown. I couldn't get him at the Jordan's or at the Globe-Tribune building. He played into my hands at Morse's. I got a break there because I knew Morse hadn't answered the door when Maclain got in. Then I got a second break. A man came along. I told him I was spending the weekend with Morse, and he let me in.

"The only thing I overlooked was the police dog. He went for me or I'd have finished Maclain. As it was, I thought I'd put him in the hospital for a long time. If I was successful with Sybella Ford, and Maclain didn't kick in, I could try again.

"I waited until later to come up to the hospital. I knew they might be guarding Sybella Ford's room, but I figured I could get a mask and gown out of the supply room without arousing suspicion. I took a chance, and did it, and walked right in."

The record clicked off.

The captain removed the earphones and said. "He was so dumb he was smart, Larry. That happens sometimes. Whoever rigged that pistol had to know all about guns and had to have the opportunity. I'm glad that Schnucke's going to be all right. She was the one who nailed him, after all."

"Don't worry, she'll get all the credit." Davis wrapped himself in irony. "The papers don't know there's a police force in existence when there's a dog in town."

"Yeah," agreed Archer, picturing more mythical headlines. "'Cocker Kills Mistress. Police Dog Tracks Him Down.'"

"Well, she did at that," said Maclain. "She tipped me off in the diner, Larry—when that fire siren scared her and she shivered against my knee. I remembered petting Winnie at the cocktail party. When the carillon started, she scooted off the divan. Then at Morse's last night Brownie thought Schuncke was Dreist and was scared to hang around too long. I guess he was just plain dumb—not smart at all. Those chimes will be his death knell as well as that of Gallagher and Troy."

"You're pretty dumb yourself," Davis said.

"I presume," said the captain, "that you have something on that official tumor which you erroneously refer to as a mind."

"It occurred to me that Archer and I have wives to go home to. We've even united Lucia and Larmar. Murder is very trying. I thought how nice it would be—now that his death knell has stopped ringing—if you rang a few wedding bells and quit running around with those circus dogs and getting into my eye."

The captain grinned. "You might tell that to Sybella, Larry."

MRS. J. T. BOWEN IS 86 TODAY, BUT PLANS NO PARTY

There won't be a party to celebrate Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen's birthday today. "When you reach your 86th anniversary a birthday ceases to be exciting." Mrs. Bowen, who is one of Chicago's foremost feminine citizens, said yesterday. She will spend the day with her daughter, Mrs. De Koven Phelps, and other members of the family.

One of the highlights of the occasion will be the first appearance of Mrs. Bowen's fifth book, "Baymeath," which contains experiences connected with her summer home in Maine by the same name. Only intimate friends of the author will receive copies, she said.

Mrs. Bowen, who has been associated with Hull House since 1893, is still the treasurer and signs all checks. For many years she invested the money of the settlement, guided by the teachings she received from her father, John De Koven, one of Chicago's early bankers. The most encouraging sign noted by Mrs. Bowen during the last year is the gradual reduction in juvenile delinquency. "There has been a turn for the better in recent months," she said, "and I hope it continues. Most children are not vicious; they just need supervision."

Knit Sweater Blossoms Into a Suit Blouse

BY REA SEEGER.

One bright designer has glorified the knitted sweater by making it into a clever suit blouse. Tho it sounds like magic, you must see it to fully appreciate what's been done with a casual sweater. First, the model is a fine knitted pattern, smooth and small patterned. Second, the sleeves have been reduced, rather chopped off, to make the shoulder covered effect seen in the smartest of new day time dresses—a wide armhole and just a suggestion of an exaggerated cap over the shoulder. Also, the neck line is slit deep, faced back with striped taffeta ribbon and has a soft bow which is to be tied at the neck line.

These are knockout models for suit wear because they fit smoothly, are warm enough to ward off chilly early spring breezes, and look surprisingly decorative because of the crisp taffeta bow and slit facing. There are three basic colors, black with black and white striped ribbon, gray with gray and white ribbon, and navy with navy and white ribbon. It's an outstanding bit of blouse contrast magic for any suit, wool or tweed mixture, and is especially good with extra jacket and skirt combinations.

Miss Howland Is Engaged to Naval Officer

BY JUDITH CASS.

FROM Baltimore, Md., Col. and Mrs. John Roche Howland of Lake Forest send word of the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Clark, to Lt. [j. g.] William L. Marbury Barroll of the naval reserve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewin Wethered Barroll of Ashlins, Baltimore. Mrs. Howland and her daughter are spending the winter in Baltimore with the former's father, Ernest Judson Clark, while Col. Howland is serving with the army in England.

A graduate of the Bryn Mawr school and a member of the Junior league, Miss Howland made her debut this winter at the Christmas ball in Baltimore. She is a granddaughter of Prof. and Mrs. George Carter Howland, who have been living in Glen Cove, N. Y., and Kennebunkport, Me., since Prof. Howland retired from the faculty of the University of Chicago. She is a great-granddaughter of the late John A. Roche, who was mayor of Chicago from 1887 to 1889.

Lt. Barroll, grandson of Mrs. William L. Marbury of Baltimore, was graduated from the Boys' Latin school and from Johns Hopkins university. He entered the navy in 1942 and is on duty in the Pacific.

At a party yesterday in New York, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Stewart of Elmhurst announced the engagement of their daughter, Jean, to James C. Olson of Wilmette and New York, son of Mrs. Julius A. Olson of Springfield, O., and the late Mr. Olson. Miss Stewart has been living in New York for two years as a radio research director. A graduate of Rockford college, she also attended the University of Colorado and did graduate work at the University of Chicago. Mr. Olson was graduated from Wittenberg college and from the Harvard graduate school of business administration.

Service Notes.

The Lake Forest friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lithgow Mitchell of Rye, N. Y., formerly of Lake Forest, were saddened to hear of the death in action of the Mitchells' son, Corp. Charles Folds Mitchell, on Feb. 5 in Germany where he was serving with Gen. Patton's army. Young Mr. Mitchell, who was just 20, entered the service Feb. 19, 1943, and has been in action since last November.

The Purple Heart and a Presidential citation which were awarded posthumously to Pvt. Robert J. Donegan have been received by his sister, Mrs. Carl A. Moore Jr. Pvt. Donegan, who had been overseas for three years, was killed last November in Germany—while on special work for the army.

On the Calendar.

The membership ranks of the Service club will be increased with 34 new names at its annual luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today in the Arts club. The new members will participate in the election of officers at today's meeting.

Mme. Lotte Lehmann will give the first of three recitals here in Orchestra hall tonight. Among many Chicago admirers who will hear her present an all-Schubert program will be Mrs. Wentworth Field, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, and Mrs. Charles H. Swift.

The junior group of the Highland Park-Ravinia center of the Infant Welfare society of Chicago will hold its monthly sewing meeting today in the home of Mrs. John Morrissey. Each member will bring a white elephant to be taken to the annual Thrift Shop tea from 2:30 to 5 p. m. in the home of Mrs. Roswell B. Swazey, president of the Highland Park shop's board.

Mrs. Henry Kennedy will entertain at tea today in her home for the Beverly Hills center of the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago.

Birth News.

Because Lt. George B. Everitt Jr. reported for duty in the Pacific early this month, he just missed meeting his daughter, born on Feb. 21 in the Evanston hospital. The baby has been named Lois Virginia, the former name for her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Everitt. Young Mrs. Everitt is the former Barbara Taylor, daughter of the Gordon Taylors of Winnetka.

Woman's Club to Discuss Educational Legislation

School legislation before the Illinois general assembly will be the forum topic at a meeting of the Woman's City club at 2 p. m. today in the clubrooms. Mrs. Henry C. Dormitzer, chairman of the public education committee, will lead the discussion, and among participants will be Mrs. Harry M. Mulberry, club president and chairman of the Illinois Women's Conference on Legislation, and Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde, legislation chairman. Tea will be served by Mrs. William E. Duffell's social committee.

JOURNEY UNDERGROUND

INSTALMENT II.

SYNOPSIS: The author, a Lake Forest boy, enlisted in the Canadian air force in 1941, at age 20, and won his wings as a navigator. Early in 1943 he transferred to the American 8th air force in England, receiving the rank of flight officer, and was assigned to a Flying Fortress squadron. His first eight combat missions were all daylight raids over Germany and occupied lands. On his ninth mission, on Sept. 3, 1943, the target was Romilly, France, about 70 miles southeast of Paris. Prosser's plane was flying "Tail-End Charlie," the lowest and last position in the formation. Near Paris the formation was attacked by six or eight enemy fighters. As navigator, it was Prosser's duty to fire one of the Fortress nose guns, and he opened fire, without luck. The fighter planes got a deadly hit on his Fortress, which quickly began to lose altitude. Soon the crew was ordered to bail out.

During his fall from about 22,000 feet, Prosser's hands grew numb with cold, for he was wearing R. A. F. navigator gloves which have no fingers beyond the knuckle. He landed in a field, far from the other members of the crew. Peasants working in the field, who saw him come down, helped him unbuckle his parachute harness and take off his life jacket. He asked one of the men to hide him, but the man refused, explaining that 100 people had seen Prosser land and that not all could be trusted. He advised the airman to take a road leading toward the Marne river, where he could hide on the wooded banks.

Prosser limped 100 yards to a creek, which a group of children helped him cross. Then he followed a dirt road thru a dense woods. He took off his battle jacket in order to look less military and carried it. When he emerged from the woods he saw two women plowing. They spotted him quickly and rushed up with a gift—three large peaches. They assured him there were no Germans near-by and also advised him to go toward the Marne. Then they guided him across a stretch of cleared land until he reached another wooded section. He thanked the women. They wished him good luck and went back to tilling the soil.

After having gone down the road about half a mile, I came to a gate. From this gate a dirt path led up to a large white stucco house with red tiled roof 100 yards back. Whether this was a mansion or just a house and barn, I couldn't be sure, and fearing that it might be the home of some wealthy persons, who were supposed to be more inclined to collaboration with the Germans, I decided to pass on, even tho my foot hurt so that I thought I could go no farther.

Flight Officer Prosser sketched by Gary Sheahan.

I made up my mind that I must definitely search for a place where I could rest and find assistance, and seeing a swamp down the road thought I had found a place offering temporary refuge. Walking thru the high grass of the swamp was hell, for these weeds and the brush pulled my foot to one side, causing me much added pain. I caught myself swearing loudly.

When I was definitely out of view from the road, I found a place to sit down. The rest did my foot good, but it seemed impossible to walk much farther without having the foot bound properly.

As an emergency measure the little first aid kit, carried and trusted for so long, promised a solution. The binding tape, which wishful thinking had led me to expect the box contained, was not there, and in its place there was a great piece of gauze useful only for bullet wounds. My attempts to fit this to my foot were futile. After resting a short time, I started on my way to find a house where I could get the foot bound. Plunging into the forest, I was soon confronted by a very muddy stream.

Not far from this stream there was a little by-way which joined the other road I had left before wading into the swamp. No houses could be seen on either side of it, so I walked away from the other road thinking some farm houses must be near-by probably hidden in a clump of bushes and trees. About 100 yards down the road a footpath led up to a little, bleak, unpainted house—the type my imagination led me to believe was the home of poor peasants only too willing to help an allied airman.

Hesitating before this path a moment, I saw four people come down the by-way from the main road. They looked like workers, and were accompanied by a little dog which ran up to me and outdid itself being friendly. Two of the people dropped away, but the other two men approached. I was rather nervous and hoping desperately that this was the underground come to save me, and not the Gestapo. When they reached me they immediately demanded that question which so taxed my knowledge of French: "Are you wounded?" By this time I had remembered the idiom, "Tres mal au pied" [Very badly in the foot], which satisfied them.

The man who stayed with me was a large, middle-aged worker. He said his name was Jacques. He asked me if I could speak German and I said that I could.

"I was in a prison camp for 17 months in Germany—around Hanover, and there I learned a little German," Jacques said. "I have only been back in France four months now. Ah! there is Marceau signaling to us to follow him—can you make it with that bad foot?"

The house was only a short distance away—I was surprised to see that it was the same house I had shortly before thought too rich in appearance to house potential helpers of American parachutists. We took a long way around thru bushes and brambles; when arriving at the back door, I felt that I had done all the walking my foot could stand that day.

After passing thru a long vestibule, we entered a room which I supposed was the kitchen, altho it was not the type of kitchen I knew. There was no ice box, no large sink, few pots and pans, no real kitchen table.

The stove was so much a part of a long sideboard stretching the length of one wall, that I missed it. The large wooden table in the middle of the room was covered with laundry, and above a little corner sink there was a tiny mirror and a shelf holding combs, brushes, etc. The floor was tiled.

As I was wondering where the four doors of this room led, an old woman, dressed in ragged, gray-looking clothes, clattered up to me in her wooden shoes, and gave me a terrific kiss. This surprised me so that I did not realize what had happened until she backed away to take a long look at me. Then she bade me sit in one of the three chairs of this room and proceeded to ask me, "Are you wounded?"

This time I took my French-English dictionary out and showed her the word, entorse, and murmured "Tres mal, tres mal" [Very badly, very badly], and tried to explain that I needed a bandage. She turned to Marceau to discuss the problem, and just as they appeared to have reached some conclusion another man limped into the room. He looked almost sinister—his cap was pulled down almost over his deep-set black eyes, and shoots of his black, uncombed hair popped out at different angles from the brim of his cap. His face was dark and grimy looking with a two days' growth of beard, and his clothes were also gray and dirty. One of his legs was six inches shorter than the other; a loop of steel was attached to the shoe of this shorter leg, which made it possible for him to walk.

This man was called Marcel. At first, he looked at me with suspicion. He was excited and alarmed at having an allied airman in the house and frequently hobbled up to me while the old woman was talking, and drew his finger quickly across his neck and opening his eyes widely, as if to express terror said, "Les Allemandes." [The Germans.]

He explained the situation so rapidly that I could not understand. I don't think he meant to impress upon me that he wished me to go, but rather to be very careful. Evidently he thought I had been sufficiently impressed, for he left the scene and allowed the old woman to resume her nursing. She said that she had no tape or bandages. I said perhaps a piece of cloth would do. She thought a minute, and then lifted up her skirt, pulled down her stocking and started to take off a binding from her knee.

"This will do," she said, "and I really do not need it."

Feeling that it was probably the last one she had, I protested vigorously—but to no avail; she would not think of changing her mind. First my foot was rubbed with camphor, and then bound—it immediately felt less painful.

When this treatment was finished, Marcel, the short legged man, reappeared with a box of sugar to give me.

Just as I was wondering how I could carry the sugar, a pathetic looking woman entered the room with a small loaf of bread in her hand, which she offered to me. She looked like the perfect peasant, dressed in a black, shapeless frock which hung loosely about her formless figure; shoots of her scraggly, graying hair tumbled down on her wrinkled face and around her toothless mouth; her legs were stockingless and canvas slippers served as shoes.

The old woman, who had bound my foot, saw my predicament, with all these objects to carry, and proposed to wrap them all in one bundle, putting a little offering of her own, two apples, in it. She then warmed up some coffee and gave that to me, saying, "Ersatz—pas bon" [Synthetic—no good], as she put it on the table beside me.

By this time I had become quite eager to leave. My imagination was filled with the picture of German soldiers popping their heads and guns in all the windows and doors, so I arose and made my way out into a little court yard. I thanked them and walked a few feet.

Marceau said, "Stop, you can't go with your foot like that. We will hide you until you can walk properly." Jacques, Marcel, and the woman repeated his words.

Marceau and Jacques led me back

Walter Mills Shows Gifts in Song Recital

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

Once arrived at the music for which his temperament and vocal equipment qualify him as an interpreter of sorts, Walter Mills proved himself an interesting singer in his recital at Kimball hall yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Mills seems to have a particular affinity for the songs of Schubert. The four that appeared on his program inspired him to singing that was in the best sense interpretative. The vocal shortcomings which were earlier apparent were here least in evidence, and text and vocal line were welded with a maturity and discretion that marked the singer as one with a fine understanding of lieder style. Of particular note were the mezzo voce effects of "Im Abendrot" and "Nacht und Traume." "Aufenthalt" was also set forth with unusual variety of expression. "An die Leier," however, fell short of the others thru the singer's failure to achieve convincing dramatic breadth.

Mr. Mills' voice is still a notable one in the middle register, but at its extremes it seems somewhat the worse for wear. It is not always free from a vibrato when put to a strain, and sometimes, in an effort to conceal its deficiencies, the vocalist resorts to an explosiveness that is ruinous to a legato line. In spite of unusually clear diction, this overvehemence detracted from the enjoyment of the opening Handel group, particularly when the singer felt obliged for the sake of vocal convenience to make alterations of the composer's text in "Arm, Arm, Ye Brave!" from "Judas Maccabeus." Not quite reaching the level of the Schubert, the five lovely and neglected lyrics of Robert Franz were nevertheless examples of intelligent and often beautiful song interpretation. Robert Macdonald was the accompanist.

The Don Cossack chorus and dancers—the original group conducted by perky little Serge Jaroff—knows no dearth of customers, for the Civic Opera house was again filled for their second concert of the season yesterday afternoon. There is little new to record concerning this group. They dispense a brand of entertainment which the public avidly devours — the serious moments along with the wide repertoire of sound effects imitating galloping horses, guitars, hurdy-gurdys, etc. The program was changed toward the end to admit a request for "Dark Eyes," sung with variations from adagio lamentoso to allegro giocoso, but never really recognizable, and adding fuel to a suspicion that few composers would know their own music as the Don Cossacks twist and torture it to suit their own not too subtle purposes.

On the Aisle By Claudia Cassidy

Efrem Zimbalist Plays.

"Is he," inquired a customer at the door of Orchestra hall, "a son of the Zimbalist once married to Alma Gluck?" No duplicate, madame, but the real thing, who on the word of honor of my concert companion used to play "Humoresque" as obbligato while the lovely Gluck sang "Swanee River" with Samuel Chotzinoff conniving at the piano. Try humming it—it works out fine.

Yesterday's recital was technically deft and agreeable in tone, but shallow in content. Mr. Zimbalist was at his best with the externals of music. Some of his most polished performance was devoted to the ornate shell of an empty concerto by the Norwegian violinist, Heinrich Wilhelm Ernst, and he had an expert's way with the agile exercise that is Ysaye's unaccompanied ballade.

But Vitali's Ciaconna that opened the concert lacked structure and stature to vitalize its lyricism, and the Brahms Sonata in D minor found the violin content to cradle a slender, burnished tone on the flowing warmth of Jacob Lateiner's way with the piano. The performance ended with a batch of transcriptions, in which Mr. Zimbalist had the best of luck with Wilhelmj's limpid version of a Chopin nocturne and Spalding's lighthearted treatment of the waltz beloved of buoyant ballerinas in "Les Sylphides." The Paganini-Kreisler finale was too decorous for a Paganini triumph.

Lehmann's Triumph.

Lotte Lehmann, who sings Schubert at Orchestra hall tonight, scored the inevitable triumph at New York's Metropolitan Opera Friday when she reappeared for a single performance of "Der Rosenkavalier." Noel Straus of the Times wrote, "Surely, vocally as well as histrionically, Mme. Lehmann's Marschallin remains the most sensitive and deft achievement the Metropolitan has to offer its patrons today, and she fully deserved the prolonged ovation accorded her after the first act and the last curtain."

Irene Jessner sings the next Met performance, but Mme. Lehmann is being importuned to repeat her triumph in Chicago. Incidentally, if we get the New York "Norma" cast, it will hold Milanov, Martinelli, Tourel, and Moscona, Sodero conducting. "The Golden Cockerel," to be broadcast March 10, bills Munsel and Cordon, Cooper conducting.

Cornell Tour.

According to William Fields, out of the Canadian army and back on the press agent job, Katherine Cornell will open "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" at the National theater in Washington March 19. Then it goes to the Boston Opera house for a week, and after that to New York, opening April 2. The engagement is indefinite. Brian Aherne will have his old role as Browning, and McKay Morris plays the elder Barrett. Miss Cornell has just returned from an overseas tour of more than 140 performances.

Possibility.

Harry Wagstaff Gribble was at the Civic Friday night, to admire "The Glass Menagerie," and to check the theater for the Chicago engagement of "Anna Lucasta." It is being considered.

Wedding

The marriage of Miss Shirley Frances Buckley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Alexander Buckley of the Park Lane hotel, formerly of Boston, Mass., to Henry M. Henriksen of River Forest will take place at 4:30 p. m. on Saturday in the Drake hotel. Miss Buckley attended Randolph-Macon college and the Katherine Gibbs school in Boston. She and Mr. Henriksen are members of the Figure Skating Club of Chicago.

U. of C. Chinese Students Hosts at Newcomers Party

Members of International House, on the University of Chicago campus, and newly enrolled Chinese students yesterday were guests of students from China at a soiree and program in the residence. Miss Ruth Ann Koesun, 16, of 2317 Wentworth av., presented ballet dances. The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. P. Z. Koesun, she has danced with the Civic Opera ballet, concert groups, and the Eloise Moore pantomime theater. Miss Phoebe Yu, student from China, sang native songs.

Transport Lack Has Effect on Paris Fashions

BY ANNE BRUYERE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

PARIS, Feb. 25.—Parisian hostesses and stage and screen stars may permit themselves elaborate floor length gowns but guests and spectators, whose only means of transportation are bicycles or the subway, prefer the new short formals designed by Madeleine Vramant, Marcel Rochas, Nina Ricci, and Jacques Fath.

Madeleine Vramant and Marcel Rochas continue making dressy models the same length—a foot below the knees—they introduced last season. The first house is creating airy, tulle frocks in colors of the rainbow, with widely flared skirts dotted with sparkling jewels. One dress in iris lavender has a huge satin ribbon in the same shade tied in a double bow in the back. Decolleté waist and elbow length sleeves are covered with tiny purple balls.

Marcel Rochas likes ruffles and flounces on dance frocks. The skirt of a bright plaid dress in red, white, and green, is covered with rows of flared bands. A narrow, black velvet sash appears at the waist. The bodice and short balloon sleeves are made of stiff white Normandy lace trimmed with black velvet bows.

Another enchanting formal in the new length by Marcel Rochas is made up of a widely flounced skirt of night blue mousseline topped with a fitted and backless and sleeveless waist in crescent yellow.

Both Nina Ricci and Jacques Fath are showing extremely decolleté knee length dance frocks. Swishing, changeable taffeta forms intricately fitted drapery at the bodice and hips and then flares out to make a full skirt as modeled by Nina Ricci. The brassiéres, made of glittering, richly colored beads, are the only covering at the top.

The waist of "Renaud et Armide," by Jacques Fath is fashioned with delicately colored, hand embroidered spring flowers, which also trim a foot high toque. Yards of white dognin lace form a short empire skirt.

Fashion Flashes: Jansen has created bedroom and boudoir sets covered with white damask, silk embroidered in a cloud of pink dots. . . . Jacques Hein is employing crinoline fullness in the back of new pink, green, and natural pongee suits. . . . Flesh colored elastic material covered with a heavy, white fish net forms a two piece, strapless bathing suit shown by Galeries Lafayette.

into the house and out the door thru which I had first entered. At the back of the house there was a badly tended garden, and a few yards to the right of the door an eight foot stone and stucco wall extended from the house out into the garden. About two feet on the other side of this wall there was a six foot tool shed, one end of which was also right against the side of the house. Marceau had placed a ladder against the section of the wall adjacent to the shed. "This is a wonderful place—from this side of the wall no one would suspect that there was a cavity between the wall and the shed, and from the other side of the wall, one would think that the shed lay almost against it," he said.

In the cavity, next to this little wall, I saw two flagstones on the ground. Marceau noticed that I was looking at them, and he jumped down onto the ground, and stood them up against the shed. Under each there was a little hole containing belts of machine gun ammunition.

Jacques handed me a straw palliasse which made quite a comfortable bed. As I lay down I felt a chill and asked for a blanket. They brought me this and then said they must go back to work. I asked them if they had time to smoke one cigaret before leaving. Marceau hesitated a little, but Jacques immediately accepted, and we all had one last cigaret before I was to be left in the cavity for an unknown length of time.

By Hedda Hopper

Just to Even Things Up.

Bette Davis has her own ideas about working conditions, and even tho they cost her money she's following them. She and the company were on location for "Stolen Life" last week and worked on Sunday, which is usually done on expensive locations, so when Bette and her company got back to the studio they took off the following Saturday and Sunday to make up for it. Jack Warner was heard muttering in his beard, "Never heard anything so silly in all my life!" . . . William Bendix, who finished "Don Juan Quilligan" last week, is a busy guy these days. He left town right after his Sunday airshow for four days' rest, and on March 5 he will be on "Cavalcade of America." The same day he's scheduled to start "Blue Dahlia" with Alan Ladd at Paramount. . . . Betty Hutton gave a large party for the members of the cast and crew on her last day of work in "Cross My Heart." Then she and hair dresser Eunice MacFarlane left for a rest at Camelback Inn, near Phoenix, Ariz.

Good Sign of a Good Actor.

George Rigaud, doing the lead opposite Constance Bennett in "Paris Underground," is also working in "Masquerade in Mexico," and Paramount is building up his part in that one. . . . John Monks Jr., just out of the army, has been signed by 20th to do the screenplay on "Boomerang" by William Chambliss, which Louis de Rochemont will produce. . . . Abbott and Costello drew a crowd on stage 19 at Universal. When the news spread around that they were doing that famous baseball comedy sketch, "Who's on First?" for "The Naughty Nineties," everybody on the lot who could leave desk or tools dashed over to watch. . . . Martha Sleeper lunching with Lester Cowan at Lucey's. He'd like to get her to do one of several properties he has lined up. So would Mervyn Leroy, and so would several others. Martha's listening, but she ain't saying anything yet.

Living and Learning.

One of our boys now in Germany writes that he got hold of a column of mine in which I mentioned that Mickey Rooney was leading a band overseas. He enclosed a clipping about Mickey from Belgium. "The fog came down. Where the fields were there was a great blankness, and a soldier in a jeep said, 'I want to get out of the army and go home to my wife as soon as this is over. But I pity the guy who doesn't see this for himself. Seeing the way these guys suffer makes me appreciate everything I have!' The private was Mickey Rooney, who's touring the combat zone in a three soldier jeep. 'This is no time for actors to be taking bows,' said he. While Mickey was entertaining front line troops in a barn which was jammed to the rafters, a Jerry plane flew over. Without hesitating, Mickey cracked, 'Tell him to come back tomorrow—we've got a packed house tonight.'"

Signs of the Times.

Jerry Wald is looking for 20 leading ladies to play in "Don Juan." Well, it's a good thing it calls for 20 girls instead of 20 leading men, or I'm afraid Warners would have to wait until the war is over. . . . Hear Warners are excited about Andrea King, who has done her first important role in "God Is My Co-Pilot." . . . Idwal Jones, writer, is mighty happy that his young daughter is following in pappy's foosteps. She's doing the Chinatown sector for a San Francisco paper. . . . Allan Jones and Irene Harvey have rented their New York apartment to Simone Simon. . . . Marjorie Rambeau's accident caused several fractures of the leg and pelvis and many body bruises. It's a miracle she wasn't killed.

If You Need Sleep You Might Run In to See This Movie

"THE TOWN WENT WILD."

By Mae Tinée.

Except for occasional bits of activity by Edward Everett Horton and Jimmy Conlin, I could have slept quietly thru this number.

Feuding fathers, whose children fall in love, and a mixup of birth certificates are the reasons for a lot of nonsense. The veteran Horton manages to be tepidly entertaining as one of the feudees, and Mr. Conlin, who plays a messy, near-sighted old justice of the peace, always amuses me.

The film marks Freddie Bartholomew's return to the screen after service in the army, and he looks as tho he needed a good tonic—so does the picture. It's not offensive—it's just dopey.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

Mrs. Ed W., Evanston.—We had some floor boards which squeaked. The boards were not too closely joined and my husband took a thin bladed knife and worked glue into the cracks between the boards. After the glue had time to "set" the squeaks disappeared.

Mrs. Rob G., Aurora, Ill.—To clean my parchment lamp shades I use a mixture of equal parts turpentine and mineral oil. If the shades are imitation parchment I clean with turpentine or liquid wax.

Klare S., Chicago.—If an oil stain shows up on a rug I can usually remove it with lime water.

Labor Laws for Women, Children to Be Studied

State labor laws for women and children will be studied by members of the law observance and legislation departments of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs in joint session at 1:30 p. m. today in federation headquarters. Speakers will include Miss Agnes Nestor of the Women's Trade Union league, who will talk on "equal pay for equal work" legislation, and Mrs. Edwin Eels of the Illinois Child Labor committee, who will tell why she believes a new child labor law is needed in Illinois. The meeting was arranged by Mrs. Harry W. Raymond and Mrs. R. C. Mann, chairmen of the two departments.

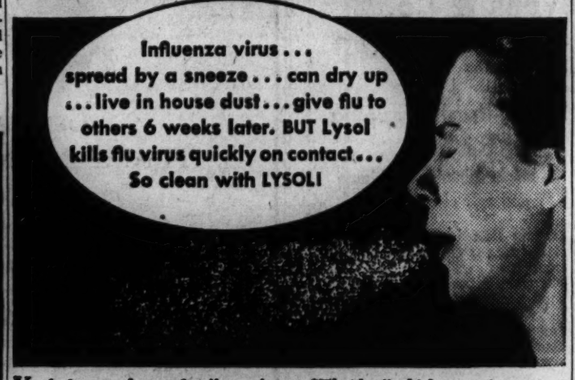
Drama League to Be Host to Players at Breakfast

The Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone has been sold out for the noon breakfast which the Chicago Drama league will give today for Cornelia Otis Skinner, Dennis King, Dudley Digges, and others of the cast of "The Searching Wind." Among the many who have made reservations are Mrs. William E. Vogelback, Mrs. C. S. Defebaugh, Mrs. Omar Jarred, Mrs. Oscar Heineman, Mrs. Edward Blake Blair, and Mrs. Robert Griffin.

MEDICAL SCHOOL TESTS PROVE LYSOL KILLS FLU "BUG"*



You help guard your family against risk of flu from infected dust, every time you clean with Lysol.

Anywhere an infected person sneezes, the flu virus can scatter as far as 12 feet—settle in dust on floors, woodwork, furniture. So, especially during the flu season, clean with Lysol in bathroom, kitchen, children's rooms, wherever dust settles. Get Lysol disinfectant at your druggist's—today!

Public Career Inadvisable for Talented Child

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Small boys and girls can be utterly delectable. If you ever had one like that you've probably had people exclaim: "O, he [or she] really should be in the movies! Why, he'd make a great hit, and a lot of money."

What brought this to my mind is a letter from a mother, of which the gist is the following:

"My little girl is 3 years old and is very brilliant. I would like her to have a screen test. Would you mind writing to me and telling me where I can have one made? I think she is just the right age to be taught something, such as not being afraid of an audience and not being afraid of a microphone. I would like her to go in the movies or on the radio or both."

Many mothers write to me in this way, and I am afraid that they find my replies disturbing, because instead of telling them where to go I advise them against any such procedure at an early age.

No matter how sweet or lovely or talented your child is, and no matter how many people tell you he should be in the movies, such a career is on the whole against his best interests. It is infinitely better for a child to grow up in an unconscious, free, natural life in school and family, away from the unchildlike and often artificial regime which a movie or a radio career must mean. After all, there are experiences, activities, atmosphere, and contacts suited to a little boy or girl, "a way of life" that is right for young children.

If a child who is very young shows evidence of brilliance and artistic talents, there are many ways of fostering the development of that little boy or girl. From time to time in this column I have made rather detailed suggestions for carrying out an informal program, one which has in it such activities as the making of and listening to music, the appreciation of books, the appreciation of beauty that is visible in fine pictures and so on, providing an outlet for artistic impulses in painting and drawing, encouragement to dance in some of the freer forms, such as rhythmic dancing, and the filling of other needs for which a child's eager mind may express, either directly or indirectly, a desire.

$5 PRIZE RECIPE

Grapefruit Endive Salad.
[Serves six.]

6 stalks French endive
3 cups diced grapefruit segments
⅔ cup French dressing
Lettuce
3 tablespoons crumbled Roquefort type cheese

Cut up endive, combine with grapefruit and dressing. Chill and arrange on crisp lettuce. Sprinkle cheese over salad. If endive is not available, use crisp hearts of celery.

Spring Idea

The first of today's patterns makes a simple dress with smart shoulders and is a style ideal for either spring or summer fabrics. The second pattern offers a whimsical hat idea and also creates a handbag. Style No. 2597 is designed for sizes 9, 10, 11, 12, 14, 16, and 18. Size 16 requires 2⅞ yards of 39 inch material. Style No. 3840 is designed for one adaptable size. The hat may be made in calot or off-the-face fashion, and the bag is the popular drawstring type. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The spring fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents, 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Fine Arts Group to Mark Drama Day with Program

The Renaissance, a fine arts group organized to encourage study of historical literature, will observe drama day with a program at 2 p. m. today in the clubroom of the Art institute. A reading by J. Bradley Griffin, entitled "The Road to Freedom," will be followed by tea, with Mrs. Erwin Schulze as hostess. Mr. Griffin will be introduced by Mrs. John Magnus.

Thru the Looking Glass

With the exception of the women who live in a selfish dream world—and they're terribly unimportant people—women nowadays are having a pretty rough time. It seems to us that every woman we know is living now under tensions she never knew before; she has new burdens of anxiety, or of sorrow, or she's doing more work, and doing it nervously, than she ever did in the past.

It's not easy to tell such women, blandly, that they must learn to relax. But they must learn that. The necessity for self-discipline along this line is just as urgent, we feel, as the necessity for exercising self-control, courage, and faith.

When you're tense and tired you must make the conscious effort to relax, to shake yourself literally out of the tension. One easy, quick way to relieve nervous pressure, no matter where you are or what the circumstances, is simply to throw your shoulders back and take six or eight deep breaths. This alone will relax you—and if you step to an open window to take those deep breaths so much the better.

Women who don't have to work in offices have the advantage over their sisters—and believe us they should make the most of it. It's not easy, when you get absolutely frantic with nerves, to go to your room, close the door, and lie down for 10 minutes. Nor is it easy, once you lie down, to "shut off your mind" and to let muscles go completely limp. But it can be done—and to do it is to help yourself, physically and emotionally, in a truly therapeutic fashion.

To relax, you must decide [1] not to let your mind seethe and [2] not to tighten up physically. Stretch when you can, take deep breaths when you can, and relax your muscles as well as your mind. The world will look brighter immediately, and you'll be far better able to cope with the problems at hand.

Escarole, a beautiful green and yellow leafy vegetable, is now to be found in many a fruit and vegetable market. It's one of the choicest of salad vegetables, but is delicious cooked, too. The inner leaves of the head are rather small and yellow. These often are used for salads, while the outer, more rugged green leaves are cooked as greens, altho they're good in salads, too.

Salt, pepper, lemon juice, and melted margarine or bacon drippings are the perfect seasonings for cooked escarole. You may cook the entire head, after washing the leaves thoroly, and splitting the head in halves or quarters. It isn't necessary to pull all the leaves apart. Cook escarole by steaming, or in a very small amount of water, only that which clings to the leaves after washing.

Apple butter keeps cup cakes moist, and chopped fresh apples give them an interesting texture. Frost these little cakes with a plain confectioners' icing, or with one flavored with orange or lemon rind.

Apple Cup Cakes.
[1½ dozen medium.]

2 cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
½ cup chopped apples
¼ cup apple butter
¼ cup chopped nuts
¼ cup raisins
¼ cup milk

Sift flour, baking powder, salt, and soda. Cream shortening and sugar thoroly and beat in egg. Add apples, apple butter, nuts, and raisins. Add flour mixture alternately with milk, beating after each addition. Bake in greased muffin pans for about 25 minutes at 375 degrees.

Peanut butter is good in almost any cream soup. Use it instead of butter or margarine to blend with the flour for the soup base. It gives an intriguing flavor to potato soup, celery or carrot soup, any combination vegetable soup, and to many fish soups, notably salmon.

Peanut Butter Apple Pudding.
[Serves six.]

6 apples
¼ cup sugar or honey
¼ cup water
½ cup flour
3 tablespoons margarine
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup peanut butter
¼ teaspoon cinnamon, nutmeg or mace

Slice apples and arrange in baking dish. Sprinkled first with ¼ cup sugar and add water. Combine flour, shortening, second portion of sugar, peanut butter, and spice, blending to a crumbly mass. Spread over apples. Bake at 375 degrees for 45 minutes. Serve warm with cream.

Sally Explains Urgent Need of 3 Wheel Chairs

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Requests for wheel chairs are numerous. We urge those who have unused invalid chairs to notify this department so that we may place them with shut-ins to whom they would mean a release from dreary confined quarters.

Mrs. C. has difficulty in caring for her elderly invalid husband without the aid of a wheel chair. He is 6 feet tall and weighs 200 pounds. For several years he was able to get about on crutches, but is now almost helpless. Assisting him into an arm chair, pulling and tugging to move him from place to place, has been a great tax on her strength. Their only income is the old age pension.

Mrs. B., who lives on the near north side, writes: "We are a couple well past middle age. All our savings have been spent for hospital bills. Recently my husband had to have his left leg amputated. I rented a wheel chair for him as long as I was able to do so, but my meager earnings prevent me from continuing that rental. Your assistance in procuring a wheel chair will be greatly appreciated."

Mrs. P., who is badly crippled and lives alone, depends upon relief. She has tried to help herself by laboriously hitching along the floor in a straight chair, but fears that, because of her weight, it may collapse under her. A wheel chair would be the means of solving many of her difficulties. She lives west of the loop.

Goren on Bridge

[Copyright: 1945: By Charles H. Goren.]

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ.

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠6 4 ♥5 3 ♦K Q 7 5 3 2 ♣9 4 3
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	2 clubs	Pass	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four diamonds. A bid of only three diamonds would be poor tactics because, after all, you would have been obliged to do that even if you held only four small diamonds. Since partner has suddenly decided that he wants to play for game the pen may have nothing, he should be advised that you have a good diamond suit. He knows that you have no particular honor strength because you refused to make a free bid of two diamonds over the adverse two clubs bid.

Q. 2—You are vulnerable and as South you hold:
♠10 9 5 3 ♥K Q 4 2 ♦A Q J 10 ♣6 4
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
3 clubs	Double	Pass	4 Spades
Pass	Pass	5 clubs	Double
Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. You had a very light double to start with and your partner has decided to play for penalties. If he thought there was a fair chance to make five spades he would have passed the bid around to you for your decision. Over-riding his choice would indicate in what low esteem you hold him as a bridge player.

Q. 3—You are vulnerable and as South you hold:
♠K 7 3 ♥A Q 10 ♦J 10 5 4 ♣10 9 2
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	Pass	Pass	Double
3 hearts	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Two no trump. If partner's double is sound you wish to induce him to contract for game in no trump. He must, of course, view your bid in the light of a previous pass. If he has a questionable double he need not go on.

Q. 4—You hold the hand shown in problem 3. The bidding has proceeded in the same manner, only this time the opponents are vulnerable and you are not. What do you bid now?

A.—Double. Such action should yield a handsome profit. The dummy will be trickless and your hand alone will develop four tricks. It will therefore pay you to abandon the probable game at no trump in favor of the increased revenue produced by wielding the ax.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠5 ♥K Q 10 9 5 4 2 ♦10 6 2 ♣J 3
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 club
Double	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four hearts. Since partner has opened in fourth position you know that he has a sound bid and that you should therefore have a good chance to make game in your suit the partner has no support for it. The object of the pre-empt is to obviate the probable competition in spades that may develop from the enemy if they are permitted to come in cheaply. They may drive you above your level by an inexpensive sacrifice bid in spades.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
♠A J 7 2 ♥K 7 5 4 ♦J 3 ♣7 5 4
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	1 spade	?

What do you bid?

A.—Pass. This is a close question, since there are two other possibilities, the double and the call of one no trump. The least desirable of these calls is the no trump bid. This hand is not quite strong enough for such a bid. In other words there will be no game for your side unless partner is able to act again. It is better to let the bidding develop since a penalty is probable if the enemy gets a little careless.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠A 10 6 4 ♥3 ♦Q 7 4 3 ♣9 6 5 2
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 hearts	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Partner's jump rebid is not a force on you since you are not the opener. It is merely a strong invitation. You have already done your full duty by this hand and the invitation should be respectfully declined.

Q. 8—Both sides vulnerable, opponent opens with one spade and you hold:
♠10 5 4 3 ♥A K 10 7 6 ♦K 7 ♣J 4
What do you bid?

A.—Pass. A two heart overcall is not worth the risk. It might easily involve the loss of 800 or 1,100 points. Furthermore the hand has defensive strength against the opening bidder. The four spades will be a nuisance to him as well as a nuisance to you if you play the hand.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Courtesy Commandments.

Our office, after considerable friction and many minor disagreements, decided to feature "Courtesy Week," in which the following commandments were to be observed:

1. Thou shalt use greetings and leave takings such as Good Morning, Good Night, Hello, and Good-By; thou shalt refer always to Mr. Smith or Miss Jones, never to Smith or Jones.
2. Thou shalt not argue.
3. Thou shalt not bear tales.
4. Thou shalt not slander.
5. Thou shalt not make accusations.
6. Thou shalt do thy share of the work cheerfully and efficiently; thou shalt refrain from complaining and grumbling.
7. Thou shalt volunteer to assist thy colleagues, and in a pleasing manner.
8. Thou shalt answer yes or no; thou shalt never answer yeah or nah; thou shalt remember four-footed animals grunt and thou art certainly more intelligent than they.
9. Thou shalt never meddle in the affairs of another; neither shalt thou meddle with his belongings or in any way use, nor disturb anything that is not thine without asking permission of the rightful owner; thou shalt not bring thy family troubles to the office, for this is an abomination unto thy colleagues.
10. Thou shalt not bear a chip upon thy shoulder for some one surely will knock it off. On this rule hangs the peace of the office and the success of thy job.

Eight commuters, coming in to town every morning and returning each night on the same train, have formed what they call the "Train Gang." Ranging in age from just-out-of-school youngsters to a widow with grown children, the eight white collar girls have discovered many interests in common and have extended their train meetings to a theater party and a buffet supper. Also, with the husbands of several members overseas the "Train Gang" has undertaken to celebrate birthdays, anniversaries, and other days which are not easy to celebrate alone. Calling it "successful collaboration," one of the commuting white collar girls passes along the suggestion as a means of overcoming "Blue Monday or blue any other day."

CIGARET MAKER PINS SHORTAGE ON WASHINGTON

Planned Scarcity, Labor Rulings Assailed.

BY FRANK HUGHES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Winston Salem, N. C., Feb. 25.—Washington's planned economy of scarcity, which kept farmers from growing tobacco and allowed cigaret manufacturers to buy only a fraction of the tobacco they used the year before, is the "first reason" for the cigaret shortage which is reaching famine proportions all over America, E. A. Darr, sales manager for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company, said today.

The Reynolds company operates in this city, the world's largest cigaret factory, but it is running only five days a week. It is producing 5 per cent more cigarets than in 1943, but it is idle 104 days a year, not counting legal holidays. If it worked six days a week, it could boost production more than 20 per cent, and if it operated all of those idle days production would soar by more than 41 per cent.

"We could pay overtime to keep the factory running, without hiring many new workers, and we would be glad to do it," Mr. Darr said. "We also believe the employes would be glad to work a longer week for overtime."

Classed as Nonessential.

This is Mr. Darr's answer to claims that a "labor shortage" is the prime cause of the cigaret shortage. None of the manufacturers in the south's tobacco belt scoffs at the labor shortage. Workers are hard to get and hard to keep, especially when the processing of tobacco has been declared a nonessential industry.

All of the manufacturers point to Washington's incongruous rules which rate the growing of tobacco as "highly essential" and the processing of it into smokable form as "nonessential."

Some of them, like Darr, take issue with the recent federal trade commission report which whitewashed the New Deal and declared government regulations and restrictions were not responsible for the shortage. Tobacco was put under the AAA acreage allotment plan in the agricultural adjustment act of 1938. The government also told manufacturers how much tobacco out of each crop they could buy.

Shortage of Tobacco Now.

"The story is simply that we haven't got the leaf tobacco to roll more cigarets," Darr said. "In 1942, we were allowed to buy only 70 per cent of the tobacco we used in the previous year. That 1942 tobacco, three years old, is the crop that is being made into cigarets today. It must be aged 18 months to three years.

"Now some of the Washington planners tell us we ought to use the young, green tobacco and dig deeper into our stores. They say the English age tobacco only 12 months and we should do the same. My answer to that is, who wants an English cigaret?

"Science has never learned to replace time as a factor in producing the kind of tobacco Americans demand in their cigarets.

Government orders for the army, navy, and Red Cross are consuming 60 per cent of the Reynolds company's output at present, Darr said, leaving only 40 per cent for civilians.

"Washington has set up a system of priorities," Darr said, "but I have some of my own. First come the army and navy overseas and army and navy hospitals in this country, on an equal priority; then, army and navy camps in this country, and then American civilians."

None Given for Lend-Lease.

Asked if demand of allied soldiers were included in the overseas quotas, he said: "Not if I catch 'em." Questioned about the Reynolds company's proportion of the 3,045,818,182 cigarets manufactured and given away under lend-lease in 1944, which is a federal trade commission figure, he said: "Not one single cigaret."

The Reynolds company has eliminated export of cigarets except for an infinitesimal amount to some Latin American countries which it was asked to supply as part of the "good neighbor" policy, Darr said. "I turned down an order for 300 million cigarets from Eire last year," Darr said.

The other factors in the cigaret shortage probably will remain unchanged for a long time, unless somebody can produce, out of nowhere, a lot of prime year and a half to three year old tobacco. The industry manufactured 324 billion cigarets in 1944, against only 296 billion in 1943.

The army and navy took 85 billion of that production in 1944, as against 39 billion in 1943. This means that the civilian public got only 239 billion cigarets in 1944, when the year before it was alloted 258 billion.

Meanwhile, according to government figures, the demand for cigarets by American civilians jumped 12.6 per cent each year from 1940 to 1944, and probably is much greater now because of increased buying power.

ENDURING PEACE LIKELY, K. OF C. TOLD BY WALKER

Postmaster General Walker said last night that "extraordinary progress has been made which gives reasonable ground for a hope for a lasting peace," in a speech before the fourth degree Knights of Columbus in the Palmer House.

"It cannot be denied," he said, "that the successive declarations and agreements of men of good will who speak for the united nations give testimony of their earnestness in seeking to establish the principles of a just peace."

He said that while the Atlantic Charter has been termed "but a formless statement of principles," its principles have been adopted by signatories for the united nations. At Dumbarton Oaks, he said, "a great step forward was taken in providing the mechanics for a just and lasting peace."

Walker said he believed the Yalta meeting resulted in understandings which support hope of proper peace even tho "many had hoped that a different solution would be proposed for Poland."

HEARING TO AIR REA LOAN FOR CREOSOTE FIRM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—Charges that the rural electrification administration has exceeded its powers by making a loan not authorized by the congress will be aired during senate debate on the nomination of Aubrey Williams to be administrator of the agency, it was learned today.

When congress established the agency in 1936 it restricted the scope of REA loans to generating plants and distribution and transmission lines or systems that would provide electric energy in rural areas not receiving central station service.

Working Fund Set Up.

However, on Jan. 6 William J. Neal, acting administrator, ordered $200,000 allocated for the purchase and rehabilitation of the Commercial Creosoting company of Longview, Tex.

Under administrative order No. 875, issued at St. Louis, Neal specified that $145,000 would be used to purchase and rehabilitate the plant and that $55,000 would provide working capital. The order said that the total now allocated to the project is $263,000. The loan was made to the Texas Power Reserve Electric Coöperative, Inc., of Austin, Tex.

May Let Down Bars.

Congressmen said that if the REA is permitted to make loans for creosoting poles on the ground that this process is a legal incident to the operation of transmission lines the bars might be let down for further encroachment by REA on private industry.

One congressman asserted that inquiries the department of agriculture, under which REA operates, is reliably reported to have made at WPB indicate that REA may be actually considering loans for the manufacture of creosote.

TONIGHT! TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS OPENS

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

THE GOLDEN GLOVES TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS, amateur boxing's biggest and most colorful show, opens tonight for the 18th consecutive year. . . . Time was when we liked to refer to the event as the Tournament of Heroes, but hero is a word which nowadays applies to men risking their lives on the battlefronts instead of venturing a broken nose or cracked rib in a boxing ring. . . . Nowhere else in competitive athletics, however, does a boy need the courage required for success in Golden Gloves. . . . Sports editors who are here with their teams from Los Angeles, New Orleans, Minneapolis, Cleveland, and a score of intermediate points have watched Golden Gloves contestants of other years march off to war by the hundreds. . . . They hear from them in letters from far off places. . . . Each echoes the same theme, a theme of thanks for the training they received and a yearning to get back to the life they once knew. . . . The character of the tournament has changed since 1941, the last year it was held when the United States was at peace. . . . The participants are much younger as an average than they were then. . . . Their older brothers are in the Pacific or in Europe, where men of Golden Gloves background prefer to be, because that's where the fighting is going on. . . . Sixteen and 17 year old youths are getting ready to carry on for them and there's no better training ground than Golden Gloves.

The 220 who have reached this stage of the tournament are the survivors of an original field that exceeded 10,000. . . . Of the 220 only 32 will be left when the battling ceases about 11:30 Wednesday night. . . . They will fight it out March 9 for the championship and a place on the Chicago team which will meet New York's best in the annual intercity bouts April 4. . . . Keep in mind that the boys who start the three night competition this evening have no monopoly on courage. . . . The thousands who fell by the wayside in the long route to the Stadium had it, too. . . . Otherwise they would not have entered the meet. . . . Golden Gloves is no secret. . . . Every youngster who enters knows what it is—the toughest amateur tournament in the world and the one calling for the most endurance. . . . The moment he has signed and mailed his entry blank he has proved himself a man. . . . He may never get by the doctors who do not hesitate to disqualify an entrant for what may seem to be slight physical handicaps. . . . He may be thumped into oblivion in his first match. . . . But his entry was there. . . . He had the stuff in him.

Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., is grateful to the coöperating newspapers, to the Amateur Athletic Union, and various state boxing commissions for their help in keeping Golden Gloves alive thru the war. . . . Most of all, our thanks to the boxing fans of Chicago whose demand for tickets has broken all records for the 18 year old tournament.

To All You G. I. Joes.

To all you men in uniform,
From India to Nome,
Who wrote me about my year book
Sent by the folks back home:

I wish I could, somehow, make you feel
What each of your letters has meant.
But I can't seem to find the words I need
To express the sentiment.

To think that, with all you're up against
And the rigors you're going thru,
You would take the time out to let me know
What my little book meant to you.

A few of you may have known me,
Most of us never have met,
But your kind and friendly responses
I never, never can forget.

The dollars the year book brought me
Will gradually dwindle away,
But the warm, cheering glow of your letting me know
Will be with me my dying day.
—Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks' Stanley cup play-off chances, previously reduced to mere gasps, last night further were diminished to a faint gurgle when the Chicago lads were obliged to submit to a 3 to 1 spanking before 15,308 in Chicago Stadium.

Pete Horeck got the Hawks off to a 1 to 0 lead in 8:28 of the second period but Joe Carveth scored the tying counter in 13:06 of the same period, then effected the victory counter on a breakaway solo flight in 10:01 of the third period. The third goal was made by Carl Seibert just 11 seconds before the end of the game on a shot from the vicinity of his own cage after Mike Karakas, Hawk goalie, had been taken out of the nets. It was virtually a rink-long bouncer.

3½ Games Behind Bruins.

With eight games to play the Hawks are 3½ games behind the fourth place Boston Bruins and 3 games behind the New York Rangers. They must pass both teams to qualify for the play-offs.

If the Hawks rally the rest of the way, they will do it without the inspiration of their manager, Paul Thompson. It was decided after the game that Paul will leave immediately for a scouting trip in western Canada, which will include attendance at the Allen Cup play-offs—big amateur doings which soon are to start. Johnny Gottsleig will be acting manager of the Hawks the rest of the way.

Harms' Penalty Proves Costly.

Carveth's tying goal last night was made during Johnny Harms' lockup of the only Chicago penalty of the evening. He made it on a long sailing shot, Karakas apparently losing sight of the high shot in flight.

For the winning goal Carveth picked up the puck in the Detroit defense zone and outskated Cully Simon and Byron McDonald in a race to Karakas' boot tips.

The first goal of the evening—Horeck's—was on a nice performance while Seibert was serving a penalty for charging. Off balance as a result of rugged body check, Pete managed to steer the rubber past Goalie Harry Lumley.

Canadiens Here Next Sunday.

The first Carveth goal was the first in three stadium games by a Hawk opponent, and the second in four games. But Mike scarcely was to blame for not being able to keep his shutout string going.

The next home game will be played next Sunday against the Montreal Canadiens, who still are chagrined at having been held to a 0 to 0 score last time here. Their next game was reason enough perhaps for Skipper Paul to take to the tall pine woods of his native western Canada.

1 KILLED, 14 HURT IN HAVANA RIOT OVER TITLE BOUT

HAVANA, Feb. 25 (AP).—A 17 year old student was killed and 14 others, mostly women, were injured last night as shooting broke out during a demonstration by fight fans protesting the decision awarded Carlos Perez over Kid Tunero in their 12 round bout for the mythical Central American and Caribbean middleweight boxing championship.

The crowd, estimated at 10,000, whistled and booed for 10 minutes, then began hurling chairs and benches toward the ring. Panic ensued when the shooting broke out after police reserves tried to restore order.

College Basketball

Iowa at Minnesota.
Kansas State at Nebraska.
Iowa State at Oklahoma.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Iowa's titlebound basketball squad, with nine Western conference triumphs and one defeat, plays its penultimate game of the campaign tonight at Minnesota. Even if the Hawkeyes lose, a highly improbable outcome in view of Saturday's 68 to 38 rout of Wisconsin, they can salvage a championship tie with Ohio State by winning their concluding contest next Saturday at home against Illinois.

Ohio State, which finished its season with an 85 to 52 conquest of Indiana, established the high game score of the year in winning its tenth victory. The Buckeyes were beaten by Purdue and Illinois. The Hoosiers are Illinois' opponents Wednesday night in Bloomington. The other contest of the four this week matches Wisconsin and Minnesota Saturday evening in Minneapolis.

The feature of the next to last week of the 1945 season was the elimination of Illinois from title consideration by consecutive losses to Ohio State and Northwestern. Ohio State's victory was no surprise for Illinois had risen to highest peak of proficiency to beat the Buckeyes in Champaign.

Wildcats Upset Illinois.

Illinois' shooting failed to match previous exhibitions of accuracy. After 16 minutes of the first half the Wildcats led, 18 to 11. They finished the half leading, 25 to 14, and never were seriously threatened thereafter as they piled up a 57 to 45 victory.

Northwestern's triumph attests again to the vagaries of basketball even as the Wildcats' surprising finish a year ago eliminated Purdue and Iowa from the conference race which was won by Ohio State. Without Frank Wright, regarded all year as a regular guard, but with substitutes giving brilliant support to two regulars, Capt. Benny Schadler and Max Morris, Northwestern had balanced attack and aggressive defense. The latter with 20 points, finished the conference race with 189 points which apparently insures him the individual scoring title.

Mikan Breaks Stadium Record.

De Paul also concluded its 20 game schedule Saturday night with 65 to 49 victory over Western Kentucky. George Mikan, named for the second consecutive year as the outstanding player appearing in the Stadium by the Chicago Basketball Writers' association, scored 30 points to break the Stadium record of 27 which he himself had set against Indiana university Dec. 18, 1943.

De Paul quite likely will compete in a post-season tournament. The university is a member of the National Collegiate Athletic association and thus is eligible to selection to represent the 4th district in the eastern sectional tournament in New York.

MINORS TO MEET TODAY; DISCUSS NEW MAJOR PACT

The 11 man committee from baseball's minor leagues will open a three day meeting this morning in the Stevens hotel to make revisions in their agreement with the major leagues. Chairman of the committee is Thomas Richardson, president of the Eastern league.

This group will make recommendations which will be voted on at the December meeting of the minor leagues. The majors already have made revisions in that part of their code governing their relations with the minors. It is believed that a committee from the minors and majors will meet to discuss the revisions each group wants.

It is known that it will be suggested the draft price for minor league players be doubled. The draft range now is from $1,500 for class E players to $7,500 for those in class AA and 1-A. It is believed that the minors also will seek to safeguard possible invasion of their territory by the majors. As the agreement now stands, the majors may come into a minor league city by paying its league $5,000 and making a suitable adjustment with the team affected.

The present major minor pact expires in January, 1946, and each group hopes to have the new agreement prepared so that it may be voted on at next winter's major and minor meetings.

NO NEW MINOR LEAGUES.

Durham, N. C., Feb. 25 (AP).—W. G. Bramham, head of baseball's minor leagues, said today that in a move to coöperate with the government he would not approve applications of any more new leagues during the current man power shortage. He also would discourage the return to active status of any minor leagues now suspended.

Cleveland Sets Sights on 8th Golden Gloves Team Crown

BY FRANK MASTRO.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer Golden Glovers, who captured the 1944 team trophy in the Tournament of Champions for the seventh time in 12 years of competition in the big show, have a good chance to retain their laurels in the annual event which opens in Chicago Stadium tonight.

None of last year's champions is on the 1945 squad, but Alex Zirin, Plain Dealer sports writer, predicts at least one of Cleveland's representatives will go thru to the championship finals March 9. This lad is Bill Stevenson, the team's featherweight champion. Another possibility is Ted Fittipaldo, southpaw flyweight.

Three other contenders are Charles Lester, heavyweight; Bob Redding, light heavyweight, a movie usher, and Ozzie Pegues, flyweight, who is a shearer in a Youngstown, O., steel mill.

One of Cleveland's strongest challengers for the team award will be the Fort Worth Star-Telegram standard bearers, who annually prove to be brilliant fighters. Two soldiers are members of the current squad, including Corp. Tom Attra of the Brooks army air forces field at San Antonio. The other khaki clad representative is Corp. Eugene Gosney, heavyweight newcomer from Camp Hood. Attra is making his fourth trip to the Tournament of Champions. He is back as a light heavyweight, the class in which he won a diamond studded Golden Glove in 1942. Corp. Gosney has his work cut out for him to duplicate the feat of Orlan Ott, last year's heavyweight winner from Fort Worth. Among other members of the Texas delegation are a shipyard worker, a clerk, and two school boys.

Jerry Slavin is the veteran of the Minneapolis Star-Journal's team, having competed as a lightweight in the 1944 event. He is back as a welterweight. Six of the others making their first appearance are only 17 years old. The team includes Allen Wilson, Chippewa Indian lightweight, who is undefeated in 14 fights this year; Neil Schaub, middleweight student at Superior State Teachers' college; Roger Charf, bantamweight, a milk man at Proctor, Minn.; Bud Streit, heavyweight, a farmer at Fairmont, and Ed Lacy, Negro flyweight, who is a star basketball player with Vocational High school in Minneapolis.

Chanute field's six contenders, representing the Peoria Journal-Transcript, have been in training daily since Oct. 1. The Flyers are coached by an old ring craftsman, Capt. Joe Schoenberger, whose distinction it was to win 11 of the 16 Open and Novice championships in the rugged Peoria meet.

J. Edwin Aspinall, president of the Indiana A. A. U., father of Patty Aspinall, holder of the National A. A. U. breast stroke swimming championship for the last two years, arrived yesterday with Eddie Ash, sports editor of the Indianapolis Times, which is said to have its best team in the last 12 years.

Paul Hartnek, only boxer to win two Golden Gloves heavyweight titles, is coach of the Omaha World-Herald contingent. He is confident Corp. Bill Zuke will win another heavyweight championship for the Nebraska squad. Hartnek, first winner of the Joe Louis sportsmanship trophy, now is boxing instructor and counselor at Boys' Town. John Steiner, Omaha's 175 pound standard bearer, is one of the best high school football players in Nebraska. He gained all-state honors as an end for Omaha Central last fall and swept thru the Omaha tournament with three straight knockouts.

Anthony Colato, New Orleans Item bantamweight, is the only member of the Crescent City outfit with national experience. He competed in the National A. A. U. tournament in 1944 and experience gained therefrom won for him two victories by knockouts. Ability displayed in those achievements caused fans to label him another Pete Herman, whose cleverness and hard punching brought him the world 118 pound title in 1917. However, the most promising prospect on the PAIRINGS—By lot at 1 p. m.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The 18th annual Golden Gloves campaign, boxing's most exacting test of courage, skill, and sportsmanship, reaches its climactic phase tonight in Chicago Stadium with the opening of the Tournament of Champions. A stout hearted battalion of more than 200 youngsters, enlisted from 28 cities in 23 states thruout the nation, will do battle thru the next three nights in the fistic fiesta which is unsurpassed for give-and-take thrills.

Tonight is THE night for these boys and young men. They earned the right to make the important trip to the Golden Gloves capital by punching and boxing their way thru preliminary bouts in a boxing empire which extends from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic, from the deep south to the headwaters of the Mississippi. This, then, is it! Forgotten are the knockdowns they survived, the decisions shrewd boxing brought them in their home town marches to the big show. Now they are on their own as they step into the Stadium rings to prove themselves against opponents as able and willing as themselves.

Cross-Section of Young America.

The makeup of the 1945 Golden Gloves personnel bows to none of its predecessors in its melting pot components. The roster of this year's Tournament of Champions carries the names of O'Gara, Christensen, Slazinik, Lu Pari, Theuwes, Holderfield, Wittkowski, and Schaub. Grand Rapids' lightweight candidate bears the highly appropriate appellation of Fist Dever, and Oklahoma City is sending up a 175 pound brave who answers to the name of Asa Howlingwolf.

They hail from every walk in young American life, these seekers after amateur boxing's most prized possession—a Golden Glove. There are teen age lads still in prep school, young farmers who have been carrying on in the home fields for their older brothers, husky aircraft workers and shipbuilders from California and Louisiana, and a well conditioned quota of service men from army camps and air bases.

Lighter Ones Box Tonight.

The first bouts will begin promptly at 6:30 o'clock this evening. The crowd which gathers in the big west side building will need sharp eyes to follow all of the action, since two rings will be used.

Tonight's program will be devoted to the four lighter poundage classes—flyweights, bantamweights, featherweights, and lightweights. The four heavier divisions will take up the leather barrage tomorrow night. On Wednesday the Tournament of Champions excitement will reach its peak, with the third round and quarter-final sessions in all weight classes. The 32 survivors of the three day struggle will qualify for the championship finals, to be waged in the Stadium ring on March 9.

Southwest Arrives in Force.

All day yesterday, a steady parade of champions from every section of the country checked into their hotels, many of them arriving early enough to crowd in final tuning-up drills. The Memphis [Tenn.] Commercial-Appeal delegation, which had been first to land on Friday evening, and the Saturday arrivals from Cleveland, St. Louis, Sioux City, Omaha, Los Angeles, and Port Huron, yesterday found themselves with plenty of company and an op-

MOON MULLINS

I HAVE DECIDED TO RAISE YOUR PAY $3 A WEEK, MAMIE.
GEE! HOW MUCH'S THAT AMOUNT TO IN A YEAR?
WELL, THAT'S $156 MORE THAN YOU'RE GETTING NOW, MAMIE, AND IN TEN YEARS IT COMES TO $1560!
AND IN FIFTY YEARS--UH FIFTY YEARS--

18TH TOURNEY OF CHAMPIONS STARTS TONIGHT

Chicago's Best Compete Among Invading Stars.

The southwest took over the Dearborn station for a spell yesterday morning, as teams representing the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, the Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman, and the Kansas City Star alighted from the same train. The Texan troupe, headed by Sports Editor Flem Hall and Sully Montgomery, the old time Centre college football player, came determined to win the team trophy, awarded to the group which compiles the most points come the March 9 finals.

Texans After Third Title.

Fort Worth, which captured this honor in 1940 and 1942, has been the most persistent challenger of the supremacy of the Cleveland Plain Dealer squad. The Ohioans have won the team championship six times, including the last two, and tied the Omaha World-Herald team in 1936.

While the out-of-town invaders were assembling, the eight young fellows who will carry Chicago's hopes into the Tournament of Champions were getting in their last practice licks. There's a civic responsibility involved in the big job for the local boys, one that extends beyond individual achievement. Year in and year out, the entries from other cities have striven to shut out the Chicagoans from the finals. They have come mighty close, but still haven't succeeded. Last year Johnny Bratton and Collins Brown saved the record for Chicago.

When the gong sounds in the Stadium right tonight, Chicago will send in one of last year's champions and three boys who commanded unanimous respect by their victories in the local finals on Feb. 12. The defending title holder is Jackie Boyd, Madison Athletic club flyweight. Jackie will be followed by Bantamweight Joe Plummer of the Catholic Youth organization, and two Savoy A. C. stars—Wray Carter, featherweight, and Bernard Paige, lightweight.

Chicagoans Have Big Job.

Tomorrow's four Chicago candidates in the heavier classes are Welterweight Caesar Douglas, Middleweight Jim Burkes, Light Heavyweight Le Roy Scales, and Heavyweight Luke Baylark, all members of the Savoy A. C. Baylark won the local championship at the same weight last year.

Arrayed against them will be such visitors as Corp. Tom Attra of the Fort Worth team, 175 pound champion in 1942; Paul Holderfield of the Memphis squad, brother of last year's lightweight, who will fight in the 112 pound league; Pvt. Frank Tunstill, a veteran of the 1944 tourney from Columbus, O.; Corp. William Zuke of Omaha, who fought for Minneapolis two years ago; Frank Rivera, rated Kansas City's most talented flyweight in years; Pvt. Angelo Soane, the soldier who surmounted countless obstacles before winning the Evansville lightweight championship, and Bob Crosley, one of the Fort Wayne brothers' clan.

Boxers Weigh In at Noon.

The four lighter classes will report for weighing and physical examinations at noon today in the gymnasium of the C. Y. O. center, Congress st. and Wabash av. Pairings for tonight's bouts will be drawn by lot at 1 p. m.

Tickets for the Tournament of Champions will be on sale today in three places—the Tribune Public Service office at 1 S. Dearborn st., from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.; the Public Service office in the lobby of Tribune Tower from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., and Gate 2 [Madison st. side] of the Chicago Stadium after 10 o'clock this morning. Prices for tonight and tomorrow night are $1.20, 85 cents, and 55 cents, for Wednesday, $1.80, $1.20, and 85 cents.

TABLE TENNIS TITLES ARE WON BY GREEN, HERSH

Miss Green won the women's singles title by defeating Leah Thall of Columbus, O., 21-17, 16-21, 21-17, 15-21, 21-18. Hersh captured the men's singles title by defeating Corp. Herb Aronson of Chicago, 21-16, 21-12, 21-12. Results of final matches in all divisions follow:

BOYS' SINGLES—Gordon Barclay, South Bend, beat Richard Leviton, South Bend, 21-14, 21-19, 21-17.

MEN'S SINGLES—Max Hersh, Detroit, beat Corp. Herb Aronson, Chicago, 21-16, 21-12, 21-12.

MIXED DOUBLES—Dolores Kuenz and Don Lassater, St. Louis, beat Leah Thall, Columbus, O., and John Varga, South Bend, 21-19, 21-17, 14-21, 16-21, 21-23.

MEN'S DOUBLES—Verne Ahlew and Aronson beat William Early, South Bend, and Sam Shannon, Cleveland, 21-14, 21-17, 21-19.

WOMEN'S DOUBLES—Sally Green, Indianapolis, and Mildred Shipman, Lombard, beat Leah Thall and Helen Baldwin, Des Moines, 21-14, 21-17, 21-11.

Second Jockey in 8 Days Killed at Agua Caliente

Cleveland's Glovers Seek Eighth Crown

New Orleans team seems to be Keith Hamilton, flyweight, who, tho only 16 years old, has confidence in his ability to whip any boxer at his weight in the country.

Corp. Jerry Miller, Nashville Tennesseean middleweight, will be making his third bid for a title. Miller, stationed at the Smyrna army air field, was a finalist in the National A. A. U. tournament last April, losing to Sampson Powell, 1944 Chicagoland Golden Gloves 160 pound title holder, who now is fighting professionally. Miller is the only service man on the Nashville squad. At the same time, James Eleogram, lightweight, is the only member of the team who has had previous experience in the Tournament of Champions. He was a bantamweight last year. Heavyweight Brown Dotson is a brother of Ed Dotson, member of the Tennessee legislature.

Sioux City has brought a familiar contender in Pvt. William Jackson Jr., giant Negro, who will be remembered as the St. Louis heavyweight entry in last year's tournament. Also with Sioux City is Pvt. Wesley Milnes, middleweight, twice a finalist in the Philadelphia Golden Gloves meet. The third soldier member from Sioux City is Corp. Robert Wilson of Ingleside, Cal. He's a welter. Jackson and Wilson are from the Sioux Falls, S. D., army air field, and Milnes is from the army air base at Rapid City, S. D. An interesting feature of the Sioux City tournament finals was the meeting of twin brothers, Gale and Gayus Outhouse, featherweights. It was a sizzling affair. Gale won the decision and the trip to Chicago, but the tournament officials awarded the sportsmanship trophy to the other twin. A guest of the Sioux City delegation at the Tournament is Maj. Harold A. Patterson, public relations officer at the Sioux Falls army air field.

PLA-MORS, COOKS SWEEP SERIES IN S. E. TRAVELING

Pla-Mor Lanes and Cook's Restaurant teams, running one-two in the South End Ladies' Traveling league, each won three games in matches bowled yesterday in Pla-Mor Lanes.

The result leaves the Pla-Mors six games ahead of the Cooks, altho the latter have played three less games.

The Pla-Mors blanked the Green Diamonds and the Cooks shut out Mrs. Grass' quintet. In other matches, both won by 2-1 margins, Crest Recreation beat Watson's Pine Room, and DuBouchetts defeated Schneider & Sons, altho the teams were tied in total pins.

Casters Get Fine Points in Tribune Meet

BY BEN MARKLAND.

Competitive casting events provide the main magnet for the annual Tribune casting tournament, but each year several hundred novice fishermen learn the finer points of bait and fly casting during periods of instruction conducted by William Butler, tournament manager. Butler will conduct all competitive events and give lessons again this year during the tournament, to be held at the International Sportsmen's show in the Coliseum, March 10 to 18.

Many of the novice casters who learned their first lessons in platform competition from Butler have continued in the sport with outstanding success. Bob Cammack Jr., winner of last year's open fishermen event, was only eight years old when he took his first instructions from Butler at the 1935 tournament. He won numerous junior events and last year captured the open title. Cammack, from Hayward, Wis., now is serving overseas with the navy.

Send in Entries.

Causty Ruditis, Vince Anderson, and H. D. Shafer are other previous winners of Tribune casting events who learned their first lessons from Butler. Lt. William Cullerton, the fighter plane pilot who has destroyed 18 German planes, Chicago's leading ace, was one of Cammack's persistent opponents in early Tribune casting tournaments and another Butler pupil.

Secretaries of casting clubs are urged to send their lists of entries to the Casting Editor, Chicago Tribune, as soon as possible. The deadline for all entries is next Monday, March 5. Copies of the schedule and rules will be sent to all entrants.

Eskimos Will Exhibit.

F. W. Kahler, manager of the International Sportsmen's show, said yesterday that one of the outstanding features will be an Alaskan exhibition presented by Earl F. Hammond, who has spent 18 of the last 24 years in the far north. Hammond and his Eskimo assistants will exhibit his team of sledge dogs as well as many items of equipment used in Alaskan work and travel.

CHICAGO AIRMEN SHOOT BASKETS BETWEEN RAIDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 25.—While they are not bombing Germany, Chicagoland air men are taking some pretty successful shots at basketball goals, several of them leading air force teams to notable victory strings and unit laurels.

One of the main cogs in the "Frank's Yanks" team of the 398th bomb group, which has run up 30 straight victories, is Pvt. Harry Katz of Chicago. When an officers' team of the 491st bomb group won the Western league title of the 2d air division recently, Lieutenants Tom Richert of Kankakee, Ill., and Bob Rosendahl of Elroy, Wis., contributed 16 points each in a playoff with the 467th group's officers.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 25 (AP).—The first place Montreal Canadiens chalked up their 33d triumph of the National Hockey league against only five defeats by beating the Toronto Maple Leafs, 5 to 2, tonight.

Maurice Richard of the Canadiens set a new all-time record by ramming home his 45th goal of the season before a record 13,961 crowd. The forward waited until the last three minutes for the goal that enabled him to pass the 44 chalked up by Joe Malone of the Canadiens back in 1918.

JOHN O'CONNOR, SHOE FIRM HEAD, IS DEAD AT 69

First Job Was Bundle Boy in Loop Store.

John O'Connor, 69, president and co-founder of O'Connor and Goldberg, the shoe firm, died yesterday in Henrotin hospital after a short illness. His home was at 149 Kenilworth av., Kenilworth.

John O'Conner.

Mr. O'Connor was 18 when he came to Chicago from Shelbyville, Ky., where he was born and where he graduated from Sampson's academy, a private school for boys. He went to work as a bundle boy in a shoe store in Madison st. near State st. and later became manager of the store.

Store Opened in 1903.

This was the only position he held in Chicago before embarking on his own business venture. It was in this same store that he met Julius A. Goldberg and formed the friendship that ultimately led to the opening of the first O'Connor-Goldberg store in 1903, in Clark st., just south of Madison st.

At the outset of their business, the two men comprised the entire organization. As the business grew, other stores were opened in Chicago. Offices later were set up in New York City, and in Paris, France, to observe style trends and to facilitate buying operations.

A Son in Philippines.

Surviving are Mr. O'Connor's widow, Ruby Forkner O'Connor; two daughters, Alice, and Mrs. William H. Harrison Jr., and two sons, John Jr. and Staff Sgt. Richard G., who is in the Philippines.

Services will be held Wednesday morning in SS. Faith, Hope, and Charity Catholic church in Winnetka.

TOUR OF CHICAGO PLANNED FOR 13 YANK PATIENTS

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

A tour of Chicago for 13 convalescent service men now patients in Mayo General hospital at Galesburg will be conducted by THE TRIBUNE, in cooperation with educational and service groups tomorrow. The men will arrive here over the Santa Fe railroad at the Dearborn station at 6:30 p. m. today and will return to Galesburg late tomorrow night after a round of activities.

The tour was arranged thru the offices of Maj. Gen. Russel B. Reynolds, commanding officer of the 6th service command, and Col. H. L. Krafft, commanding officer of Mayo hospital.

Tribune Man in Party.

With the party will be two first lieutenants, Arthur Middleton, a Tribune reporter on military leave, who was wounded in France and is a patient at the hospital, and Russell C. Koepke, in charge of the reconditioning program at the hospital.

Transportation in Chicago will be provided by the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross and the men will be housed while here by the Chicago service men's centers. They will be guests of the Fred Harvey system for dinner upon their arrival at the Dearborn station.

The tour will begin tomorrow morning with a trip to the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park and at noon the men will be guests of Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, director of the museum, for lunch. From the museum they will go to Orchestra hall and be entertained by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Hans Lange, with Nathan Milstein, famous violinist, as soloist.

Will Go to Stadium.

At 4:30 p. m. the men will tour Tribune Tower and at 6:30 p. m. will be guests of THE TRIBUNE at a dinner in Chinatown. They then will witness THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves tournament in Chicago Stadium. They will leave Chicago at 11:30 p. m. from the Dearborn station.

The tour was suggested by Lt. Middleton to THE TRIBUNE as the result of his teaching a class in journalism at the hospital.

CHEMICAL TEST IN TUB DEATH TO BE READY SOON

A chemical analysis being performed to determine the cause of death of Mrs. Blanche Zimmerman, 38 year old telephone operator whose nude body was found in a bathtub in the Atlantic hotel a week ago, is expected to be completed early this week, Coroner Brodie said yesterday. Earlier tests failed to reveal traces of the more common poisons, he said, and efforts are now being made to determine whether benzedrine, a stimulant she was said to have used, may have affected her heart.

ENOCH J. PRICE, MORGAN PARK AID, DIES AT 80

Enoch J. Price, 80, of 2124 W. 112th st., Chicago attorney for 54 years and for 28 years president of the board of Morgan Park Military academy, died yesterday in his home.

A native of Licking county, Ohio, he was graduated from Denison university at Granville, O., in 1888, and received his law degree from the University of Michigan in 1891. For 10 years he was village attorney of the village of Morgan Park before its annexation to Chicago; for nine years he was a member of the Morgan Park High school board, and for 12 years a member of the Morgan Park school board.

He is survived by his widow, Louise, and by six children, Mrs. Emerson Armstrong of Western Springs; Allen T. Price, a teacher in the Oak Park-River Forest High school; Owen N., Chicago attorney; John M., cable editor of the New York Herald Tribune; Hugh G., president of the Morgan Park Military academy, and Miss Jessica Price of New York City.

Services will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. in the Morgan Park Baptist church, Bell av. and 110th st.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN AUTO; LEAVES 2 NOTES

Mrs. Carol Dietsche, 22, of 411 Clinton av., Oak Park, was found dead yesterday in the back seat of her automobile parked in 45th av between Hirsch and Le Moyne avs. in North Lake village. A rubber hose attached to the exhaust led inside the car and the windows had been stuffed with a blanket.

In the front seat of the car were two notes, one asking that her husband, Wilbur, 25, a war worker, be notified. The other said: "I'm sorry for my act. My husband has nothing to do with this. I hope Tootsie grows up to be as fine a person as her daddy."

Dietsche told police his wife had been despondent since the birth of their child eight months ago. Saturday night she left home in the car, he said, saying she was going to see a doctor in Melrose Park. When she did not return, he notified Oak Park police.

INQUEST TODAY IN LIEUTENANT'S DEATH IN LAGOON

An inquest will be held at 10 a. m. today in Gardiner general hospital to determine the cause of death of 2d Lt. Eugene E. Raichel, 20, of 2644 N. Avers av., whose body was found Saturday in the Lincoln park lagoon south of Belden av.

Dr. Sinclair S. Snider, coroner's pathologist, reported that examination of the body revealed a deep cut over the right ear and heavy scalp bruises. An autopsy will be performed today by military authorities.

Coroner Brodie yesterday questioned Lt. Raichel's father, Thomas, of the N. Avers av. address, and a brother, Theodore, of Detroit, Mich., who revealed that Lt. Raichel suffered a nervous breakdown and attempted to swallow poison during a visit in Detroit last December.

He subsequently was committed to an army hospital at Clinton, Ia., which he left without leave Dec. 26. Police found $196 on the body.

Coroner Brodie said that Lt. Raichel's death resulted from drowning, but that the inquest will seek to determine whether he may have been attacked, and thrown into the water while still alive.

DECLINE IN JOBS, PAY ROLLS LESS THAN USUAL DIP

Employment and pay rolls of both manufacturing and nonmanufacturing industries in Illinois dipped between Dec. 15 and Jan. 15, but the declines were smaller than the usual seasonal slump for this period, Robert L. Gordon, acting state director of labor, said yesterday.

Over-all employment declined 1.6 per cent. Employment was off 0.2 per cent in manufacturing industries and 6 per cent in the nonmanufacturing group.

Over-all pay rolls were 1.2 per cent lower. The decline in the manufacturing group was 0.1 per cent with an average weekly wage of $50.19. A 6 per cent drop was reported for the nonmanufacturing group where weekly earnings averaged $37.81.

Over-all employment and pay rolls in the Chicago metropolitan area declined 2.4 and 1.9 per cent, respectively. Employment and pay rolls in manufacturing establishments were off 1 and 0.7 per cent, respectively, and in the nonmanufacturing group 6.4 and 6.3 per cent.

FRANCE REDUCES PLANS FOR 1945 CAR PRODUCTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 25.—The production of a new French lightweight and low priced "people's car," originally announced for this summer, today faded into the mists of 1948. After six months of research and experimentation technicians have decided that mass production of such an automobile in France will be impossible for nearly three years.

However, plans to produce 60,000 pleasure cars between July 1 and the end of 1945, in addition to 90,000 trucks during the year, are being maintained. But it is found that new private cars will have to be sold at prices approximately double those before the war. Buyers of the first French cars will have to pay $1,900 for large models and approximately $500 for small ones.

M. A. Hanna Co. to Direct Iron Ore Firm's Activity

The Evergreen Mines company, Crosby, Minn., large independent producer of iron and manganiferous ores, yesterday announced that a substantial stock interest in the company had been acquired by the M. A. Hanna company, Cleveland, and that the Hanna company would assume operating management of its properties. The stock was purchased from the estate of Donald R. McLennan of Chicago, which will retain the remainder of the stock. Perry G. Harrison, who has been with Evergreen since 1927, will continue as president.

Argument on Plea to End Rail Suit Set for May 31

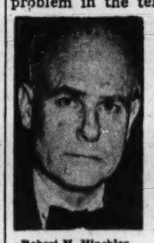
Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 25 (AP).—Federal Judge John W. Delehant has set May 31 as the date for oral argument on the motion of the Association of American Railroads to dismiss the government's anti-trust suit against western railroads, the A. A. R., the Western Association of Railway Executives, and various individuals. The court set these dates for filing of briefs: Defendants, April 1; plaintiffs, April 21; reply by defendants, May 15; by plaintiffs, May 22.

NEWS OF FINANCE AND COMMERCE

SMALL FIRMS' JOBS DIFFICULT TO TERMINATE

Lack Accountants, Legal Staffs.

The most difficult and important problem in the termination of war contracts is the making of settlements with subcontractors, because they are the most seriously affected by delay or unfairness in the settlements, Robert H. Hinckley, director of the office of contract settlement, said in a recent report to congress.



Robert H. Hinckley.

The subcontractors, making up the vast majority of companies in war work, generally have neither the accounting and legal staffs nor the financial strength of the larger corporations, he explained.

Fixed Price Contracts Faster.

Solutions of the problem of aiding these companies, whose "continued healthy existence will be essential in the post-war period," include speed in the settlement of the related prime contracts, the report said. It asserted that in the field of fixed price contracts speed is increasing, altho room for improvement remains.

Regulations permit final settlement of certain smaller claims by the subcontractor himself without waiting for the settlement of the prime contract. Fuller use of these powers was urged. The report asserted that would provide a large part of the "answer we seek."

"To bring about a better use of existing procedures means further training of personnel, not only the contracting officers and their staffs, but the employes of prime contractors and subcontractors," it said.

Many End Without Claim.

A high proportion of all settlements have been accomplished without any claim by the contractor. One reason was the ability to divert to other work without loss the materials in process for the terminated contract, and another was the existence of the renegotiation act.

"When contractors are sure they have already realized renegotiable profits for the fiscal period, the collection of a claim on a terminated contract amounts merely to a needless exchange of dollars," the report said. "Within the limits of their renegotiable profits, therefore, many contractors have been willing to waive claims."

A sampling of settlements disclosed that contracts terminated up to the end of last year have been settled for less money than the principles of the contract settlement act would have warranted contractors in claiming.

Accounting Emphasis Undue.

"The reports [of investigators] too frequently disclosed an undue emphasis on accounting exactness in the establishment of claims," the report said. "This was evidenced by the disallowance of costs not susceptible to proof with the exactness thought to be required; by the disallowance of minor items when examination of the claim indicated the contractor could have established additional costs substantially in excess of the disallowances, and by the negotiator's rigid adherence to the minimum recommendations of the accountants who reviewed the claim."

The report showed that of the 4 billion 200 million dollars of canceled commitments in the final quarter last year, 3 billion 100 million represented fixed price contracts. Settlement payments were 5½ per cent of commitments. Terminated contracts thru December last year since the beginning of war production totaled almost 26 billions, compared with a commitment value of 3½ billions for contracts terminated at the end of World War I.

The war department had the best record of the government agencies in the speed of settling fixed price termination claims in the last quarter, with an average of 4.2 months from the time of cancellation of the contract. Only 22 per cent of its terminations required more than 6 months.

TOP PRIORITIES GIVEN TWO GAS LINE PROJECTS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—Moving to avert another critical gas shortage in the Appalachian area next winter, the WPB has assigned top priorities for two pipeline projects costing 12 million dollars. They are scheduled for completion by Nov. 1, 1945.

One project involves the addition of four compressor stations on the Tennessee Gas & Transmission company pipeline from Monroe, La., to West Virginia to make possible the delivery of about 60 million cubic feet additional gas daily into the Appalachian area.

The other project is for construction of 140 miles of 24-inch pipeline from the Carthage gas field in Texas to the Tennessee Gas & Transmission line at Monroe, La.

OPA Increases Ohio Soft Coal Prices 3 Cents a Ton

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25 (AP).—The OPA has announced an average increase of 3 cents a ton in ceiling prices for soft coal mined in Ohio, effective March 1. The increase was granted to producers to be passed on to consumers.

Agree on Rail Vacation Plan; Miners to Draft Pay Demands

Affects 800,000

More than 800,000 nonoperating railroad employes have been granted increased vacation allowances with pay, it was announced yesterday. The agreement was reached in conferences in Chicago between the carriers conference committee, representing the principal railroads, and representatives of 14 unions.

It provides a paid vacation of one week for all employes with an excess of 160 days employment the preceding year and two weeks vacation for employes with five years' service, not necessarily consecutive.

Subject to U. S. Approval.

Subject to government approval under the stabilization program, the agreement is retroactive to Jan. 1 of this year and will continue in effect until Jan. 1, 1947.

The agreement amends a previous vacation plan in effect since Dec. 17, 1941. Under that plan, clerks and telegraphers got six days vacation after one year service, nine days after two years, and twelve days after three years. Other nonoperating employes, such as mechanics, electricians, and shopmen, received six days after a year's service.

Original requests of the employes made last June were for 12, 15, and 18 days paid vacation after 1, 2, and 3 years of service, respectively.

Cost Put at 25 Million.

It was estimated that the new vacation allowances will cost the railroads approximately 25 million dollars a year.

Representing the western railroads at the conference which concluded last Friday was Daniel P. Loomis, executive director of the Association of Western Railways. Herbert H. Enochs represented eastern railways and C. D. Mackay southeastern lines. Bert M. Jewell, of the railway employes department of the AFL, was chairman of the labor group. Frank Douglass of the national mediation board presided at the meetings.

Lewis to Meet Aids

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25 (AP).—John L. Lewis and the United Mine Workers' policy committee will meet tomorrow to decide whether to attempt a direct assault upon the Little Steel wage formula. Bituminous coal mine contract negotiations begin Thursday.

The committee of 250, which includes Lewis, UMW president, and 32 other national and district officials, with delegates from each district of the coal miners' union will discuss the question during the next three days.

Contract Expires Next Month.

The bituminous contract expires March 31. The anthracite contract will expire April 30.

Lewis has remained silent about his plans, but on the basis of the action of the union's Cincinnati convention last October it is generally believed that he will ask the committee to ratify demands something like this:

1. A general increase in the miners' basic pay from $1 to $1.25 an hour.

2. Full hourly rate for travel time—the portal-to-portal allowance over which the 1943 strikes occurred—instead of the two-thirds rate now paid.

3. Differentials of 5 and 10 cents an hour for second and third shifts, as allowed by the war labor board in other industries.

May Ask Shorter Week.

In addition to these, or as alternatives for one or more of them, Lewis may propose a shorter work week without loss of pay, a higher allowance for vacations or the vacation itself with pay, or allowance for boots and safety lamps.

The miners are working a 54 hour week. Last year the vacation allowance was hiked from $20 to $50 in lieu of the time off. The miners also were allowed pay under the last contract for tools and dynamite.

Utilities Seek Rural Growth, Criticize REA

A recommendation for expenditure of 790 million dollars of private funds to extend rural electric service and a critical analysis of the practices of the rural electrification administration were made in a preliminary report of the commercial planning committee of the Edison Electric institute released yesterday by C. W. Kellogg, president.

The three year extension program would begin as soon as war requirements permit and bring electric service to approximately 600,000 farmers and 400,000 rural home owners. An estimated 290 million dollars would be provided by private electric companies to build the required lines and the remaider by new customers who would spend about $500 each for wiring and other initial equipment.

Half of Farms Get Service.

The committee reported the farm electrification job was about half done. Of the 5,200,000 occupied farms at the end of 1944, more than 2,700,000 had electric service. Principal areas where service was incomplete were the west north central, west south central, east central, and south Atlantic states.

Discussing the unfair competition from government subsidized electric coöperatives, the committee said:

"Under sponsorship of the REA, local coöperatives could obtain capital funds for 100 per cent of the construction costs upon extremely favorable terms and interest rates to reach unserved areas which were beyond the financial reach of the electric companies.

REA "Strays" from Purpose.

"The farm coöperatives also are given exemption from federal taxes. Return on this investment of the government was secondary to the objective of widespread rural electrification.

"REA has strayed afield in several respects from the basic purpose for which it was formed, 'to bring the advantage of electricity to farms in areas too thinly populated to be served by the private utilities.'

"Appropriations of millions of dollars of federal funds for lines each year have been followed by the building of a substantial number of generating plants and transmission lines duplicating the existing power supply, the building of some distribution lines that overlap and duplicate electric company lines, and the buying out of utility lines."

ILLINOIS TURKEY GROWERS PLAN 30% CROP BOOST

Illinois turkey growers plan to raise 1,076,000 turkeys this year, an increase of 30 per cent over last year's record crop, the state department of agriculture said.

The extent to which expectations are carried out will depend on the supply and price of hatching eggs, prices of poults and feeds, and losses of birds during the season. Hatching eggs should be in ample supply because Illinois growers had on hand Jan. 1 a record total of 118,000 breeder hens.

Turkey growers over the country plan to raise 39,481,000 turkeys in 1945, an increase of 8 per cent over last year.

WAR TO LEAVE FEW HELPLESS, SAYS VETS' AID

Job Training to Bridge Wound Handicaps.

Few, if any, service men discharged because of injuries received in battle face a hopeless future. Virtually every battle casualty will have some ability left and it is the problem of the veterans' administration to discover this ability and develop it, C. E. Hostetler, vocational rehabilitation officer at Hines hospital, said yesterday.

"The primary thing to remember," said Hostetler, who has been engaged in rehabilitation and personnel work since World War I., "is that every disabled veteran is an individual case. What we are able to do with a veteran depends upon his intelligence, occupational experience, interests, aptitudes, developed skills, and his disabilities.

"With us it is first important to know what a veteran can do with the abilities he has remaining. We must be in a position to utilize and develop fully those remaining abilities. If the abilities he has lost creates a vocational handicap, we must develop skills with the remaining abilities in such a way as to enable him to pursue an occupation comparable to that of a normal worker."

Requirements Are Outlined.

Veterans entitled to vocational training provided by the veterans' administration are those who have served in the military forces subsequent to Dec. 6, 1941, and prior to termination of the present war. They must have honorable discharges, a disability received in service or aggravated by service for which a pension is payable by law, a declaration of vocational handicap, and be in need of vocational rehabilitation to overcome the handicap.

While pursuing the vocational training program the disabled veteran receives $80 a month maintenance if single, $10 additional for a wife, and $5 for each child. The government pays the cost of training, materials, and tools.

Veterans who have disabilities which existed prior to induction or disabilities not pensionable under the federal act are not entitled to vocational training at government expense. In Illinois the state vocational rehabilitation board provides for their aid.

Employers' Attitude Vital.

After setting up an employment objective for a disabled veteran, Hostetler said, it is necessary to consider lost ability, remaining ability, requirements of the jobs for which he is to be trained, type of facility to be used for training, and, most important of all, the attitude of the man who will employ the veteran after he has been trained.

Hostetler said the attitude of employers toward employment of disabled workers has undergone a vast change in recent years. He holds out as examples one employer who recently had 11,163 partly disabled persons on his pay roll, and another in Chicago who employs only a few able bodied men among the hundreds in his plant.

"The crux of the situation in the employment of disabled persons," Hostetler said, "is training and placement. Employers more and more are studying the requirements of jobs and finding the men to fit the requirements.

Urges "Human Engineering."

"Untold sums have been spent in research to get greater and greater productions from machines, but in human engineering—finding the job that suits the worker—the surface hardly has been scratched."

An outstanding example of vocational rehabilitation is found in the case of a young veteran who lost his eyes in a shrapnel burst at Casa Blanca. When this veteran arrived at the Hines facility he believed his future was hopeless.

It was necessary first to make him realize he would have to face the realities of life. Then he was taught to take care of himself and to read braille. After a few months' training he was put to work in a large electrical manufacturing plant. He progressed from one assembly job to another and today he is earning an excellent salary.

A former teacher was discharged so emotionally upset that he could not go back to his profession. After a period of rest he was induced to take a graduate course in biochemistry. Alone in a laboratory most of the time he is recovering.

Ex-Reporter Finds Niche.

A former reporter who lost most of his hearing and had diabetes decided after recovering his composure that he wanted to write on technical subjects for laymen. He is studying engineering for background.

Applications for vocational rehabilitation have been filed by 2,347 discharged veterans in Illinois. Five hundred ninety six are getting the training, some cases are pending, and the remainder of the applicants for the most part have followed the counsel of army officers who discharged them and taken jobs. They still can get vocational training when and if they need it.

Hostetler disagrees with those who talk about industry having to provide 45, 50, or 60 million jobs after the war. He believes the word industry is used too loosely and that in speaking of employment opportunities they should be broken down into the fields of manufacturing, agriculture, and services.

Hostetler said employment opportunities for disabled men will be plentiful after the war in many fields outside industry.

LACK OF SHELLS OFFERS THREAT TO U. S. IN WAR

In the last six to eight months the success of battle operations both in Europe and the South Pacific was "seriously threatened" because of a shortage of shells and heavy guns, Col. Dan A. Hardt, head of the production urgency information committee, said yesterday.

In a recent telegram to ammunition manufacturers Lt. Gen. Sommervell, chief of the army service forces, warned that battle plans of Gen. Eisenhower and Gen. MacArthur may have to be changed unless the supply of ammunition is increased.

"Gen. Eisenhower has advised me that the increasing consumption of ammunition requires an immediate increase in the supplies being shipped to him," Gen. Somervell's message said.

Tactics Hinge on Supply.

"He states that the tactical plans for the immediate future depend on his troops being provided with an adequate and continuous flow of ammunition. A failure in this flow will seriously interfere with his operations."

At the Ingersoll Steel and Disc company, 1000 W. 120th st., one of the principal manufacturers of 105 mm. shells, the demand for increased production has created an almost insurmountable problem because of a serious labor shortage.

In an effort to alleviate this shortage and help maintain production schedules, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, radio station W-G-N, and the Ingersoll Steel and Disc company, in cooperation with the army, navy, and war agencies, tonight will present the third in a series of radio programs dramatizing the role each war worker plays in winning victory.

Story of Shell Making.

Tonight's program, from 9 to 9:30 over W-G-N, will present the story of shell manufacture, tracing the 105 mm. shell from a raw ingot to the finished product.

The broadcast will be from Medinah temple. Nearly 5,000 war workers from the Ingersoll company who are not working on the night shift will attend.

Special music for the program was composed by Robert Trendler, who will direct the orchestra and chorus. The program was written and will be produced by Sherman H. Dryer. On subsequent Monday nights the story of other vital war plants will be told.

Other companies participating in the series are the Republic Steel company, Pressed Steel Car company, Aluminum Company of America, Electro-Motive division of General Motors, Western Electric company, Buda company, and Hallicrafters company. The Ingersoll Steel and Disc company is a division of the Borg-Warner corporation.

HOLD INJURED VET ON ROBBERY, BEATING CHARGE

James J. Jobe, 21, of 1347 N. State st., a medically discharged sailor who survived the sinking of the aircraft carrier Wasp, was seized yesterday by Hudson av. police who said he had beaten and robbed an automobile dealer whom he had lured to a north side hotel Saturday.

Two badly scarred hands which Jobe suffered when he swam thru a sea of blazing oil supplied the clew which resulted in his capture.

Ex-Sailor Tells Story.

Police said Jobe told them he conceived the idea of the robbery while returning from Joliet where he had tried all week to sell books.

Jobe told police he rented a room in the Lincoln Park hotel, 1702 N. La Salle st., early Saturday. He said he read the want ad columns and then telephoned an automobile agency making an appointment to sell them his car.

A short time later David Levin, 2135 Michigan av., the car buyer, arrived. When Levin asked to be shown the automobile Jobe said he held his hand in his pocket as tho he carried a gun and demanded the agent's money. When Levin resisted Jobe said he struck him on the head with a brick, searched his pockets, found $10, and fled.

Reports $520 Taken.

Levin reported to Detectives John P. Foley and Louis Swee that he had been robbed of $520 and that his assailant had overlooked an additional $1,300 in another pocket. Levin said his attacker's hands and arms bore severe scars.

Police searched the neighborhood, learned the former sailor's address, and seized him in his home.

Jobe said he entered the navy Dec. 10, 1941, and served as carpenter's mate aboard the Wasp in both European and Pacific engagements. He was hospitalized, he said, for more than two years and was given a discharge last October after being awarded the Purple Heart.

CHICAGO FALLS BELOW QUOTA IN SAVING GREASES

Collections of waste greases are now averaging 500,000 pounds a month in the Chicago area, compared with a quota of 800,000 pounds, Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, chairman of the Chicago office of civilian defense grease-tin committee, reported yesterday. She appealed to housewives to save every spoonful of waste fat. She said that reserve stocks of grease are dwindling and the demand for munitions is increasing.

HOW HEAD OF FAMILY WITH INCOME OTHER THAN SALARY WOULD FILL OUT INCOME TAX FORM 1040

FORM 1040 Treasury Department Internal Revenue Service

U. S. INDIVIDUAL INCOME TAX RETURN FOR CALENDAR YEAR 1944 — 1944

Do not write in these spaces: Site Code; Serial No.; District (Cashier's Stamp)

EMPLOYEES.—Instead of this form, you may use your Withholding Receipt, Form W-2 (Rev.), as your return, if your total income was less than $5,000, consisting wholly of wages shown on Withholding Receipts or of such wages and not more than $100 of other wages, dividends, and interest.

NAME Joseph U. Smith (PLEASE PRINT. If this return is for a husband and wife, use both first names)
ADDRESS 4620 Kenwood Avenue (PLEASE PRINT. Street and number or rural route)
Chicago 15 Illinois (City or town, postal zone number) (State) Social Security No. (if any) 329-765-437

Your Exemptions

1. List your own name. If married and your wife (or husband) had no income, or if this is a joint return of husband and wife, list name of your wife (or husband). List names of other close relatives with 1944 incomes of less than $500 who received more than one-half of their support from you. If this is a joint return of husband and wife, list dependent relatives of both.

NAME (Please print)	Relationship	NAME (Please print)	Relationship
Your name Joseph U. Smith	x x x x x x x x x

How to Figure Your Tax

IF YOUR INCOME WAS LESS THAN $5,000.—You may find your tax in the tax table on page 2. This table, which is provided by law, is based on the same tax rates as are used in the Tax Computation on page 4. The table automatically allows about 10 percent of your total income for charitable contributions, interest, taxes, casualty losses, medical expenses, and miscellaneous expenditures. If your expenditures and losses of these classes amount to more than 10 percent, it will usually be to your advantage to itemize them and compute your tax on page 4.
IF YOUR INCOME WAS $5,000 OR MORE.—Disregard the tax table and compute your tax on page 4. You may either take a standard deduction of $500 or itemize your deductions, whichever is to your advantage.
HUSBAND AND WIFE.—If husband and wife file separate returns, and one itemizes deductions, the other must also itemize deductions.

Tax Due or Refund

6. Enter your tax from table on page 2, or from line 15, page 4 ... $ 684 36
7. How much have you paid on your 1944 income tax?
(A) By withholding from your wages (Attach Withholding Receipts, Form W-2) ... $ 504 00
(B) By payments on 1944 Declaration of Estimated Tax ... 170 00
Enter total here → 674 00
8. If your tax (item 6) is larger than payments (item 7), enter BALANCE OF TAX DUE here ... $ 10 36
9. If your payments (item 7) are larger than your tax (item 6), enter the OVERPAYMENT here ... $
Check (✓) whether you want this overpayment: Refunded to you ☐; or Credited on your 1945 estimated tax ☐

If you filed a return for a prior year, what was the latest year? 1943
To which Collector's office was it sent? 1st Illinois
Is your wife (or husband) making a separate return for 1944? NO ("Yes" or "No")
If "Yes," write below: Name of wife (or husband) X
Collector's office to which sent X

I declare under the penalties of perjury that this return (including any accompanying schedules and statements) has been examined by me and to the best of my knowledge and belief is a true, correct, and complete return.
(Signature of person (other than taxpayer or agent) preparing return) (Date) Joseph U. Smith Feb 23, 1945 (Signature of taxpayer) (Date)
(Name of firm or employer, if any) (If this is a joint return of husband and wife, it must be signed by both)
